MRS. JUDD GIVES HERSELF UP IN TRUNK KILLINGS

WOUNDED ARM BEARS OUT HER CONFESSION

Three-Cornered Fight Is Defense of Woman in Los Angeles.

Los Angeles, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—After evading hundreds of officers for five days, Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd, 26, surrendered to police and sheriff's officers here tonight and told her husband she killed Hedvig Samuelson and Mrs. Agnes Le Roi, trunk murder victims, during a quarrel in Phoenix, Ariz.

Mrs. Judd, a Phoenix hospital employe, was quoted as saying she shot her two former roommates October 16 after they attacked her when she went to their apartment "to remonstrate with Miss Samuelson for some nasty things she had said about Mrs. Le Roi."

Found in Trunks.

The bodies of the two women were found in two trunks and a suit case which had been sent to Los Angeles from Phoenix. Mrs. Judd, who called for the baggage with her brother, Burton K. McKinnel, university law student, fled after station employes noticed blood seeping through the trunks and asked her to open them.

After her surrender, brought about through publication of a request of her husband, Dr. William C. Judd, that she do so, she was bundled into a police automobile and rushed to Georgia Street Receiving Hospital. One of her hands was wounded, apparently by a bullet. She was given into custody of officers at the Alvarez & Moore undertaking establishment.

Mrs. Judd was said to have been in a sanitarium near Los Angeles during the four days that hundreds of officers of California and Arizona sought her.

Her hand was first dressed at the sanitarium, location of which was not disclosed. While the member was being dressed she said she came near capture by two Los Angeles policemen. They walked into the place and questioned her, but she managed to make her escape.

Urged Her Surrender.

In his newspaper request Dr. Judd gave the fugitive instructions to surrender to Attorney Louis Russill.

Attorney Russill said she had been in communication with him since 2 a. m. yesterday. He said she wanted to surrender, but feared to come to his office in the Subway Terminal Building.

The attorney in one of the telephone conversations with the woman asked her if she would meet him at the home of a friend. She agreed. A meeting was arranged and David Malloy, an employe at the Alvarez & Moore undertaking establishment, drove to Fifth and Olive streets, where she entered his automobile.

Quickly she was driven to the undertaking concern's office.

She was met there by her husband, Dr. Judd; her brother, Burton J. McKinnell, and Attorney Russill.

She was said to have been exhausted and in an extremely nervous condition when she arrived at the retreat.

They hastily put her to bed, dressed her wound again, gave her eggnog and other stimulants, and advised her that surrender was advisable.

Bursting into the room where the woman was held, police officers had a scuffle with Dr. Judd and McKinnell when they tried to serve the murder warrant. Malloy was declared to have been hiding the suspected woman. He was struck on the nose by one of the officers and retreated. The warrant was served.

Faces Photographers.

Later the woman came down the stairway in the undertaking parlors leaning on the arms of her husband and Attorney Russill.

A battery of news photographers faced her at the foot of the stairs. Mrs. Judd threw her coat above her head and moaned.

"Oh, I can't—I can't."

"Now, dear," Dr. Judd spoke soothingly to her, "the best thing to do

Arkansas Is Calm In Border Dispute

Texas Rangers' Entrance Into Area Viewed With No Alarm.

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Texas may need more teritory, but Arkansas is big enough, Attorney General Hal L. Norwood said today as he smiled indifferently at the entrance of Texas Rangers and game wardens into land involved in a border dispute near Texarkana.

"The prize (a 4,800-acre strip along the Red River that is good for nothing but hunting and fishing) isn't worth a lawsuit," Norwood said.

"We might submit the question to the League of Nations as to whether those who hunt ducks on the lake should pay the license to Arkansas or Texas, as this is about all that is involved that amounts to anything," he added.

League Efforts to End China's Crisis Blocked

Another Attempt to Compose Sino-Japanese Conflict Will Be Made Today; Tokyo Remains Adamant on Withdrawal Plan.

(Associated Press.)

The League of Nations tried again yesterday—and failed again—to effect a peaceful settlement of the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria. Another effort will be made today.

Japan's spokesman at Geneva reiterated his government's refusal to withdraw its troops by November 16. China's spokesman acceded to the league council's peace plan with reservations.

Although in Geneva the situation was described as a deadlock, Tokyo dispatches said Japan had agreed in principle to the league's peace plan.

High officials of the Japanese government said evacuation might be started within the three weeks proposed by the league council, but declared Japan could not promise definitely to have its troops out by November 16.

Geneva, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The League of Nations' labors to reestablish peace in Manchuria were blocked again tonight when the Japanese representative, acting on fresh instructions from Tokyo, reiterated at a public session of the league council his government's refusal to withdraw its troops by November 16.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, the Japanese spokesman, voiced this refusal after Dr. Alfred Sze, for China, had accepted with reservations the council's plan for peace, including the time limit on evacuation.

This interchange clearly defined the deadlock between Japan and the other members of the council and aroused anxious speculation about what will happen tomorrow when the problem is to be debated again.

M. Yoshizawa assured the council that his government was determined to get its soldiers back within legal territorial limits as quickly as possible without endangering the lives and property of Japanese residents outside the railway zone. He asserted

3 DIE AND 2 ESCAPE IN CONVICTS' FLIGHT

Trapped New Jersey Prisoner Suicide; Dying Policeman Kills His Slayer.

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Two convicts were dead tonight, two more were at liberty, and a Philadelphia policeman was slain, after the four prisoners had executed a daring escape from the New Jersey State Penitentiary.

One convict shot himself, after he had been surrounded in a corn field near Oxford Valley, Pa. Another was shot to death by a Pennsylvania State trooper, after he had fatally wounded the policeman.

The two men who escaped were reported tonight to be heading toward New York in an automobile, armed with a pistol and a high-powered rifle. They obtained the weapons from the guard tower of the prison before leaping outside, it is understood.

The dead are:

James Wiernan, sentenced from Camden County to fifteen years for robbery, who committed suicide.

James McGrath, sentenced from Passaic County to fifteen years for atrocious assault.

Patrolman Joseph W. Campbell, of the Philadelphia police department, died in the Mercer Hospital here.

Campbell was slain as he closed in upon Wierman and McGrath, accompanying State troopers in pursuit of the escaped prisoners. Police kept up a steady fire for more than two hours before the convict firing ceased. It was then discovered that Wierman had killed himself and McGrath had been shot to death.

The two men who made good their escape were Frank Seibert, sentenced to fifteen years for assault, and James Stoddard, under a three-year term for carrying concealed weapons.

The four convicts were working on top of the outside wall of the prison, assisting a civilian electrical contractor, when they made their break.

The fugitives jumped into an automobile, after seizing arms. They abandoned the car near Langhorne, Pa., and Seibert and Stoddard, in another automobile, escaped through the lines of police.

Peruvian Police Kill 7, Injure 25 in Rioting

Lima, Peru, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Seven persons, including two women, were killed today when police clashed with the populace of the village of Pariamarca. At least 25 others were wounded.

The populace had held a mass meeting protesting against alleged arbitrary action by certain subprefects of the district. Police clashed with the demonstrators in an effort to end the protests.

DEMOCRATS REGAIN LEAD IN HOUSE RACE

New Hampshire and Jersey Seats May Not Be Filled Before Session.

(United Press.)

The Democrats through the hand of death have gained an apparent control over the House of Representatives, and it appeared more likely than ever before last night that they would organize it and elect John Garner, of Texas, as Speaker in December.

Only special and speedy action by Republicans will permit election of successors to Representatives Fletcher Hale (Republican), of New Hampshire, who died in New York yesterday and Ernest Ackerman (Republican), of New Jersey, who died suddenly.

The House line-up now is: Democrats, 214; Republican, 213; Farmer-Labor, 1; vacancies, 7.

The general elections, November 3, will fill five of these vacancies. Two of them are in nominal Democratic territory, one is in certain Republican territory. The remaining two, the Longworth district in Ohio and the Vincent district in Michigan, are described as doubtful, although both have been Republican in recent years.

If Republicans win both of the districts believed doubtful, the line-up will be 216—216, a tie. If the Democrats win just one of them, they will have a safe two-vote majority.

If Gov. Larson of New Jersey is able to arrange a special election in the Ackerman district before December 7, when Congress meets, he might be able to save the situation for the Republicans. The district in the past has been about two-to-one Republican.

If Gov. Winant of New Hampshire could manage an election by that date also, the Republicans might be safely in control. The district has been traditionally Republican, but the Democrats, in 1930, got nearly 40,000 to Hale's 53,000 votes.

Under New Hampshire law, it is not believed that a special election can

Capital Man Robbed Of $1,174 in Boston

Boston, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—George H. Fitzgerald, 65, of Washington, D. C., reported to police here that pickpockets had robbed him of $1,174 in cash while he was riding in an elevator.

Fitzgerald, retired business man, said he had withdrawn interests on deposits from five banks and was jostled by two men while in an elevator. A few minutes later, he said, he discovered his loss.

Navy Day Speeches Curbed To Traditions of Service

Rear Admiral Frank Upham Issues New "Urgent" Instructions Following Criticism by Representative Wood.

(Associated Press.)

Under the spotlight of propaganda accusations, the Navy has ordered all its officers to disregard Navy Day speech suggestions previously sent them, and to confine their remarks to such things as the tradition of the service. This order was sent out Wednesday by Rear Admiral Frank B. Upham, chief of the Bureau of Navigation, to all naval district commanders and marked "urgent."

It followed by a month a circular outlining "general points to be covered by Navy Day speakers, logically arranged." The points included the need to build up the Navy to London treaty limits, increase the number of Naval Academy graduates and similar topics.

This earlier list of suggestions also included a caution that "all officers should carefully avoid controversial matters, and should refrain from directly advocating any policy which is contrary to the announced policy of the President."

On Thursday Representative Will R. Wood accused naval officers of engaging in "cowardly and insidious propaganda" against the President's economy program, which compelled the Navy to shave its budget $60,000,000. Wood urged an investigation and the dismissal of officers found responsible.

Secretary Adams explained yesterday that the topics suggested in the earlier circular appeared "unfortunate" when they came to his attention, and that he had directed limitation of the naval men's talks to traditional matters. The Navy Day program is conducted each year on October 27.

U. S. TO STUDY FIRMS NOTING BOOM IN 1930

Hoover Asks Experts of Three Departments to Aid in Survey.

264 ORGANIZATIONS IN LIST FOR INQUIRY

Idea Is to Find Out How They Kept Business Up and Publish Plan.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Moving to forearm himself against the avalanche of visionary economic panaceas expected to flood in upon the new Congress in December, President Hoover has asked three departments of the Government to cooperate in an exhaustive study of the business policies of corporations which, despite the depression, were able to report larger net incomes for 1930 than for the boom year, 1929.

Exports assigned to the research describe the study as the most elaborate inquiry into the relationship between governmental policies and business stability ever undertaken in an important industrial country.

With only a preliminary examination of official reports in various branches, the Government experts already have compiled a list of 264 business organizations which reported a better year in 1930, and these are to form the basis of the study. Insofar as the business executives involved are disposed to cooperate in the study, the Commerce Department will undertake to establish the basic factors in the outstanding prosperity to isolate those elements of management which account for good business in bad times.

Steps for Protection.

Steps have been taken to insure in the study the same protection of vital trade secrets as is afforded under the income tax laws and under the numerous direct arrangements which govern monthly reports from hundreds of corporations to the Commerce and Labor Departments and to the Federal Reserve Board. The survey is being carried on by existing statistical organizations in those branches of the Government, without added expense.

Assured by their preliminary studies that the 1930 list of thriving corporations covers the entire field of industry, the Government experts will attempt to discover in each case whether the increased business flowed from fiscal or labor policies, intensified advertising or new sales methods. They will compare, also, the burdens of taxation in various sections of the country, the influence of Governmental subsidies on competitive lines, and the relation of local banking and credit conditions to business planning. Finally, the study will touch upon the volume of foreign business and the developments in that trade influenced by both United States and forein tariffs.

Will Be Published.

Whether the answers to all these questions will provide a new approach to the larger problem of economic stabilization will not be known for weeks, but it is anticipated that regardless of what conclusions they may sustain the factual summaries will be published this winter for the examination of all who may be interested.

One department of the Government already has compiled a list of 134 "scientific" explanations of the world-wide business depression, ranging from spots on the sun to gold movements and installment purchases, and against these there have been assembled some 700 specific suggestions for stimulating business through legislation or new governmental policies, ranging from prosperity bond issues to increased post-

Grand Juror's Age Vital in Pitts Case

Court Will Rule Tuesday on Contention Man Was Too Old.

The latest move of counsel for G. Bryan Pitts, one-time head of the F. H. Smith Co., in attacking an indictment that was returned against him a year ago, on the basis of the ineligibility of a grand juror on account of age, will be thrashed out in court next Tuesday.

At that time return communications are expected from Italy with positive information concerning the actual date of birth of Frank Fabrizio, who was born in San Sele. The Government contends Fabrizio was born February 5, 1867, which date would place him within the maximum age limit of 65.

Dozier A. DeVans, attorney for Pitts, contends that Fabrizio was born in 1865, and he cited in proof of that a statement made by the Italian when he applied for naturalization papers.

HOOVER-LAVAL TALK CONFINED TO NATIONS' ECONOMIC TOPICS; BORAH AND PREMIER IN CLASH

Senator Suggests Plan for Cancellation of War Debts.

FRENCH PRESS MEN VISIBLY IMPRESSED

Idahoan Favors Change of Versailles Pact to Deal With Polish Corridor.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Capitol Hill was heard from late yesterday as the Franco-American conversations on world problems got under way, and the result was a quarrel.

In an audacious statement—uttered at the very moment that President Hoover and Premier Laval, of France, were getting together at the White House—United States Senator William E. Borah (Republican Progressive), of Idaho, yesterday came out with a proposal that war debts and reparations be canceled, provided that the Versailles treaty be revised and such troublesome questions as the Polish Corridor settled.

"It is becoming perfectly clear," he said, "that the Versailles treaty will be revised either by peace or by force."

French newspapermen rushed to Premier Laval to tell him what Senator Borah had said, and, on leaving the Edge mansion, they quoted the French leader as saying:

"I did not come to Washington to exchange polemics with Senator Borah, or to discuss revision of the Treaty of Versailles.

"Tell the journalists that I shall see them tomorrow, and not to put too much weight on the words of one senator whose speeches reflect only himself."

Senator Borah, when told of Premier Laval's statement, expressed surprise. He was especially surprised because at the White House on Thursday night, Premier Laval had asked him for a personal interview. This was to take place tonight at "Woodley," the home of Secretary of the State Henry L. Stimson.

The Idaho senator, who is chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, and therefore in charge of all legislation having to do with international treaties, said that he was absolutely opposed to any "security pact," whereby the United States would pledge itself to aid France in the event of attack.

Reduction of Armaments.

Reduction of armaments, he said, is impossible until the Versailles treaty is revised and the present political problems of Europe ironed out.

Reduction of armaments, he added, also depends largely on American recognition of Russia. The United States, he said, can hardly ask Roumania and other countries bordering on Russia to cut down on their armaments until it is in a position itself to ask Russia to give certain guarantees of security to these countries.

The circumstances under which Senator Borah strode into the picture yesterday were extraordinary. He sat at the head of a long green-topped table in the office of the Senate foreign relations committee at the Capitol.

Gathered around the table were correspondents of the French newspapers, and in back of them were the correspondents of the American news-

4 Trapped by Rockslide In Mine Believed Dead

Trinidad, Colo., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Four men tonight were trapped behind a rock slide that blocked rescue attempts 125 yards back in the only shaft of an abandoned coal mine near Trinidad. All were believed dead, as the slide was precipitated by a gas explosion that rocked the mine late this afternoon.

13 Die in Battle In Mexican Town

Mayor Is Among Victims of Revolt Led by "Grandfather."

Mexico City, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Details of a sanguinary battle last Saturday night at Tlapacoyan, Vera Cruz, in which the mayor and twelve other persons were killed, were revealed in news dispatches today.

The mayor, Manuel de Angel, learned that an assault would be made on the town hall and immediately called upon all municipal employes, who turned the building into a fort. They were attacked by 50 persons led by a man called "Grandfather."

Sniping lasted until 5 o'clock Sunday morning, when the attackers, deciding to carry the hall at all costs, made a furious assault and forced the defenders to the roof. But they were unable to enter the building. They then decided on a "gas" attack and flung burning red chile peppers into the building. This forced the defenders to flee, and they were shot down and hacked with machetes.

White House Statement On Meeting With Laval

The text of the White House statement last night on the conversations between President Hoover and Premier Laval follows:

Both the President and Premier Laval wish it made clear that the conversations upon which they are engaged are solely in respect of such policies as each of the two governments can develop to expedite recovery from the world economic depression.

There is no remote basis whatever for statements as to "demands," "terms of settlement" or any other like discussion.

Happily there are no controversies to be settled between France and America. None such exist.

The sole purpose of these conversations is the earnest, frank exchange of views with view to finding common ground for helpful action in the promotion of constructive progress in the world.

WORLD'S CHAMBER ASKS COOPERATION

Delegates of 25 Countries Tell Steps Necessary to Recovery.

Paris, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Cooperation among the governments of the world to restore confidence in economic stability was urged tonight by the council of the International Chamber of Commerce, composed of representatives of 25 nations.

The council, in session here, passed a resolution outlining the steps necessary to achieve world confidence. They were:

1. An effective policy for world disarmament.
2. Elimination of unnecessary governmental expenditures and reduction of taxation.
3. Definite settlement of intergovernmental debts.
4. Restoration of monetary stability.
5. Adoption of economic policies which will lead to a freer international exchange of goods and capital.

The council previously had planned to discuss a possible solution of the world silver crisis but was forced to postpone such action because of failure of the silver committee to complete its study.

Discussing means of coordinating efforts of business men throughout the world to stimulate economic recovery, the council received a report from a committee of economists, including Prof. Wesley Mitchell, of the United States, outlining a practical program for rehabilitation.

"If creditor nations attempt to recover the interest of loans or the loans themselves by other means than accepting goods in payment or granting fresh credits, they will make the same mistake as individuals make in attempting to convert values into gold or claims into gold," Abraham Frowein, German vice president of the council, said in reference to the debt question.

The American members of the council present were Lucius Eastman, of New York; Nelson Jay, partner of the Morgan Co. of Paris, and Col. Robert E. Olds, former Undersecretary of State.

Senator Caraway Goes To Little Rock Hospital

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Senator T. H. Caraway, of Arkansas, entered St. Vincent's Infirmary here today for an examination to determine whether he needs an operation for a kidney ailment that has bothered him for several months.

He was a patient at St. Joseph's Infirmary at Hot Springs recently, but after leaving there he became ill again. He came here today from his home at Jonesboro to consult doctors, and they decided upon a thorough examination.

U. S. IS COURTEOUS, FRENCH ARE ADVISED

Paris Correspondent Sees "Suffering" Here Affecting Conversations.

Special to The Washington Post.

Paris, Oct. 23.—Whether America's welcome to Premier Laval and his party was warm or "rather cold" finds disagreement among observers, says the Paris Midi in its Washington dispatch today, but all agree that the greeting was "very courteous." The article says:

"It is certain Broadway had not the same aspect as when Lindbergh or Costa and Chevalier arrived. Confetti was measured and streamers were not very thick. There was little cheering—the crowd was simply polite.

"One might explain it as due to the fact that during working hours few people are on the street. But one can find another explanation, namely, the crowd was suffering and very reserved. The unemployed, before committing themselves, were awaiting results of the conversations. Such would best explain the attitude, because then disillusionment would be less severe if they achieved nothing. It must also be remarked that MacDonald had even a cooler welcome. Therefore, it is best not to judge too severely the reception, which on the whole, was very satisfactory.

"If the people in the streets have not manifested overmuch enthusiasm the first contact of the statesmen on their train contrarily appeared excellent. Although ill, Stimson appeared happy; Laval also. 'Stimson is a man who understands me and whom I understand,' said Laval voluntarily.

"It is certain that discussion aboard the train concerned especially disarmament and security problems, which dominate all moot questions, even the moratorium or redistribution of gold, and whereon there is possibility of serious disagreement. But Hoover and Laval aren't men who

Rediscount Rate Up In Cleveland District

(Associated Press.)

The Federal Reserve Board announced yesterday that the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland had increased its rediscount rate from 3 to 3½ per cent effective today.

The increase was the second for the Cleveland bank within two weeks and placed it on a level with the rates in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Minneapolis and San Francisco. Richmond and Dallas have a 4 per cent rate while Atlanta, which has not increased its rate recently, maintains a 3 per cent charge. The Minneapolis rate of 3½ per cent was established in September, 1930.

Lindberghs Land in Newark; Motor to Morrow Residence

Fly From Wyoming in Day, Making Several Intermediate Stops; Household Cars Meet Couple at Airport and Flying Colonel Declines Escort.

Newark, N. J., Oct. 23. (A.P.).—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, returning home from the Orient, landed here at 9:24 o'clock tonight after a day's flight from Rock Springs, Wyo., broken by several intermediate stops.

The Lindberghs were met at the airport by two cars from the household of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, father of Mrs. Lindbergh, whose death early this month caused the flying couple to cancel the remainder of their trip.

Baggage was deposited in one car and the Lindberghs entered the other. A flat tire halted the car bearing the Lindberghs at the outskirts of the airport and they transferred to the second machine and continued to the Morrow estate at Englewood, N. J.

Col. Lindbergh drove the second car himself. He refused police escort, saying he wanted to "go quietly."

Mrs. Lindbergh wore a plain blue dress and blue hat with a white band. Both looked tired, although they seemed in the best of health. Col. Lindbergh was tanned a deep brown.

The Lindberghs took off from the Rock Springs, Wyo., Airport at 8:12 a. m. (E.S.T.). They spent 20 minutes at the Moline (Ill.) Airport while their plane was refuelled, at 12:20 p. m. (E.S.T.), then halted at Cleveland, where they again replenished their fuel supply and took off at 6:27 p. m. (E.S.T.).

The Oriental tour of the Lindberghs, conceived as a vacation jaunt,

White House Is Quick to Say Politics Phase Is Barred.

REMEDY FOR SLUMP HELD ONLY OBJECT

Disavowal Strong That Conversations Can Lead to "Agreements."

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

In the stately seclusion of the Lincoln study of the White House last night Herbert Hoover and Pierre Laval embarked on the mutual "exploration" of their countries' problems in charting a way out of the slough of the world's economic depression.

The President of the United States and his house guest, the president of the council of ministers of the French Republic, rigorously circumscribed the nature of their discussions to purely economic problems. A White House statement made public immediately following the discussions of the afternoon ruled out of the conversations any specific agreements and all political considerations.

Nevertheless, it was felt that Premier Laval has not abandoned the French insistence of seeing in war debts and reparations, both purely economic problems, some very realistic political considerations as well. The White House statement made public by one of the President's secretaries, Theodore Joslin, was believed to have been to controvert the impression created by Senator Borah's astounding statement to the French press yesterday afternoon.

Hoover Concern Aroused.

The chairman of the foreign relations committee had expressed his approval of a revision of the Treaty of Versailles with compensations for such delicate political firecrackers as the Polish corridor and the plebiscited Upper Silesia.

The President's concern was immediately aroused at the implications that might follow from the Paris press at the frank statements of Senator Borah and the White House communique was prepared ostensibly to meet any outburst from the French press.

The statement declared:

"Both the President and Premier Laval wish it made clear that the conversations upon which they are engaged are solely in respect of such policies as each of the two government can develop to expedite recovery from the world's economic depression. There is no basis whatever for statements as to 'demands,' 'terms of settlement' or any other like discussions. Happily there are no controversies to be settled between France and America. None such exists. The sole purpose of these conversations is the earnest, frank exchange of views with a view to finding common grounds for helpful action in the promotion of constructive progress in the world."

Stimson Paves Way.

For the first time since his arrival in this country the French premier and the President descended to realities. During his visit to the State Department in the morning, Secretary Stimson had gone over with M. Laval the problems of method. Both statesmen realize that there is no subject about which intelligent men are so ignorant, no matter to what nation they belong, as the method of thought in another. For this reason the secretary and the premier sat in the sun of the State Department yesterday morning gazing at a lovely vista of green and granite looking to the slow moving Potomac and made the best possible preparation for any diplomatic conference. Secretary Stimson declared afterward:

"It has been my experience that the best conferences begin by sitting on a rail in the sun and talking one to another."

On this foundation the Hoover-Laval conferences at the White House

CAPONE'S SENTENCE DEFERRED TO TODAY

Defense Argument for Setting Conviction Aside Heard by U. S. Court.

Federal Building, Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Al Capone went to court again today, listened glumly while his attorneys gave reasons why they believed his income-tax conviction should be set aside, and was ordered by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson to come back tomorrow.

"I will dispose of this case at 10 a. m. tomorrow," the Court said. That was taken to indicate he would sentence Capone immediately if the defense motion for an arrest of judgment presented today were denied.

If the arrest of judgment were granted, the gang chief's conviction, along with the indictment charging him with attempting to cheat the Government, would be thrown out.

Capone gazed moodily at the floor while attorneys argued for and against the motion, reciting previous cases involving oleomargarine, diamond smuggling, and sale of a safety razor company. His mood seemed to brighten, however, after the judge adjourned court for the day.

"Oh, sure, I'm all right," he replied to questioners. "I just cut my finger a little."

Plans of Defense.

The index finger on the right hand was swathed in bandages. Otherwise, it was the same Capone who sat in court for two weeks during his trial, a pin-striped blue suit, yellow shoes, bright tie and white shirt. His black socks were rolled down to within an inch of his shoe tops.

Defense Attorneys Michael Ahern and Albert Fink said their case was finished so far as Judge Wilkerson's court was concerned. They will hear his ruling on the motion for an arrest of judgment tomorrow, and if it is denied and Capone is sentenced, will request a stay of sentence and later appeal to the higher courts.

If the motion in arrest of judgment should be granted, the prosecution could do one of two things, appeal directly to the Supreme Court or reindict and retry Capone on five counts on which he was originally convicted. Arguments on such a motion are directed only at the indictment, not at the evidence introduced in the trial.

The scarfaced gangster who has bossed Chicago gangdom for more than ten years is liable to a maximum 17-year prison term and fines totaling $50,000 under the conviction.

Loses New Trial Right.

By choosing to argue the motion for an arrest of judgment, the defense gave up its right to request a new trial. If Judge Wilkerson rules against the defense motion, there would be nothing to delay immediate sentence, and the only move open to Capone would be appeal to the higher court.

Judge Wilkerson may, if he chooses, order that Capone begin serving sentence immediately. The defense, however, was expected to oppose such a move. Appeals, even if unsuccessful in the end, might delay the gangster's entrance into prison for two years or more.

In the meantime, however, Capone might be forced to serve a six-month sentence in the county jail for contempt of court, imposed for his delay in returning to Chicago from Florida in response to a grand jury summons. Capone has appealed the sentence, saying he was too ill to make the trip.

The Government was reported ready to seize whatever property the gang leader may own in satisfaction of overdue income taxes. Liens were ready for attachment, according to reports, on any tangible property he may possess.

Williams Murder Jury Says It Is Deadlocked

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The jury deliberating the case of the Rev. J. M. Williams charged with slaying his son, reported late today it was deadlocked and that some members had refused to confer further. Judge A. L. Franklin told the jurors it was their sworn duty to give the case their earnest consideration and sent them back to continue their deliberations.

Mr. Williams, a Rochelle, Ga., minister, is charged with the murder of his son, Raford Grady Williams, 19, a sailor, who was found shot to death near here on August 5.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—After killing his wife, their daughter, and the latter's 7-year-old son, Joseph Panzian, 55, of Queens, committed suicide, police said today on discovery of the four bodies.

Mrs. Panzian, 50; Mrs. Eva Hyland, of Long Beach, N. Y., 35, a school teacher, and her son Richard were found dead from ax blows in the Panzian home. Panzian had killed himself by inhaling gas in another room.

All had been dead about three days, officers said.

HOOVER-LAVAL CONVERSATION CONFINED TO WORLD SLUMP

last night were begun. From half past 3 o'clock in the afternoon until after midnight last night, with the exception of a minimum interruption for informal dinner, the two statesmen talked of their common maintenance of the gold standard, the question of war debts and the matter of reparations, with all interrelated problems.

Mills Attends Conference.

The presence of such feminine company as Mrs. Hoover and Mrs. Stimson and the Miles, Laval and Claudel was decided at the last minute. Originally the President had intended to entertain his guest with only a few men present.

Premier Laval entered the White House portico promptly at 3:25 o'clock, thus advancing his hour of arrival by some two hours. His vivacious daughter came in some time later from a sightseeing tour. The Premier was deep in consultation with the President and Undersecretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills, three minutes after his arrival. The presence of Mr. Mills naturally confirmed the deductions of the nature of the conversations. Mr. Mills was at the home of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon the night the President made his appeal to the consortium of New York bankers. It was Mr. Mills also who prompted the President on the minor details of his plan for intergovernmental debts, as he explained it to the leading members of Congress in the historic White House midnight conference.

Premier Laval had invited as his interpreter Jacques Bizot, the brilliant director of the division of the movement of funds in the ministry of finances. However, as it soon became known that M. Bizot's knowledge of finance far transcends his knowledge of English, the impression was soon current that he was there in his quality of technical advisor.

Experts With Premier.

The French statesman has brought with him eight experts, whose collaboration is confined to merely consultative roles. Whenever he wants some enlightenment on a financial point, he would call M. Bizot, and if it were a juridical point at issue, he would undoubtedly summon Prof. Jules Basdevant, the famous jurist from the World Court and the School of International Law in Paris.

The chiefs of the two States that sat down in the Lincoln study last night both realized they are but a part in the legislative system of their two countries. Any agreement that comes out of the present negotiations will not have the force of law until it has been ratified by the Parliament of France and the Congress of the United States. Before their eyes hangs the memory of President Woodrow Wilson and his repudiated League of Nations, and Premier Laval can remember well what happened to his friend, Joseph Caillaux, when he brought back an unacceptable debt-funding agreement with the United States Treasury.

The most important consideration last night was the matter of the gold standard. Here at least the United States and France see eye to eye. Possessing between them almost 70 per cent of the entire supply of the world's gold, they are both, therefore, concerned in the maintenance of the use of the yellow metal in the settlement of all international exchanges. England has abandoned the gold standard, Canada likewise, and the only countries left in Europe today which settle their international bills of exchange on the gold basis are Switzerland, Holland and France and the United States.

Gold Exchange Modes.

Conversations were begun in New York, while the premier was en route, between the directors of the Federal Reserve Bank and the two leading members of the Banque de France, Charles Farnier and Robert Lacour-Gayet, for the adjustment of gold shipments between New York and Paris. In these negotiations Undersecretary Mills played an important part. He was, therefore, the spokesman last night whenever the modalities of gold exchanges were brought into the conversation.

Last night, however, the experts played a very minor role. Even Secretary of State Stimson was relegated to the rank of superinterpreter. The Secretary's trip to Europe this summer enabled him to take part in the French conversations and carry on an animated discussion at times with M. Bizot when their two interpretations of a given word or phrase were at variance.

The President and the premier found many points of contact. If the President has his Senator Borah, then the premier has his Louis Marin, doughty leader of the ultra-Nationalists, who begrudge every concession to Germany as an indication of French weakness. Both statesmen last night outlined their personal viewpoints, which, it is said, presented several unusual points of similarity when judged on intrinsic facts alone. However, as soon as the exigencies of parliamentary and congressional approval were envisaged by the two chiefs of state, radical revision of their agreements had to be made so as to satisfy the demands of the parliamentarians of both nations.

The President yields to M. Laval as the common courtesy of host and guest would enjoin, but, nevertheless, the United States did not solicit the Laval visit, and President Hoover will, as a result, await the French Premier to make the suggestions for his subsequent consideration.

Hours in advance of the conference last night, Secretary Stimson had warned against too high optimism of what would come out of the conversations. The sentiment of the world has been too alert to perceive results before the groundwork of such a conversation had even been laid. For this reason the need for conservative and cautious reaction to the results of the meeting was stressed.

The day of the premier had been a strenuous one, but nevertheless his conversations with the President were continued well after midnight. He had been up since 7 in the morning and after a drive through Potomac Park had decorated the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington and then had rendered visits to Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes and Vice President Charles Curtis.

SENATOR BORAH OFFERS PLAN FOR WAR DEBT CANCELLATION

papers. The Frenchmen it might be said, had asked to see Borah.

Long Cables Dispatched.

The press conference started at 3:30 o'clock, the very time at which Premier Pierre Laval, of France, was entering the White House to begin his series of conversations with President Hoover in an attempt to work out some plan for fostering the economic welfare and the peace of the world.

To the Frenchmen, the Borah statement was the big news of the day, and they hurried away to write long cable dispatches for their papers in Paris.

Senator Borah also took occasion to say that he felt that "economic pressure" against a nation was the same as a declaration of war against the nation, and that therefore he was opposed to any treaty calling on the United States to apply economic pressure. Premier Laval, it is understood, hoped to lay the groundwork for such a treaty.

He also stated that, while the economic crisis in the United States is intimately related to conditions in all parts of the world, there is a distinct cleavage between economic and political relations.

"That has been true," he said, "from George Washington's Farewell Address on down," he said.

Reason for Importance.

The Borah program had a bombshell effect. His views were not new; Washington reporters had been familiar with them for weeks. It was the manner in which he voiced them yesterday, with French newspapermen sitting in and at a time when the Hoover-Laval conversations were just beginning, that made them assume a spectacular aspect.

The news of his statement caused something of a furore at the White House. An hour or so later, a statement was issued there saying that the Hoover-Laval discussions would be free of "all political nature."

A survey of the French reporters revealed that most of them were both astonished and pleased by what Senator Borah had to say. They were under the impression that he stood for a scrapping of the Versailles Treaty, a strengthening of Germany, and a weakening of France.

They were astonished by his boldness, his statement that he would be "frank if not diplomatic."

They were pleased when they found that he advocated, not a tearing up of the Versailles Treaty, but a revision of it to take care of such problems as the Polish corridor, which cuts off East Prussia from the Fatherland, and Upper Silesia, which was taken from Germany and given to Czechoslovakia by a plebiscite which Senator Borah thinks was unfair.

They were pleased, too, to hear him say that while he advocated complete cancellation of war debts and reparations if the Versailles Treaty were reopened, he would be in favor of a "practicable" plan whereby Germany would continue making her unconditional reparations payments—that is, the payments to cover the actual damage done in the devastated areas of France and Belgium.

It had not been anticipated that Senator Borah would play a very prominent part in the French-American conference now in progress here. In fact, the White House failed to ask him to attend the dinner there Thursday night until the last minute. The invitation was sent to him after newspapermen had ascertained that he had not been invited.

Laval Seeks Conference.

While he was at the White House, he met Premier Laval, and the latter, through an interpreter, told him that he was anxious to talk to him. Later on, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson made arrangements for the two men to get together in his study at Woodley tonight.

Although he has never been abroad, Senator Borah is well known in Europe. The French correspondents came here under the impression that he is the dictator of America's foreign policy, and that whatever tentative agreements may be reached by President Hoover and Premier Laval must have the Borah stamp of approval before they can be translated into action.

In interviewing him yesterday, Pierre Denoyer, correspondent of the Petit Parisien, repeatedly addressed the Idaho senator as "Mr. Secretary."

Another Frenchman addressed him as "Mr. Minister."

When the Frenchmen had gathered themselves around the table, at places marked Mr. Walsh, Mr. Shipstead, and with the names of other members of the foreign relations committee, Senator Borah said:

"You want me to speak frankly?"

"Yes, yes," they replied.

Platform Outlined.

"Well, I will be frank if not diplomatic," said the senator.

He then went on to say that there could not be any disarmament in Europe until political problems such as the Polish Corridor were settled, which would mean revision of the Versailles Treaty; that the United States would be opposed to any kind of security pact that pledged this country to go to the aid of France in case of war; that the suggestion that "economic pressure" be used on an aggressor nation was unsound, because economic pressure was tantamount to a declaration of war, and that American recognition of Russia is essential to real world disarmament.

At the outset of his conference, Senator Borah told his interviewers that he was not speaking for the Senate, but for himself.

PETAIN MAKES VISIT TO SUPREME COURT

Marshal Also Thanks Red Cross for Aid Given France in War.

Marshal Petain, accompanied by Gen. De Chambrun, descendant of Lafayette, visited the Supreme Court yesterday morning and in the afternoon he went to the national headquarters of the American Red Cross to express his thanks for the aid this country extended him during the World War.

The marshal and his party reached the Supreme Court shortly before noon and were present when the proceedings for the day opened. They heard counsel argue a case from Oklahoma involving a claim arising from a man's death. Gen. De Chambrun had two close relatives who practiced law in the District more than 50 years ago, and during his visit to the court asked about obtaining certificates of their admission to the law practice here.

At Red Cross headquarters, which Marshal Petain visited in company with Gen. Pershing, the French leader met a Red Cross worker he had met previously. This was J. Harrison Heckman, assistant director of roll call, who was decorated by Marshal Petain while Heckman was in a French hospital after the battle of Belleau Wood in 1917.

At that time Marshal Petain pinned the Croix de Guerre with palm on Heckman's coat for his gallantry as a lieutenant of Marines in capturing, with two of his sergeants, 90 German prisoners.

AMERICA COURTEOUS, FRENCH ARE ADVISED

dodge difficulties; they'll speak frankly. What will come of all this?

"It's too soon to say. * * * Meanwhile we can hope Laval will be popular because he is a man of the people. And he had a good idea bringing his daughter, in whom the American people happily can obtain a picture of the young French girl.

"Whatever the results of the conversations, it will be necessary to seek the explanation in the widespread present suffering. One sees anguish on many faces here. I was impressed by sight of the port of New York, entirely inactive.

"One feels as if something has broken. This misery can push America to align herself truly with Europe and France but it can also have a contrary result."

No Franco-U. S. Committee.

A Washington dispatch to the Petit Journal says:

"In a country where woman plays such an important role, special interest is being shown Josette, who is constantly pursued by reporters and photographers.

"Newspaper comment is abundant but vague. America will prove her good will to the limit of her possibilities.

"Too much importance must not be attached to the report according to which a permanent Franco-American committee would be created, on the same model as the recently formed Franco-German committee. The American policy of nonintervention constitutes an insurmountable barrier. It is possible an effort is being made to continue during the next few weeks the contact on certain well-defined subjects, but even this is not certain."

The Petit Parisien article from Washington says:

"The impression M. Laval has created in America so far is excellent. The press of Washington and New York has been particularly friendly, expressing the hope that efforts for closer collaboration between the two countries will be crowned with success."

The correspondent sizes up the situation by quoting a well-informed but anonymous source as saying: "It is not certain whether Mr. Hoover and M. Laval will arrive at a definite accord; however, in case of an agreement, it would not be between governments but between two men, each belonging to the government."

Borah Commands Respect.

The special correspondent of Le Journal cabled from Washington:

"Borah is assuredly a curious figure. Physically and morally he bears a great resemblance to William Jennings Bryan. He has a frank expression which, if not disarming, at least commands respect."

Referring to war debts and reparations the writer opines "Borah recognizes the justice of French theses and he admits the United States is greatly interested in the restoration of Europe."

A Washington dispatch to Le Matin asserts: "America does not wish to put even a little finger in the political affairs of Europe. She is afraid of losing her tranquillity. She has not learned the simple truth that if one wishes to practice politicalization it is necessary above everything else to practice economic isolation.

"An amusing paradox is Wall street which so long aided the Republican party to triumph in elections with motto, 'no entanglements,' but is itself so entangled in the affairs of Europe that it will involve the Republican party therein as well."

Alfonso Accused Of High Treason

New Spanish Regime Will Demand His Return From France.

Madrid, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Charges accusing former King Alfonso and the late dictator Primo de Rivera of high treason were drafted today by the government's responsibility commission and will be formally presented to the chamber Tuesday or Wednesday.

Jeronimo Bujeda, Socialist member of the commission, said "when the commission presents its charges it will demand a real prosecution and no farces." If Alfonso does not return from France the commission is prepared to demand confiscation of the remainder of his estates and declare him a fugitive from justice.

Gen. Juan Aizpuru, who was minister of war at the time of De Rivera's coup d'etat, is also listed in the charges, it was learned, on the grounds that secret telegrams recently uncovered showed he aided the general's plans. Although De Rivera has been dead for some time the commission insisted on pressing the accusations against them.

Social Program Today Allows Long Slumber

The comfort of the bed in which Abraham Lincoln slept is believed to be sufficient inducement for a prolonged slumber of Premier Pierre Laval today. He has no item on his program before his luncheon with Secretary Mellon at 1:15 p. m.

The Lincoln bed is one of the largest in the White House and was made especially for the Great Emancipator. It is 9 feet in length by 6 feet in width.

In the evening the premier will go to the home of Secretary Stimson, at Woodley, to be an overnight guest. There will be a stag dinner tonight in his honor at Woodley, and Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William R. Castle, jr., will entertain Mlle. Josee at a dance for the Capital's younger set.

PROSPERITY BASED ON STEEL RECOVERY

J. A. Farrell Says Keys to Trade Situation Rest in Hand of U. S.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The American home market was pictured tonight by James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, as the "pivotal point of trade recovery."

Mr. Farrell, in a speech at the fall banquet of the American Iron and Steel Institute, said the country held the keys to its future largely in its own hands.

"We have the capital, if freed by confidence," he asserted, "for a more vigorous and aggressive policy to make this market the pivotal point of trade recovery. We have an immense consuming capacity and must discover means for increasing consumer demands.

Calls For Restoration.

"We must resolve at all hazards to restore and maintain our standard of living. This calls both for vision and loyal cooperation. There is but one course for us—to pursue the path which in former periods of depression brought us in safety to higher levels of prosperity."

Mr. Farrell said hopes for economic improvement were revived by action taken in banking circles to restore public confidence.

A warning against industrial reorganization that would substitute experiment for experience was voiced by Mr. Farrell.

Cites Social Reform.

"We have among us," he said, "emotional social reformers who with more zeal than knowledge imagine that for every social ill there is an infallible prescription ready to hand.

"The chief danger to be apprehended from the emotional outbreaks is the opening of the door to that policy of 'gradualism' which would lead us by easy stages from our present safe anchorage to that of communism.

"We must guard against legislative changes based upon political expediency and which fail to take account of their permanent effects."

Referring again to competition, he said:

"When competition succeeds, not by means of lowered costs, but by reduced prices which are uneconomic and profitless, we force an artificial decline in commodity prices. This, as economists inform us, leads to a vicious circle with lowered buying power."

While leaders of the industry, headed by Charles M. Schwab, president of the institute, did not attempt to gloss over or evade the fact that the country has been in the throes of a "real depression," they were generally of the opinion that the worst had been seen and that there were now indications of a betterment.

Manner Restrained.

Although Mr. Schwab was somewhat more restrained than usual in his characteristic optimism, he recalled that during his career he had seen a number of serious depressions weathered with the result that the country always emerged more prosperous than before.

"And," he added, "history will repeat itself.

"Fear has been lessened," he said, in expressing his belief that better times were ahead. "There will be no collapse. The sources of credit have been mobilized and we shall pull through. I have seen us pull through too many crises to be overwhelmed by the situation of the past months."

Sentiment was "a little better," Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel, told the meeting, with some consumers already showing signs of taking more interest in their steel requirements. The recent slight gain in commodity prices was looked upon as hopeful.

Low Point Reached.

That the steel industry had seen the low point was the belief of E. T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation.

Thomas M. Girdler, chairman of Republic Steel; L. E. Block, chairman of Inland Steel; George M. Verity, chairman of the American Rolling Mill Co., and L. E. Gohegan, vice president of Gulf States Steel, all expressed the belief that foundations were being laid for improved steel conditions in 1932.

Witness Volunteers Aid To Erlanger Claimant

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A witness who said he volunteered to testify "because no one could accuse me of having any ulterior motive" today told a surrogate's court of his acquaintance with Abraham Erlanger, theatrical producer, and Charlotte Fixel, 46, former chorus girl, whom he knew as "Mrs. Erlanger."

George Alexander Wenbridge, a real estate dealer, said at the hearing on Miss Fixel's claim to part of Erlanger's estate as his common law wife, that he offered to testify after reading a statement by Samuel Untermyer, attorney for Erlanger's estate, that only friends and relatives of Miss Fixel supported her claim.

Thief Dons Clothes From Window.

With winter nearly here, a thief Thursday night completely outfitted himself from the show window of the Federal Clothing Co., at 434 Seventh street northwest. A suit of clothes, an overcoat, four shirts, three pairs of hose, and two neckties were the amount of loot stolen. The total value was placed at $88.50.

MOB STONES HOME OF PARAGUAY HEAD

Government Is Hopeful of Settling Row With Bolivia.

Asuncion, Paraguay, Oct. 23 (A.P.). The home of President Jose Guggiari was stoned today by students protesting the government's policy in the Grand Chaco boundary dispute and martial law was declared until next March.

A number of students and three policemen were injured in considerable disorders.

(Associated Press.)

Bolivian-Paraguayan boundary situation was viewed here last night by some officials as having resolved itself satisfactorily pending projected negotiations.

Paraguay's thanks to the other nineteen American governments for their interest in sending the Chaco principals a cablegram last week urging negotiations of the proposed nonaggression pact and settlement of the basic question were received yesterday. It was the last preliminary immediately foreseen to actual opening of nonaggression conversations here November 11.

Both Bolivia and Paraguay have instructed their delegates to the November negotiations, which probably will be sought to be extended into renewed negotiations of the fundamental boundary dispute itself. Both have replied to the cablegram that represented an unprecedented concert of action by the American republics in a political matter, and which was prompted at the instigation of the five neutrals as a further means of forestalling a repetition of hostilities in the disputed region which might endanger the outcome of the coming negotiations.

Unconfirmed press reports reaching Washington to the effect that such a repetition of clashes as occurred some weeks ago was expected have not been borne out in any official information reaching here. This circumstance has encouraged further those interested in seeing the major remaining boundary dispute of the hemisphere settled.

Yesterday's Paraguayan note expressed confidence that the November negotiations would provide a basis for solution of the dispute. It was Bolivia who suggested the nonaggression agreement originally, a point to which she directed attention in answering the joint cablegram.

Institute in Havana Rocked in Bomb Blast

Havana, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A bomb exploded this evening in the Havana Provincial Institute, a half block from the newspaper Diario de la Marina, in the heart of uptown Havana.

Police, machetes drawn, refused to permit any one to enter the building. Examinations of students, who have been privately instructed since the institute was closed by Presidential decree last year, started yesterday.

The bombing occurred a few hours after Octavio Zubizarreta, Secretary of Interior, announced that police had been ordered to fire on any automobile believed to contain terrorists if their orders to halt were not obeyed.

The secretary's order was the result of frequent bombing outrages in Havana recently.

Confidence Vote Given.

Bogota, Colombia, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—President Enrique Olaya Herrera was more firmly entrenched in office than ever today as a result of a vote of confidence given his government by the Chamber of Deputies. The Chamber voted, 54 to 31, after three days of debate to support the president's financial and political policies.

Siege Partly Lifted.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The state of siege imposed in Argentina September 5, 1930, a day before the revolution which overthrew the Irigoyen regime, will be partly lifted throughout the country November 7 to permit elections on the next day.

Support Is Sought For Hoover in 1932

Mrs. Daugherty Holds That He Has Upheld the Best G. O. P. Tradition.

Active support of President Hoover's renomination and election was asked by Mrs. Harry K. Daugherty, vice president of the League of Republican women at yesterday's noon meeting of the membership committee of the National Capital Republican Club.

Stressing the ned of intelligent political action in the present business depression, Mrs. Daugherty said, "Facing one of the world's greatest emergencies courageously and efficiently, President Hoover has preserved the best traditions of the Nation and the Republican party throughout his period of service."

Tribute was paid to the late Representative Fletcher Hale, of New Hampshire, and Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, of New Jersey, in short addresses by Mrs. Daugherty and Alney E. Chaffee, reading clerk of the House and secretary of the National Capital Republican Club. Mrs. Virginia White Speel, national committeewoman for the District of Columbia, also made a short address. The program for the Young Republican Unit of the club was described by Douglas Whitlock.

Parley Stresses Future for Negro

A public meeting of the National Technical Association was held last night at the Metropolitan African Methodist Episcopal Church with the Bethel Literary and Historical Association as hosts. The association is in three-day convention session at Howard University.

Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, university president, and Charles S. Duke, of Chicago, were the principal speakers, addressing themselves to the unusual possibilities of economic and social advancement for the Negro in America, in the field of engineering, architecture and chemistry.

Delegates to the convention—70 in all—are men who have engaged actively in these fields for several years with marked success.

be held much before January. Under the State's statutes, the probable procedure will be for party leaders to summon caucuses which will elect delegates to State nominating conventions. These nominations by conventions must be made at least 28 days before the election. Candidates might possibly be named by petition or primary, but it is not expected these methods will be used.

The deaths of Hale and Ackerman bring the total of representatives who have died since the November, 1930, elections, to 13, a little more than the annual average. The vacancies caused by deaths this year of representatives from Georgia, New York, Wisconsin and Missouri have been filled in special elections by men of the same party as their predecessors, leaving the line-up unchanged so far.

The result of last November's election gave this line-up: Republicans, 218; Democrats, 216; Farmer-Labor, 1.

Curiously, the Senate, with a similar election division, 48 Republicans, 47 Democrats, and one Farmer-Laborite, and a much higher age average, has had only three deaths since election. The first two deaths, one Republican, one Democrat, came soon after the election. Men of the same party were named to these seats. The seat of the late Senator Dwight Morrow (Republican), of New Jersey, is still vacant, but Gov. Larson is reported about to appoint former Senator Walter E. Edge, who is now Ambassador to Paris. This will preserve the line-up unchanged. The Democrats have had little hope of capturing Senate control. Senator-elect Huey P. Long, Louisiana, has decided to serve out two more years as governor before he comes to the Senate.

$5,000 Campaign Bribe Demand Bared on Stand

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A $5,000 campaign contribution and "certain political conditions" were said today by a witness before the Hofstadter legislative committee to have been the strings a Republican leader attached to a "sure fire" nomination for the Supreme Court bench.

The witness was Edgar F. Hazleton, former municipal court justice. He testified that Warren B. Ashmead, Republican leader of Queens County, told him last July, when he was seeking the nomination, about the necessity of the successful candidate's making a $5,000 campaign fund gift, naming a certain Republican his secretary if elected, and complying with other unnamed conditions.

age rates and the abolition of paper money.

Four out of every five of these plans contemplate increased outlays by the Federal or State treasuries, either in the form of direct subsidies, bonuses or doles, and more than half of them call for immediate bond issues by the National Government to stimulate one industry or another.

Wide Distribution Important.

The wide distribution of the successful corporations, both geographically and in the nature of the business, is regarded by Government officials as one of the most arresting aspects of the new study. Even those lines which were generally hardest hit by the depression came through last year with at least one corporation showing better business in the face of the world storm. When construction was on its back on the Pacific Coast, a San Francisco contracting firm reported larger business in eight scattered months during 1930, as compared with the corresponding period of 1929. Similarly, a great automobile producer, in the face of a decline of more than 25 per cent in the industry's gross sales, increased the percentage of its own registrations in six out of the twelve months. A study of thousands of such experiences, Commerce Department officials believe, might indicate far-reaching adjustments in business methods applicable on a national scale.

Special attention is being given the various methods now in operation throughout the country for stabilizing production within individual industries—apparently on the conviction that if employment in Portland, Jacksonville, Los Angeles and intermediate points can be stabilized, American economy will move on a more even keel.

Innocent Cripple Killed By Policeman, Is Claim

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Cowboys contesting in the Madison Square Garden rodeo alleged today that Patrolman John Quigley killed an innocent and crippled man when he shot Owen Crosby, of Carlsbad, N. M., during an argument over a 15-cent taxi fare.

Bill Wright, of San Angelo, Tex., and Everett Colburn, of Blackfoot, Idaho, witnesses, said Crosby was a bystander. Joe Rock and Bob Walden, both of Fort Worth, Tex., are the cowboys alleged to have refused to pay the bill. Rock, 20, was arraigned on a charge of felonious assault and held under $2,000 bail.

U. S. ACTS TO HOLD BACK NEW COTTON

Puts 8-Cent Value on That Accepted as Collateral for Crop Loans.

The Government yesterday placed an average value of 8 cents a pound on cotton accepted as collateral for crop loans to provide Southern farmers with additional money.

This action was taken by the Agriculture Department to encourage holding the new harvest from already glutted markets and to release part of the crop mortgaged to the Government for the purchase of necessities and payment of taxes and other debts.

Millions of dollars were loaned in the South last spring to assist the farmer in replanting his fields after the 1930 drought. Heretofore the department has accepted cotton as security at current prices which now range between 6 and 7 cents. It has warehouse receipts on about 10,000 bales.

Price Increase Expected.

A general market price increase as a result of this arrangement is expected by George L. Hoffman, chief of the farmer's seed loan office. He said he believed few farmers who have Federal loans would dispose of their cotton under the new plan.

The South is harvesting the second largest cotton crop in history. Besides the cotton which may be stored as a result of the department's plan, the Farm Board and Southern bankers recently agreed to finance the holding of 7,000,000 bales.

Cotton of middling 7-8 grade and staple will be accepted at 8 cents a pound. In areas where much of the crop normally is shorter than 7-8-inch, the basis will be 7½ cents on middling 13-16-inch. Premiums, however, will be given on longer staple or better grades.

Department Reservation.

Borrowers who store their cotton will be required to deliver warehouse receipts on sufficient cotton to provide collateral for their loans. The department reserved the right, however, to withdraw the offer at any time or to establish a different basis because of changed conditions.

When the cotton is finally sold the borrower will be credited with the proceeds of the sale. In the event the proceeds are not sufficient to pay the full amount of the loan the remainder will remain as an obligation of the borrower. If, however, there is a surplus above the loan and interest, it will be paid to the farmer or to other creditors.

When Washington Was Younger—No. 84

THOSE who remember the Washington of a few years ago will no doubt have a great time locating spots on it which they recall. The photograph, taken from the south side of Pennsylvania avenue, just east of Fourteenth street, shows a number of places which have since disappeared.

It will be noticed that the Munsey Building, next door to The Washington Post now, had not been erected and that farther up the Avenue, at Fifteenth street, the Washington Hotel had not yet made its appearance in the downtown skyline.

A number of the smaller buildings along E street and Pennsylvania avenue then housed famous dining rooms and gathering places for the "men about town." Compare this picture with the same view today and see how many changes you can see.

Air Rifle Shot Hits Boy; May Lose Eye

Edward Lightner, 8, Victim of Carelessly Handled Gun Near His Home.

A carelessly handled air rifle in the hands of a playmate may cost Edward E. Lightner, 8 years old, of 1314 Thirty-sixth street northwest, the sight of his left eye, physicians at Georgetown Hospital said last night.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Lightner, told physicians that he was leaning over the back fence of his home yesterday watching Joseph Hurdle, 11, of 1312 Thirty-sixth street northwest, and another playmate, Paul Collins, 8 years old, of 3617 O street northwest, toying with the gun.

The Hurdle boy suddenly swung the gun around, and it was accidently discharged, the injured boy said. The shot struck him squarely in the eye, and he fell to the ground, screaming in pain. His parents hurried him to the hospital. Physicians said the pupil of the eye was badly injured and feared that he would lose the sight of it.

Statesmanship Eclipsed By Flashing Josette's Eyes

By JOHN J. DALY

Great confusion attended the arrival of the Premier of France in New York.

In the introductions, the French Ambassador was presented as the premier; the premier was mistaken for the American Secretary of State; the Secretary passed along as the President of the United States, and Mayor Jimmy Walker went looking for Al Smith, who was not recognized without his brown derby.

Naturally, the French correspondents accompanying the premier's party to America wondered what happened. The explanation is simple. The Premier of France brought with him his beautiful young daughter, Josette.

• • • •

SELDOM does American chivalry fail. Josette, cynosure of all eyes, threw the welcoming party into confusion. The same thing happened in Washington. When the distinguished party reached the Nation's Capital, at the most important step of the journey, even diplomacy gave way as the beauty of Josette, like that of Helen, recalled those Nicean barks of yore. Again the Premier of France took second place, until he went to the White House without Josette.

There was a dinner at the White House, with 86 guests, representative of the great minds of two nations—France and America. At the same time, there was a dance at the French Embassy.

Who wanted to attend the dinner?
Nobody.
Who wanted to go to the dance?
Everybody.

Josette was there, tripping the light fantastic.

Some somber editorials will be written about the forgetfulness of the New York reception committee. The master of ceremonies, unable to keep his eyes off the charming young girl of France, broke into rhapsody, reciting poetry, welcoming the visitors.

Thus, the introduction:

Josette, Josette,
Within your eyes
I see all France in glory rise,
A fleeting glimpse of Paradise,
Josette!
And yet, Josette,
While I'd adore
To pay you homage evermore
I must not, welcoming to this shore,
Forget!
Forget, Josette,
Upon my lyre
To strum the song of an empire
Whose mission's headed by your sire,
Josette!
Well met, Josette!
While music plays
"Star-Spangled Banner," "Marseillaise,"
We welcome Pere Laval with praise,
Josette!

• • • •

ALL this may not be statesmanship, but it is romance. So, what of it? With a song in his heart, the distraught official welcomer of celebrities to this shore expressed the national soul; enthralled by the beauty of the flashing French eyes.

If the master of ceremonies departed from the ordinary routine it must be remembered that he is usually confronted with mere ocean flyers, channel swimmers, heavyweight champions and lecturer-down-and-out authors coming over to recuperate their fortunes.

Of course, it was to be expected that the keys of New York City would be given to the Premier of France. Instead, they were handed to his daughter, Josette, just as the City of Washington is presented to one who is the personification of La Belle France.

Vive la France!
Vive Josette!

Civic Associations Make Nominations

Three Positions on Executive Committee and Council to Be Filled.

Nominations for three positions on the executive committee and advisory council which will succeed the citizens' legislative advisory council were completed last night at a meeting of the Federation of Civic Associations in the board room at the District Building. They include William A. Joiner, William H. Lewis, Maj. Howard D. Queen, Dr. George H. Richardson, Woolsey W. Hall and J. A. G. LuValle.

The committee on rules for election made recommendations governing selection of delegates to the executive committee at the November meeting of the federation. The rules provided that the election of officers of the federation should precede election of delegates to the council, and that the elected president of the federation should be ex-officio delegate to the council, leaving two to be chosen by the subsequent election.

George T. Beason was named judge of the elections. Corinne E. Martin and J. C. Payne were named as clerks, and George W. Beasley and Charles G. Young as tellers. Balloting will begin at 9 o'clock, no proxies being admitted.

NAVY DAY SPEECHES PLACED UNDER CURB

Theodore Roosevelt's birthday anniversary, under auspices of the Navy League. Admiral Upham this year was the league's chairman of the Navy Day committee.

Following the caution against appearing to oppose the President, the original communication said:

"This should in no way restrict speakers in presenting to their audiences the broad general picture of the need for a Navy, the functions of a Navy, or the effect that might accrue from the failure to maintain a Navy of adequate size."

It also observed that while it was not not wished to curtail individual initiative, the united effort would be more efficacious in obtaining results, therefore the suggestions. The speakers were urged to quote Senators Reed and Robinson on "the need to keep up our status quo to treaty levels, if we are to avoid serious handicaps in future armaments conferences."

Officers Elected By War Mothers

Mrs. Lena Phillips Chosen President; Donations Made to Home.

The District of Columbia Chapter of the American War Mothers elected the following officers for the ensuing year at their regular session at the Hotel Hamilton last night: Mrs. Lena Phillips, president; Mrs. Roscoe L. Oatley, first vice president; Mrs. Lucy Cash, second vice president; Mrs. Eudora Shehan, third vice president; Mrs. Mary Simmons, fourth vice president; Mrs. M. C. O'Neill, recording secretary; Mrs. Emma Pairo, corresponding secretary; Mrs. C. B. Donch, chaplain; Mrs. Mary L. Oatley, custodian of records; Mrs. Mary T. Shanahan, treasurer, and Mrs. Fannie Smith, historian.

Mrs. Cash, Mrs. Shehan and Mrs. Smith are Gold Star mothers and the others are Blue Star mothers.

Mrs. Eleanor C. Wagner, the retiring recording secretary, was the originator of the idea for an American War Mothers National headquarters and home in the District of Columbia. Action was discussed to have the house at 1527 New Hampshire avenue, that has been designated as the headquarters and home, repaired and put in immediate condition for occupancy. The chapter's original donation of $1,000 for the home was increased at the meeting last night by many individual subscriptions.

The national service flag will be raised on the Capitol as usual on Armistice Day morning at 10 o'clock under the auspices of the American War Mothers.

DR. MEAD ANALYZES RAILROAD EARNINGS

Most of Revenues Are to Be Contributed by Coal and Iron Traffic.

The following analysis of the effect on the various railroads of the Interstate Commerce Commission's freight rate proposal was prepared for the Associated Press by Dr. Edward S. Mead, professor of finance of the Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania:

By DR. EDWARD S. MEAD.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—An analysis of railway earnings, in the light of the proposal of the Interstate Commerce Commission to assist railroads whose earning power has been severely impaired, shows that the Southern and Western roads will receive most of the relief, if the plan is accepted. The contributions will come, in large part, from Eastern roads.

Most of the additional revenues, estimated by the commission at from $100,000,000 to $125,000,000, will be contributed by coal and ore traffic.

Deficiency Fund.

The railroads, which will receive relief, under the plan of the commission, are those which will not earn their fixed charges in 1931. Mere failure to earn fixed charges does not, of course, indicate insolvency. Many of these roads have resources upon which they can draw to make up deficiency in earnings. The possession of such resources will not exclude them from the benefits of the commission's plan.

Of peculiar interest, at this time, are the names of the prospective beneficiaries of the commission's project. It is impossible to say, until the completion of the calendar year, which roads will fail to earn their fixed charges. However, a forecast was presented before the Interstate Commerce Commission on July 10, 1931, by the emergency committee on railroad investments of life insurance companies and mutual savings banks.

Taking the earnings for the first four months of 1931 as a basis, and applying the average percentage earnings for the preceding seven years, the committee presented a table showing the percentage of their fixed charges which a large number of roads might be expected to earn for 1931.

According to this table the following are the principal roads which are not expected to earn their fixed charges in 1931, and will therefore be entitled to the benefits of the Interstate Commerce Commission's plan, if adopted:

Bessemer & Lake Erie; Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh; Chicago & Eastern Illinois; Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville; Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific; Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha; Colorado & Southern; Elgin, Joliet & Eastern; Illinois Central; Indianapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie; Mobile & Ohio; Pere Marquette; St. Louis Southwestern; Wabash; Western Pacific.

Hold Advance Rates.

This line has not been substantially altered by the published returns of the second four months of 1931. These companies, if the insurance committee's forecast of their earnings proves to be accurate, will, under the commission's plan, retain for themselves the revenues arising out of the advanced rates allowed. To the extent that these additional revenues do not increase their earnings to equal their fixed charges they will receive, from the proceeds of the rate advances collected by the railroads which earn their fixed charges, sufficient funds to meet their revenue needs.

The second group of roads which will figure in the commission's plan comprise those which earn their fixed charges. These roads will collect, but will not keep the proceeds of the rate advances suggested by the commission.

So much of these proceeds as is necessary for the purpose will be disbursed to the members of the first class. Any surplus remaining will be returned to the contributors as their own property. This relief fund, if the plan is adopted, will be principally contributed by the following large companies:

Atlantic Coast Line, Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; Baltimore & Ohio, Boston & Maine, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy; Central Railroad of New Jersey, Chesapeake & Ohio, Chicago Great Western, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific; Chicago & Northwestern, Delaware & Hudson, Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, Erie, Great Northern, Lehigh Valley, Louisville & Nashville, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, New York, Chicago & St. Louis; New York, New Haven & Hartford; Norfolk & Western, Northern Pacific, Pennsylvania Railroad, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, Reading Co., Southern Pacific, Texas & Pacific, St. Louis-San Francisco Lines, Union Pacific, Virginian Railway, Western Maryland.

Third Classification.

The commission made a third classification of railroads, those in receivership whose bonds are in default, or which derive their revenues mainly from passenger traffic. This group includes the Seaboard Air Line, the Florida East Coast and the Minneapolis and St. Louis, of companies in receivership. The Long Island Railroad is among the solvent corporations in this class.

The commission feels that its plan, if put into effect, will yield sufficient funds to guarantee the solvency of the railroads of the United States, except only those railroads whose bonds are now in default. The plan proposes that shippers and consumers of certain products shall contribute to pay the interest on railroad bonds which might otherwise be in danger. The contributing railroads are only the disbursing agents of a gigantic charity.

Man, Found on Curb, Hit-Run Taxi Victim

Found sitting, dazed and in a semi-conscious condition, on the curb at Seventeenth and K streets northwest, Ward Nichols, of 4439 Harrison street northwest, was taken to the Emergency Hospital last night and treated for lacerations of the head after being struck by a hit-and-run taxicab.

Nichols was knocked down at the intersection of Connecticut avenue and K street. The taxicab sped on its way, but persons on the sidewalk noted its tag numbers and police immediately broadcast a lookout to pick up the driver.

RAILWAY OFFICIALS END FALL MEETING

Aggressive Efforts Will Be Made to Obtain Bus Regulations.

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Determined to make aggressive efforts to obtain interstate regulation of bus, waterway and pipe line competition, the Association of American Railway Executives closed its annual fall meeting today.

There was no official statement as to how such regulation will be sought, but executives explained that they expected to push the Parker bill or similar legislation for bus regulation and that legislation on waterways and pipe lines of similar nature might be expected.

Topic Is Discussed.

Though the association did not consider further the Interstate Commerce Commission's freight rate increase plan whereby increased revenues would be pooled for the benefit of weaker roads, it was still the topic of unofficial conversation.

Executives were understood to feel they had a right to expect favorable action from the commission since the earnings would be used as the commission desired, the only changes being that the railroads would direct disposition of the funds and would lend, not give, them.

Early conferences with the commission by the association's advisory committee were expected. The advisory committee may report back to another full meeting of the association within a week. No dates for the conference have been set.

Plan Is a Dummy.

Interpretations that the association has accepted the commission's plan merely as a dummy with the expectation the commission would object to it, and that rail chiefs then might initiate a wage cut movement were vigorously denied in many quarters.

An executive said the commission's plan was the best available means for protecting earnings; that if adopted, bankers likely would feel safer about rail bonds and would lend more freely; that wages should be cut only as the very last resort.

Bus regulation sought comprises three principal points: That all buses be required to show they are necessary to the public interest; that adequate financial statements be published; that the Interstate Commerce Commission be empowered to revoke bus licenses in the public interest.

Employes on G. M. & N. Will Take Wage Slash

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Officers of the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad announced today they had received indications that at least as many of the line's employes as took a voluntary pay cut of 10 per cent for three months would agree to a similar reduction for the next three months.

An appeal for an extension of the pay reduction period was made to employes by the management.

Officers of the road said 94 per cent of their employes, exclusive of train service forces, accepted the cut during July, August and September. Employes affiliated with the four train service brotherhoods participated to the extent of 17 per cent. Figures were unavailable on the individual percentage of the brotherhoods.

Alleged Slayers of Zuta Win Extradition Appeal

Springfield, Ills., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Danny Stanton and Edgar Smith, charged with the murder at Delafield, Wis., of Jack Zuta, August 1, 1930, won an appeal to the Supreme Court today, and consequently will not be returned to the State of Wisconsin for trial. Their detention in Chicago was based on one of Col. Calvin Goddard's ballistic tests.

A revolver was found in their automobile and they were held on charges of carrying concealed weapons. Subsequently Col. Goddard compared bullets fired from the revolver with bullets taken from Zuta's body and reported they had been fired by the same revolver.

Wife Beater Under $500 Bond.

Appealing a $25 fine imposed on him for beating his wife, Augustus Chaney, of Forestville, was placed under bond of $500 in Marlboro Police Court yesterday. Chaney was convicted of assault and battery on his wife, Annie.

CHURCHES TO HEAR APOSTOLIC LETTER

Pope's Appeal for Aid in Crusade for Jobless to Be Read Nov. 1.

At the request of Archbishop Curley, Pope Pius' Apostolic Letter appealing to Catholics throughout the world to take part in the crusade on the part of the poor and the unemployed, will be read in all churches of the archdiocese on Sunday, November 1, the Feast of All Saints.

Archbishop Curley has designated All Saint's Day, feeling that the date is especially appropriate for such an appeal. It is significant that this day is the eve of All Souls' Day, on which the church brings home to her children the communion that exists between the suffering souls of purgatory and people on the earth.

It is a day which celebrates unity, and the appeal of the Pope, which will be read in the churches, calls for the unity of the hearts of Catholics of the world in the campaign to alleviate the sufferings of the distressed. The pontiff's letter has already won editorial praise of secular papers, and it has been commended by the Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York and by the clergy of other religious denominations. It shows the Holy Father's deep paternal love and it preaches the virtue which Christ himself taught—charity.

Archbishop Curley hopes the people of the archdiocese will listen attentively to the inspiring words of the Pope. He hopes they will meditate on Pius' appeal and be prompted to do all within their power to help their brethren who are suffering. Last week it was reported that the archbishop was worried by the plight of those who are victims of the unemployment situation. He has said that he sees distress everywhere he turns, and because of the trying times he has issued a call to the Catholics of this area to contribute generously to the collection which will be taken up for the poor Catholics on December 13.

A quarter of a million dollars is needed to carry out the program and it is hoped that a goodly percentage of this sum will be raised on the day of the collection.

Deputy School Head Discusses Personality

Development of the personality and character of children is a cooperative duty in which the home, school, church, State and community should participate, Miss Jessie LaSalle, assistant superintendent of schools, declared Thursday night in the first of a series of lectures on "Growth of Personality and Character" at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church.

Miss LaSalle showed that character and personality is the result of an interplay of forces that a child encounters after emerging into life. The most important of these forces are environment and situations, she said. The lecturer blamed the unstable condition of many modern homes for the poor development of some children. She recommended development of purpose, moral judgment and native tendencies as contributory factors to character.

Tomorrow is St. Paul's day at the Lutheran Home for the Aged. The vesper service at 3 o'clock will be in charge of Dr. Snyder, who will talk on the subject, "The Man for the Mission," and special music will be furnished by a group of St. Paul's members. THE WORLD'S BUSINESS.

Coincident with the beginning of the Hoover-Laval conversations comes the news of a forward move toward adjustment of the Manchurian controversy. Japan and China seem to be nearly ready for direct conferences which should result in a peaceable adjustment of their differences.

The world can not but be reassured and hopeful when the nations frankly grapple with their difficulties, all of them cooperating in an effort to work out mutual plans for the betterment of mankind. When President Hoover and Premier Laval meet, it is as if Europe and America were meeting. Discordant voices may be raised on each side of the ocean, but nevertheless the two strongest governments in the world are brought into close contact, and if understandings should be arrived at they may be expected to become effective in spite of minorities, because neither Mr. Hoover nor M. Laval will enter upon fantastic adventures. They know their respective limitations and are in possession of more and better information than is possessed by volunteer advisers.

Many gentlemen yearning for the limelight may try to pose as the spokesmen of America, but fortunately the conduct of the foreign relations of the United States is concentrated in the President, and until he had made known his decisions it is idle for others to outline the policy of the United States. If Premier Laval should attach weight to the outgivings of all the distinguished but irresponsible "spokesmen" of America he would lose valuable time. The French correspondents must have material for their dispatches, but they, too, may discriminate between authentic news and interesting rumor.

LATIN-AMERICAN FINANCE.

More than one-third of the American capital invested abroad is in Latin America. Private investments in Europe from this country amount to $4,929,277,000, while they total $5,243,986,000 in the southern republics. Of this sum, according to a recent survey by the Grace Line, $1,500,000,000 represents loans to governments, while the balance constitutes capital invested in mines, plantations, utilities and commercial and industrial enterprises that are in virtually every case owned and managed by Americans. In no other group of countries, therefore, does American capital play so important a role.

In a number of cases a misconception has arisen as to the source of these funds. Latin Americans, in some instances, have regarded the lenders as large banking institutions with great reservoirs of money that can be easily drawn upon. It is, however, the people of this country who have advanced these funds through purchase of foreign bonds, and it is these private individuals who suffer when the debtor nations default. Efforts to protect the financial structure of the borrowers will inevitably benefit the large number of American bondholders.

The present program of financial relief is intended to allay distrust and stabilize credit. Despite moratoria in several republics of South America, the banks of these countries have been soundly organized by Prof. E. W. Kemmerer, of Princeton, and have maintained a high reserve of gold which has protected the currency against fluctuation. Great Britain's abandonment of the gold standard adversely affected these banks, but they are making a gallant fight. Many of them deserve the cooperation of American banking interests, especially of the Federal Reserve System.

In their own behalf the central banks of South America are already active, and those of Chile, Bolivia, Colombia, Ecuador and Peru have been invited to hold a conference at Lima, in which the Federal Reserve Bank of New York has been asked to participate. Argentina's example in handling her finances is especially praiseworthy. Facing the maturity of a $50,000,000 debt to New York, she raised a large currency loan and shipped $25,000,000 in gold to this country without incurring a disastrous restriction of circulation. Short-term notes were issued to cover the balance.

Such actions prove the capacity of the Latin-American republics to help themselves. With the return of faith and the assistance of American financial institutions, the credit of these nations will be restored and the development of their vast natural resources will again be carried forward.

RAILROAD COOPERATION.

The Association of Railway Executives showed a commendable spirit of cooperation in their decision to negotiate with the Interstate Commerce Commission for arrangement of a pool to stabilize the credit of weaker roads. Refusal of the commission to grant the carriers a 15 per cent increase in freight rates was a severe disappointment. Nevertheless, the great railway systems have agreed to forego any immediate improvement of their own positions in order to help smaller roads that are not able to meet their fixed obligations.

Foremost among the reasons why the commission did not allow the proposed blanket increase was its conviction that higher rates would play into the hands of the railroads' competitors. In spite of this fact, the commission asked the railroads to agree to higher rates on some commodities, the revenue thus raised to be put into a pool for use by the weaker lines. This plan includes the double disadvantage of higher rates with no increase in revenue for the large systems. In view of that fact many authorities immediately concluded that the railroads would never consent to enter such a pool.

But the railway executives regarded the situation from a broad viewpoint. They realized that if the weaker roads defaulted, it would reflect upon all railway property. In an emergency of this kind the strong units can not go their own way, leaving the unprofitable lines to struggle alone with their problems, without bringing misfortunes upon themselves. The executives have demonstrated remarkable vision in deciding to pull together.

This promise of cooperation is contingent, however, upon a most important modification of the Interstate Commerce Commission's plan. As outlined by that body the revenue from the proposed higher rates would go to the weaker roads as a gift. The executives insist that this money should be considered as a loan to be repaid to the pool before the borrowing lines could pay any dividends on their stock.

The legality of pooling revenue from special rates for the benefit of one class of railroads is open to question. Certainly it is unfair to the carriers that have, through efficient management and economy, maintained a sound financial position. Stability during this critical period may be obtained by lending the pool funds as well as by giving them to roads whose credit is in jeopardy. It is to be hoped that the commission will find a way to accept the principle of the railroads' substitute proposal, and that negotiations will be closed at an early date. A recovery of business will doubtless put the railroads upon a profitable basis.

GEORGE WASHINGTON BRIDGE.

The dream of three-quarters of a century will be realized today when the largest bridge in the world is dedicated. The George Washington Bridge, which will connect New York with the neighboring State of New Jersey across the Hudson, has been completed in four and a half years at the cost of $60,000,000. This great achievement, finished six months ahead of schedule, is a tribute not only to engineering skill, but also to the cooperation of two States.

Ten years ago these States agreed to a joint control of New York Harbor through a common agency free from political impediments, known as the Port of New York Authority. The crowning accomplishment of that body is the new bridge which has been named for the first President of the United States. The bridge, with its approaches, is nearly 2 miles long. A tower, higher than the Washington Monument, rises on each side of the Hudson. Between them stretches the span, 3,500 feet long, about two-thirds of a mile, which is supported by four cables, each a yard in diameter. From these cables, made up of 26,474 separate strands, are suspended rows of perpendicular steel ropes that support a paved roadway wide enough for eight traffic lanes. For the present, however, only four lanes are to be used.

The capacity of the bridge will be 30,000,000 vehicles annually, with provision for twice that number when another floor is made beneath the present runway. It is expected that 8,000,000 vehicles will use the bridge the first year. This will alleviate the pressure on the other crossings, which last year transported 25,000,000 vehicles. Half of this number used the Holland Tunnel under the river and the rest employed the various ferries.

Toll charges will in time pay the entire cost of this magnificent new bridge. Pleasure cars will pay 50 cents, motor buses $1 and truck charges will be according to a sliding scale. Pedestrians who walk the 2-mile span will pay 10 cents.

WOMEN CONTROL WEALTH.

One-half of the wealth of the United States is at present in the hands of women, as ascertained by the statistical department of a large investment banking firm. About four years ago only 41 per cent of the individual wealth of the country was controlled by women. This survey, moreover, tells only part of the story, as it does not take into account the large number of women who legally own nothing, but have allowances and yet spend the greater part of the family income. Then, too, there are the direct wages of the 8,500,000 women gainfully employed.

There are $95,000,000,000 worth of insurance policies in this country, of which 80 per cent make women the beneficiaries. Of the estates left by men, 70 per cent are inherited by women, and of the estates left by women, 64 per cent are willed to other women. It is not surprising, therefore, to find that income tax reports show about as many women millionaires as men. In New York City it was found that 139 women were taxed on incomes in excess of $500,000 as against 123 men, while 44 women had incomes in excess of $1,000,000 as compared with 42 men.

In discussing the independence of American women in the current issue of the Atlantic Monthly, Alber Jay Nock suggests that women are free in proportion to their economic position. As possessions have always meant power to man, so they have to woman. Efforts of feminism have never been, strictly speaking, in behalf of the rights of women, but in behalf of the rights of poor women. All through the ages women of financial independence have gone into the field of man's work, and with the possible exception of Joan of Arc, their success has been influenced by their economic standing.

Today American women exert far-reaching influence over education, the church, forum, publishing, drama, music, painting and sculpture. A variety of explanations is offered for the phenomenon, yet up to the present there has been little credit given to the increased financial power which the women of the United States have come to possess.

PRISON REFORMS.

Among numerous reports and observations on the American prison system, one of the most important is that of Alexander Paterson, commissioner of English prisons, who spent several months last winter on a tour of inspection in this country. On a number of points his opinions are similar to those of the Wickersham Commission, especially in his criticism of prison staffs. They are generally, he found, underpaid, inadequately trained and subject to appointment and removal for political reasons. As a result of inefficient management prisons foster crime. "County jails," Mr. Paterson says, "are nurseries of crime and cesspools of degradation."

The British prison expert found men serving five to ten years in these demoralizing institutions. Most prisons are overcrowded and immorality is furthered by this as well as by the lack of employment. The American prisoner becomes really tough and can hate as few English prisoners know how to hate. This situation could be relieved, Mr. Paterson believes, if employment were available and visiting workers and teachers were provided.

In one institution Mr. Paterson watched a clerk check in twenty newcomers, nineteen of whom, he estimated, would have been dealt with in England under the probation act, or by the imposition of fines. Yet, on the other hand, many notorious criminals nationally known as malefactors are not apprehended and continue free to enjoy their illegal gains.

Reform is often slow in a democracy, but once the public is aroused to the situation it will inevitably move toward a betterment of conditions. The prisons have long been a reproach to this country, but improvement is already under way in many States and a revision of old ideas is preparing the way for further desirable reforms.

Premier Laval's daughter wants to be like an American girl, but personally we don't think she can drink the stuff.

THE JAPANESE SIDE

By T. SCOTT MIYAKAWA, in the New York Herald Tribune.

So fraught with a potential danger to the world is the present Manchurian crisis that it is imperative to understand both sides. * * *

The immediate causes of the difficulty arose from the years of provocation and aggravation on the part of the Chinese. While they demand their rights vociferously, they are strangely silent on the Wanpaoshan incident, with its outrageous brutalities. Instead of replying to the questions by the Japanese consulates concerning such cases as the Namba incident, the cold-blooded murder of Capt. Nakamura and his entire party, the murder of not merely scores, but hundreds of Japanese subjects, the robbing and the illegal ousting of thousands of others, and the frequent obstruction to the traffic of the South Manchurian Railroad, the Chinese authorities had resorted to denials, evasions and supine delays. Had the victims been Americans perhaps we would have had a "big job" for Gen. Butler and his marines—only far sooner.

In the midst of this strained situation came the destruction of the South Manchurian Railroad tracks near Mukden by 400 Chinese troops belonging to the Peitaying barracks, in the northern suburb of Mukden. This led to an exchange of fire between the Japanese guards and the Chinese.

The Japanese military authorities, alarmed at the report of these clashes, next morning disarmed the Chinese troops in several localities. They knew that extreme danger existed to the hundreds of thousands of Japanese residents who were constantly menaced by the Chinese troops, who outnumbered them more than 10 to 1. In many cases as soon as possible the Japanese were and are being withdrawn to the larger cities to prevent any unnecessary aggravation.

Yet, even now the number of the Japanese troops is less than the 15,000 allowed by the treaty. The troops outside of the railroad area are few. Their work chiefly has been that of rescue. A specific example is the incident on October 2, when a group of 700 Chinese composed of bandits and disorganized troops attacked Newchwan. Alarmed by the impending danger, the Chinese authorities of the neighboring city of Haicheng called for the assistance of the Japanese troops. Because of the menace to the 25 Japanese residents in Newchwan, a company of Japanese guards and five policemen were dispatched from Tashihchiao. They returned the same day, escorting the Japanese refugees. Lo and behold, this incident was enlarged by the press as an example of the "occupation of a Chinese territory by the Japanese troops!" Similar events may be cited, but in each case the military have returned or are returning to the treaty areas as soon as the endangered subjects could be or can be in a safe position. Yet, these are the examples held by the propagandists as the "outrageous evidences of Japanese invasion."

Unfortunately, however exaggerated or baseless these rumors may be, the impression is made on the American minds. A careful survey of the present stand will reveal that Japan has not asked for more concessions. The government has sought direct negotiations throughout. Moreover, the Japanese authorities have forbidden any of their officials, whether military or civil, even to give advice to any one connected with the absurd move to make Manchuria independent of China proper. As far as possible the private citizens are discouraged from any participation in such movements.

TINY FOES.

The kingbird terrifies the crow,
And though he's but a tiny foe,
The larger warrior, inky black,
Flees coward-like from the attack.

The crow his abject fear reveals,
Despite his greater size and might,
Thus challenged he resorts to flight.

Man laughs so strange a sight to see.
"Go to it, little bird!" cries he,
As if 'twere only hulking crows
Who are beset by tiny foes.

Still every frail mosquito can
Upset the poise of mighty man;
And terror-stricken he will flee
From germs that are too small to see.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Flapper Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY dear Louise: Fifty years ago middle-class parents in America were uniformly eager to get their daughters "married off" young. Once past 18 a daughter began to be an economic liability; five years later her inability to win a husband was almost a family disgrace. But it was dread of another form of disgrace that made parents such eager advocates of early marriage. A husband—even an unloved husband—made a girl "safe."

Many modern students of the sex problem advocate early marriage for the same reason. Their theory is that the small boy's tendency to steal should be overcome by making theft legal. If modern youth, unschooled in self-restraint, is unwilling to preserve its chastity while waiting for marriage, the thing to do is to humor it by encouraging some form of experimental marriage that will make immorality respectable!

The modern theory, it seems to me, is no less insulting than the secret fears of old-fashioned parents. Both are based on the assumption that girls haven't character enough to keep their virtue intact if matrimony is long delayed.

I mention these matters only to explain that I have no share in them. If you must support a candidate who is the choice of gamblers it is well to explain that you favor him only because of his honesty and ability. I favor early marriage, but not for any reason that would shame youth.

I believe people should marry young, as they should choose a career in youth, because an early marriage increases their chance to make a success of it.

The happiest married people I ever knew were those who chose one another as sweethearts in their school days and had no other experience of love.

It is only in youth that love is blind. Each passing year makes it more discriminating, more difficult to awaken, less capable of unselfish devotion.

The most unhappy of people are those who hunger to love and be loved and yet can find no one who seems worthy of their adoration. Believe me, my dear, it is no easy matter to find a perfect man or woman after you reach 30. By the time your judgment is good enough to pick an ideal mate you have lost the imagination that makes imperfect people seem ideal.

You still seem a kid to me, but I'd rather see you fall head-over-heels in love and marry some clean, young hustler when you're 21 than to wait ten years and marry the greatest and richest man in the country. Any dessert seems commonplace when your appetite is gone. Love, DAD.

No Security Pact.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Premier Laval is said to have left France under strict orders from the leaders of the Chamber of Deputies not to surrender a single French rifle or a single French franc—to promise nothing about disarmament or revision of reparations payments. But there have been intimations that these orders contained a rather large "if." If, according to these intimations, the United States will consider some sort of security pact for France, M. Laval will be able to talk about reparations and disarmament.

It was in 1919 that Woodrow Wilson signed, along with Lloyd George and Clemenceau, a treaty whereby the United States was bound to come to the assistance of France in case of unprovoked aggression by Germany. That treaty never was brought to a vote in the American Senate. It was pigeonholed by the Foreign Relations Committee and is still there.

Considerable resentment was caused in France by such treatment accorded to a favorite French idea. But this idea of a security pact has become a pivot of French diplomacy so far as the United States is concerned. The French have returned to it time and again. But apparently rejection of this idea has become pivotal in American diplomatic relations with France. There has been no indication that either nation has changed its policy in this regard.

Action on the St. Lawrence.

New York Herald Tribune.

That the United States and Canada have entered into formal negotiations looking to a treaty on the St. Lawrence waterway is a notable tribute to the persistence of both President Hoover and Premier Bennett in coming to grips with a very thorny and long-drawn-out problem. According to E. C. Buchanan, the well posted writer in Toronto's Saturday Night, the two heads of government are so far in accord that they have decided that the project may be proceeded with and have formally set machinery in motion to work out the details of agreement.

The Canadian Minister at Washington, Maj. Herridge, and the American Minister at Ottawa, Col. MacNider, should be commended. Col. MacNider was sent to Ottawa for the express purpose of "getting action" on the waterways project. Like the good soldier that he is, he has accomplished his mission. Owing in large part to his efforts, one may expect to see a clearly defined project laid before the public, where only vagueness existed before.

Better Marketing Methods Needed to Give Farmer Better Returns—Distributors Get the Profits.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I note that the Secretary of Agriculture blames the uneconomic use of land for the present depression. The farmer's trouble is not with the improper use of land, but in a large measure is due to the artificial barriers which have been built up in the channels of trade.

Some years ago, a congressman made an investigation of the market situation in Washington and found that there was a 100 per cent increase in prices between the wholesale and the retail side of the market. The farmers have been doing the work and the distributors have been getting the profits.

In the territory along the Potomac land can be bought at $20 per acre and sometimes less, while at the same time the Government pours out money by the millions in irrigation projects to reclaim waste desert land.

We do not need the development of any more land; what we need is such control of marketing as will insure to the farmer a fair proportion of the ultimate sale price to the consumer, and such prices to the consumer as will promote the greatest consumption of farm products. OBSERVER.

Interstate Commerce Commission Is Accused of Inconsistency in Freight Rate Decision.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the transportation act is a provision known as the recapture clause, which provides that revenues over a certain percentage of the property investment shall be pooled and used to help the weaker roads. The commission, like everybody else, has recently realized the unfairness of this provision and has recommended to Congress its repeal. Notwithstanding this, the commission, in its rate decision, provided that the measly increase which it allowed should be pooled, just as in the recapture clause provision, and distributed to the weaker roads. If the recapture provision of the transportation act is unwise and unsound, as it is universally admitted to be, on what ground does the commission attempt to justify its present stand?

Any such provision is an affront to the integrity of the railroad officials of the Nation, and it is to be hoped that they will flatly refuse to agree to any such pooling arrangement. This would, of course, mean that the little increase, so grudgingly granted and all tied up with strings, would not be made, but it would serve to crystallize public opinion and hasten the abolishment of the commission. A VIRGINIAN.

Pinchot and Congress Progressives Preparing to Block Hoover's Prosperity Plans.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I notice that Gov. Pinchot paid a visit to the leading demagogues of the Senate and refused to divulge what was planned at their meeting. Knowing Pinchot's ambition to be President, I can easily guess.

In my opinion they plotted to embarrass President Hoover by blocking congressional action on his constructive programs to restore prosperity. His success would, of course, cause Pinchot's chances of nomination for President in 1932 to wane, as he could no longer appeal to mob hysteria and pose as a saviour of the people. The Progressives will try to force the President to support their theories, as the price for their support of the debt holiday. The American people can expect continued hard times until the voters wake up and elect a majority of conservative Republicans to Congress. It is foolish to blame Hoover for our economic troubles. The fault lies with the Progressives and free-trade Democrats in Congress.

Arlington County Ballot Nearly a Yard Long—Too Much for the Voters.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In reference to election in Arlington County, November 3, I think it would be a great benefit to hundreds who vote to have this enormous strip of election ballot printed in your paper, so as to enlighten the voter, and have him acquainted with the many whose names must be erased. It will enable the voter to save time and will be the means of having votes counted which otherwise would be thrown out.

I am at a loss to know why this new form of government has allowed such a ticket, measuring 27 inches or more. There isn't a county in the 48 States whose ballot compares with such an outlandish, uncalled-for specimen.

This new form of government, giving the rights to the populace to vote and elect by popular vote, is commended highly, but the ballot looks like a trick or ruse devised for the less intelligent to cope with the situation.

This being the first attempt at this new form of government, let it be one that will lead the way and bring this blessed old county out of the rut it has been in for so many years. Then we can say we have the oldest and best county.

Reduce Motor Accidents by Limiting Speed.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We are informed that 32,500 human beings were flung into their graves by automobiles in the United States in 1930, and that it is proposed to remedy this frightful slaughter by means of one-reel educational motion pictures, for which Congress is asked to appropriate $50,000. This proposal is, no doubt, well meant and laudable, but it is quite inadequate. Four-fifths of all motor fatalities are due to foolish and deadly speed and the quite obvious cure is slower driving.

Claudels Hold Gay Reception For Marshal

Brilliant Gathering at Mayflower Joins in Greeting Petain.

With all the sparkle and brilliance of a fete internationale, the French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel received last night at the Mayflower in honor of Marshal Petain, hero of the World War and idol of two continents. Important members of the French nobility, who are of the coterie of visitors in this country for the Yorktown celebration, shared honors with the Marshal of France.

The chiefs of mission of most of the European countries, the staffs of embassies and legations were there, and ranking officers of the Army and Navy turned out in full regalia, their imposing array of medals augmenting the jeweled ones of foreign envoys. It was a brilliant throng gathered to do honor to the white-mustached general, in gorgeous uniform of the French republic.

The Ambassador and Mme. Claudel received in the Chinese room, Marshal Petain standing between them. Mme. Claudel wore a gown of white crepe roma, embroidered in crystals. During a part of the evening the Marquise de Chambrun assisted in receiving the guests. She wore cloth of silver.

Against a background of autumn leaves with great vases of yellow chrysanthemums the gowns of the women lent additional color, and in the grand ballroom a buffet supper was served where the guests gathered after meeting the distinguished visitors from abroad. Dahlias and autumn leaves were used for decorations on the large oval-shaped table which reached nearly the length of the ballroom. Smilax and palms and ferns formed a background of green against the boxes. An orchestra played during the evening.

A few members of residential society were present, but the guests, who numbered about 1,400, included for the most part Cabinet members, the Diplomatic Corps, the judiciary and high-ranking officers of the Army and Navy and their wives.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann arrived after the reception had gotten well under way. They were accompanied by Mrs. Gann's niece, Mrs. Webster Knight. Mrs. Gann wore a stunning gown of white and silver brocade and Mrs. Knight wore a frock of printed crepe, black on a green background.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams headed the Cabinet group, the latter smart in a gown of aquamarine color brocade. The Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Robert P. Lamont were also present.

Vice President Curtis was an absentee, having left yesterday for Atlanta to attend the ecumenical conference.

The Army, of course, had generous representation, with Gen. John J. Pershing heading the group of distinguished officers who held court throughout the evening. In civilian dress, he wore an ambassadorial ribbon, signifying the Grand Order of the Legion of Honor. The Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Pratt were present, the latter smart in a gown of black lace. Also holding the attention of the Navy contingent were Rear Admiral and Mrs. Charles P. Hughes. The former preceded Admiral Pratt as chief of operations.

Others noted were the Surgeon General of the Army, Maj. Gen. Robert U. Patterson; the Surgeon General of the Navy, Rear Admiral Charles E. Riggs; the Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman; Maj. Edgar Erskine Hume and Rear Admiral Walter Gherardi, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Neville Gherardi.

The Cuban Ambassador, Senor Don Orestes Ferrara, arrived at the reception rather early, unaccompanied by his charming wife, but with the Counselor of the Embassy and Mme. Baron, the latter very charming in a smart gown of black satin. Among the many military attaches in brilliant uniforms who came to pay their respects to the distinguished marshal was the Military Attache of the Cuban Embassy with Senora de Prieto.

The German Ambassador and Frau von Prittwitz und Gaffron arrived after their dinner for Baron Maj. Fritz von Steuben and Frau von Steuben. Frau von Prittwitz wore an unusually smart gown of two tones of blue satin with a fish-tail train.

The Japanese Ambassador, Mr. Katsuji Debuchi, with some of the members of his staff bowed right and left to the many who spoke or chatted with him; the Polish Ambassador, Mr. Tytus Filipowicz, with his first secretary, Mr. Victor Podoski, who is so soon to leave Washington, were there. Mme. Filipowicz has not yet returned from Europe, being at present in Russia visiting with Mrs. Anne Archbold. Sir Ronald Lindsay, the British Ambassador, rose inches above the crowd and smiled charmingly on those around him. Lady Lindsay was not present.

The distinguished Peruvian Ambassador, Senor Don Manuel Freyre y Santander, tarried a few moments after chatting with the Belgian Ambassador and Mme. May. Mlle. Francoise May, their eldest daughter, who last evening celebrated her twenty-first birthday, made her first bow to Washington en masse, and was charming in a frock of sea-green crepe with a large bouquet of purple orchids on one shoulder. With her were the second secretary of embassy, Count Francois de Buisseret and his sister, Countess Beatrice de Buisseret.

Spain was represented by the young first secretary, Senor Don Ricardo Jose Gomez Acebo; the dashing young naval attache, Commander Federico Monreal y Pilon, and young Ramon Padilla.

The Minister of Uruguay, Dr. J. Varela, and his attractive daughter, Mlle. Adele Varela, came early, and the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter received a court of their own. The latter wore a smart gown of black crepe. The Minister of Hungary and Countess Szechenyi, recently returned to Washington, were present, the latter wearing a gown of ice-blue crepe. The Minister of Greece and Mme. Simopoulos and the Minister of Finland, M. L. Astrom, came later. The Minister of Sweden, M. W. Bostrom, wearing the black band of official mourning across his white shirt front, was accompanied by Mme. Bostrom in beige chiffon. The Minister of the Netherlands, Mr. van Royen, just back from The Hague, was there, without Mme. van Royen, who still is not quite recovered from her accident last spring.

The Minister of Norway and Mme. Bachke were gay as usual and the latter wore a gown of fuchsia crepe. Other chiefs of mission there were the Minister of the Irish Free State and Mrs. Michael MacWhite, the Danish Minister and Mme. Wadsted, the Haitian Minister, Mr. Dantes Beligarde, and the newly arrived Minister of Egypt, Sesostris Sidarous Pasha.

Another former envoy to Washington has become a nominee for the presidency of his country in the South American continent. Senor Eusebio Ayala, former Minister to Washington from Paraguay, has been invited by the Liberal party of his country to be its candidate for the term 1932-1936, to succeed President Jose Patricio Gugiari.

Many of the important men from Latin-American republics with whom Washington is so familiar have responded to the calls of their countries and have been placed in the presidential chair. The former Minister of Panama, Senor Don Ricardo Alfaro, former vice president of the republic, left the Capital last spring to assume the head of his native country. And Dr. Enrique Olaya, who for many years was Minister of Colombia here, is now president of that country.

Kinsman, chairman for the tea committee, will have assisting her at the tea table Mrs. James Shera Montgomery, Mrs. Frederick Brown Harris, Mrs. George W. Trowbridge, Mrs. John Bentley and Miss Frances Battelle. The proceeds from the tea and food sale will go to the benefit of Mrs. Arthur C. Christie's section of the Women's Guild of American University.

Mlle. Laval Sees Football Game Today

Will Speed by Motor to Take in Princeton and Navy Contest.

Keeping up with Mlle. Josette Laval is a pleasant but dizzy occupation. In Washington with her father, the president of the Council of Ministers of France, M. Pierre Laval, the little Frnech maid is the center of gay activities among the exclusive young set. Particularly has the young diplomatic crowd rallied to the entertainment of the visitor, who is being introduced to the smart coterie by Mlle. Raine Claudel.

Tucked in Mlle. Claudel's roadster the two girls, and presumably Mlle. Jacqueleine Guimier, will set out at 9 o'clock this morning for Princeton to take in the Princeton-Navy game this afternoon. They are motoring incognito and will lunch in true American fashion, with neither pomp nor ceremony. At Princeton they will be joined by a few friends for the game and will return late tonight. Thus will football mementoes find their way into Mlle. Josette's memory book.

Tea and gay chatter marked yesterday's informal party at the home of Mrs. Sydney Cloman, where Mrs. Wilson Pritchett invited some of the young diplomatic set, a few debutantes and cavaliers about town. Before that Miss Laval had motored to Mount Vernon with Mlle. Claudel, Mme. Papenotre and Mlle. Guimier.

At the home of the French Premier Josette changed to evening dress and started for the White House, where, with the premier, she was a dinner guest. Digressing from their original plans, the premier and Mlle. Josette did not attend the reception at the Mayflower for Marshal Petain, but remained with the President and Mrs. Hoover throughout the evening, staying all night at the mansion. Late in the evening Mrs. Hoover and the captivating Josette went for a motor drive.

At the White House last night she was shown the rose gardens by moonlight—the blue room, the famous east room, and finally ushered to the delightful second floor to snatch a few hours' sleep.

Disappointment reigned last night at the Belgian Embassy, where it was hoped the little French guest might be present at the dinner given in celebration of Mlle. May's twenty-first birthday. But the crowding of events proved a little strenuous, and Josette found it impossible "to get everything in," as she insisted she would do—the day of her arrival.

Among the fetes for the visitor yesterday was a luncheon at the French Embassy, where the Ambassador and Mme. Claudel entertained in honor of the premier and his daughter.

The other guests were the Naval Attache of the Embassy, and Mme. Louis Sable, the Military Attache, Col. Francois Pillon; the Air Attache, Maj. Georges Thenault; the Assistant Naval Attache, Lieut. Comdr. Paul Duban; the Counselor of the Embassy, M. Jules Henry; the First Secretary, M. Pierre de la Blanchetais; the Second Secretary, M. Raymond Bousquet; the Attache, M. Claude-Achille Clarac; the Attache, M. Paris; M. Rist, M. Albert Buisson, M. Basdevant, M. Jacques Bizot, M. Louis Aubert, M. J. Parmentier, M. Jacques Rueff, M. Du Pasquier, M. and Mme. Patenotre, M. Henri Haye, M. le Commandant Dupre, the Financial Attache of the Embassy, M. Emmanuel Monick, and the Commercial Attache, M. Maurice Garreau-Dombasle.

Concerning the program tomorrow Mlle. Laval's plans originally included a visit to Woodley, lovely home of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson, but Mlle. Claudel had so many gay festivities to crowd into the four-day program that it is doubtful whether the guest from Paris will go at all to the Stimson's. The premier will dine there tonight and will be the Secretary's guest until some time tomorrow. In the meantime Mlle. Josette probably will go her own way, which, if the past few days are a criterion, will be a gay and busy one.

The Arts Club will hold a tea tomorrow afternoon between 4:30 and 6 in honor of the artists whose paintings go on view in the club's exhibition room from October 25 to November 6. The exhibiting artists are Mrs. Lona Miller Keplinger, a member of the Washington Water Color Society, who has spent the summer in Maine, and Miss Marguerite Lent, a member of the National Society of Women Painters, who won the New York Water Color prize of 1929 and the Grison prize of 1930. Miss Eleanor Parke Custis will be the hostess during the afternoon reception.

Luncheon Is Given By Mrs. C. C. Deming.

Mrs. Charles C. Deming, who makes her home at the Shoreham, entertained at luncheon yesterday at the National Women's Country Club in honor of Mrs. Frederick Ball Pope, of Augusta, Ga., and Mrs. Effie Wimbley, of Macon, Ga. Her other guests were Mrs. Walter Wells, Mrs. James Lee Shelton and Mrs. E. Alexander Powell.

Miss Isabel Perry entertained at an informal bridge party yesterday afternoon for a group of this season's debutantes.

These little parties are given two or three times a week at the homes of different girls, giving them an opportunity to become better acquainted before the whirl of debutante activities sweeps on so fast that they have no time for the informal pleasures.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther H. Cannon have gone to Pinehurst for the winter. With them is their daughter, Mrs. Susan Ruth Cannon. Miss Cannon's engagement to Mr. Robert M. Harris, of Milwaukee, Wis., was announced recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl O. Lorton gave a dinner last night at the Shoreham in honor of Mr. and Mrs. De Vere Weeden. The group stayed on at the hotel for the dancing.

3 Box Holders Are Announced For Symphony

Mrs. Dows, Mrs. Bacon and Mrs. Robbins Assist Orchestra.

Mrs. Tracy Dows, who has just accepted membership on the executive committee for the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington, will be a boxholder at both courses of the orchestra at Constitution Hall, the symphony series on week-day afternoons and the Sunday series on eight Sunday afternoons. Mrs. Dows was chairman last spring of the successful season of the Metropolitan Opera in Washington.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon is another new boxholder for the orchestra season, as is Mrs. Warren Robbins. With this season of Washington's own symphony orchestra opening on Monday afternoon, November 2, interest is increasing in looking forward to a permanent orchestra in the National Capital.

A special arrangement has been made by the executive committee for the orchestra to provide a student card with a simple rate of payment for all students in Washington. The proposal first came through Mrs. Royal T. McKenna, chairman for schools on the orchestra committee, from a request from Dr. Cloyd H. Marvin, president of George Washington University, whose 8,000 students will be benefited thereby.

Culbertson on Contract

by Ely Culbertson

World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

130

A GAME THAT FAILED TO MATERIALIZE.

THE first hand dealt in the Anglo-American test match of 1930 was productive of some interesting bidding. This was the lie of the cards:

South—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ 5 ♡ K Q 10 6 5 ◇ J ♣ K Q 9 8 6 4
♠ J 10 9 8 ♡ A J 8 4 2 ◇ Q 9 4 ♣ 10	N W E S	♠ Q 3 2 ♡ 9 ◇ A K 7 6 3 2 ♣ A J 7
	♠ A K 7 6 4 ♡ 7 3 ◇ 10 8 5 ♣ 5 3 2

At Table 1 (where America sat North and South), South, West and North all passed. This procedure is, of course, correct; none of them has a proper Opening bid. East opened (again correctly) with one diamond. The bidding thus opened, continued as follows:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1◇
1♠	1NT	2♡	3◇
Pass	Pass	4♣	Pass
Pass	Pass

North thus secured the contract at four clubs, and proceeded to make 9 tricks. A loss to America of 50 points.

At Table 2 (where America sat East and West) the hand was bid quite differently:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♡	Dbl.
1♠	1NT	3♣	3◇
Pass	Pass	Pass

Here, it will be seen, America again played the hand, this time in three diamonds. Four-odd were made, a gain of 110 points. America on balance was 60 points to the good.

What lessons (if any) can be learned from these results?

First, the sacrifice of 50 points at Table 1 was, as it turned out, justified. If North had not bid four clubs, her adversaries would have played the hand in three diamonds. And, as at Table 2, 110 points at least might well have been made.

Second, this four club bid is, none the less, open to argument. Though not likely, it is possible that adversaries have a game bid. If South's bid of a spade is weak or "psychic." East-West may have the material for four notrump. It may be dangerous to provoke a try for game where a nongame going bid can be left in.

Finally, there was, of course, a possible try for game in East-West's hands. I am inclined to suggest as the best bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	Pass	1◇
1♠	1NT	2♡	3◇
Pass	3NT	?

and if North does not bid again game is assured. North, however, should now attempt a "sacrifice" bid of four clubs as with the game at stake, risks must be taken to save it.

If we had bid three notrump we might well have "got away" with it, as our opponents might not have pictured the defense possibilities correctly.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Raising a One-Bid to Four.

If my partner has opened with one spade and (no adverse bid intervening) I reply with four spades, what does this mean?

It means that I have from 5½ to 6 supporting-tricks.

My partner, knowing nothing about my hand, is entitled to assume when he makes his Opening bid that I have 3 supporting-tricks. For every trick or so above this basis, I should raise him once—assuming, that is, that I have adequate trump support. Hence my 5½—6 tricks makes me strong enough to raise him three times.

EXAMPLE.

Opening Bid Is One Spade.

Honor-tricks		Playing-tricks
1-½	♠ A Q 10 2	2-½
0	♡ 9 8	0
1	◇ A 5 4 3	1-½
0	♣ 10 8 7	0
2-½		4

Response is four spades:

Honor-tricks		Supporting-tricks
½	♠ K 8 6 4 3	2
1	♡ A 7 4 2	1-½
0	◇ 7	2
½	♣ Q J 3	½

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"Scorpio."

IF October 24 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a.m. to 10:20 a.m., from 1:15 p. m. to 3:10 p. m., and from 6:15 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m. and from 4 p. m. to 5:50 p. m.

Health indications are not propitious on October 24, judged by the stellar signs. If care be taken, however, there is no occasion for worry, and ailments will be of a minor variety. Business conditions will remain unchanged. A sunny atmosphere will prevail in the home. Cupid's amorous darts will be active and the little god will score many bull's-eyes.

A child born on this October 24 will be energentic, forceful and ambitious. Endowed with much natural ability, and possessing a large measure of adaptability, success will attend its efforts. It will, to its advantage marry early in life and much happiness is foretold.

You, if born on October 24, lack the aggressive qualities that make for material success. You are more of a dilletante. Fond of the good things of life, you prefer to dabble in art, music and poetry. To a certain extent you suffer from an inferiority complex. This militates against you and is to be deplored. Such a condition is not warranted by your intelligence and all-round ability.

In any career that you may adopt, you should associate yourself with one whose self-consciousness is not as great as your own, and who possesses a dogged and determined character; one, unlike yourself, who does not look upon a rebuff as a slight, or criticism as damning.

If a woman, you are liable to attacks of despondency, and subject to fits of melancholy. These are caused by thinking too much about yourself, and largely the result of selfishness and lack of consideration for others.

October 24 men and women are not destined to enjoy much happiness in married life, and this will be their fault and not that of their respective partners. Their natures will be complex, and it will be difficult to understand them. When, too, things go wrong, they will sulk, rather than fight it out. Better to have a storm and then sunshine, than an impenetrable mist.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me how to care for ferns. MABEL H. D.

We have prepared a circular on the care of ferns, which we will be glad to send you if you care to write again and will inclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. The requirements of all ferns are as follows: Protect from excessive sunlight. Keep them in a north window, if possible. If not, select an eastern or western exposure for them. Keep them where the fronds are never rubbed against and where they are out of direct drafts. They must have a soil of leafmold or as near leafmold as you can make a soil. They must have plenty of water and perfect drainage and as nearly as possible a moist atmosphere.

How should a crown of thorns be cared for? Does it require much sun and water? HELEN G. H.

The crown of thorns should have a sunny location. Water sparingly, giving more when the plant is in active growth.

What can I do with an evergreen bush that is covered with little white specks which are not alive? The leaves are turning brown and falling off. JULIE Y.

If specks are not alive, they will not cause injury to the foliage, though I imagine you mean a scale insect, which does not move about, or the red spider, both of which may be exterminated by syringing with a soap of miscible oil solution.

Please tell me when to take slips from a very old but very healthy rubber plant. MARJORY G. T.

You may take cuttings from a rubber plant at any season.

Can I sow sweet peas in the fall? MRS. WILLIAM B. T.

Yes, sweet peas may be sown in pots and kept in a cold frame over winter or even sown in the open ground in deeply prepared trenches. When the ground is frozen, mulch the rows with three inches of straw.

My hardy chrysanthemums are about over. What shall I do for them? A NEW GARDENER.

After hardy chrysanthemums are through flowering, cut them back to within a few inches of the ground. If this is done, heavy shoots will appear in the spring, which will be excellent as cuttings.

60-YEAR SENTENCES GIVEN 4 KIDNAPERS

Girl in Rosenthal Case Is Acquitted in New York; Judge Issues Warning.

New York, Oct. 22 (A.P.).—Sentences of 60 years each in Sing Sing Prison were imposed today on four men convicted of kidnaping Charles M. Rosenthal, youthful broker, and holding him captive for $50,000 ransom.

Judge Joseph E. Corrigan, in pronouncing sentence, said he saw "not the slightest reason for leniency" and made it clear the heavy terms were given as a warning to any who might be tempted to ply the kidnaping "trade."

A mulatto girl known as Betty Green, who admitted she had lured young Rosenthal into the hands of the kidnapers, but denied she had any knowledge of why the men wanted him, was acquitted.

Those sentenced are Marcus Blumenthal, alias Jack Markham; Albert Sileo, alias John Rocco; Theodore Adnoifi, alias Harry King, the latter two from Newark, N. J., and Nicholas Rutigliano, manager of a hotel where the ransom money was delivered.

Their only defense during the trial was an assertion that Rosenthal himself had engineered the abduction so that he might obtain money from his mother. Rosenthal denied the allegations.

Blumenthal, Sileo and Adinolfi were sentenced to 55 years each for their part in the kidnaping plus 5 years each for being armed while committing a felony.

Judge Corrigan said he believed Rutigliano was the brains of the gang and added that Blumenthal, Sileo and Adinolfi had, in his opinion perjured themselves when they took the stand in their own defense.

All four were listed as second offenders. Blumenthal was convicted of grand larceny in 1921. In 1910 Sileo was convicted and sentenced for bringing stolen property into the State. Adinolfi admitted that in 1928 he was convicted of carrying a revolver, and Rutigliano said he was convicted last year of assault and sentenced to Elmira Reformatory.

LINDBERGHS ARRIVE IN JERSEY BY PLANE

became the most eventful flight of the couple's career before their round-the-world plans were cut short by the death of Senator Morrow.

Spilled into the Yangtze flood, delayed by Alaskan storms and an Oriental typhoon, forced down again and again in Kurile fog, and mobbed by starving Chinese, the Lindberghs had plenty of experiences.

Col. Lindbergh brings home the Japanese Order of the Rising Sun and China's new aviation medal, the first ever presented.

Mrs. Lindbergh, the expedition's radio operator, became the heroine of Eskimo women and the belle of the ball at a party given by Premier Wakatsuki of Japan.

Englewood, N. J., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Senator Dwight W. Morrow left his entire estate, with the exception of $1,130,000 in specific bequests, to his widow.

The will, drawn January 24, 1927, was filed for probate today at Hackensack, N. J., and made public here. It made no provision for any of his children and created no trusts.

Amherst and Smith Colleges were left $200,000 each. The Smithsonian Institution received $100,000. Columbia University, the Union Theological Seminary, the New York City Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor and the Englewood Hospital were left $50,000 each. The Social Service Federation of Englewood and the Englewood Free Library will get $20,000 and $10,000, respectively.

No estimate of the value of the estate was made public, but it is said generally to amount to several million dollars.

The senator died in his sleep of a cerebral hemorrhage October 5 at the age of 58. His will named his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Cutter Morrow, joint executor with the Bankers' Trust Co. of New York.

In making Mrs. Morrow residuary legatee with no provision for his children, the will explained that Senator Morrow had "every confidence in her that she will provide for herself and my children when and as she may determine is in her and their several best interests." The will made it explicit that the bequest to her was free of all restrictions.

Bequests of $50,000 each were made to Senator Morrow's sisters and his brother. They are Mrs. Agnes M. Scandrett, Miss Alice Morrow, Mrs. Hilda M. McIlvaine and Gen. Jay J. Morrow.

Two sisters of Mrs. Morrow and her mother were left $25,000 each. They are Mrs. Annie E. Cutter, Mrs. Edith Cutter Yates and Miss Annie S. Cutter.

Friends and associates, who received $25,000 each, were Prof. Charles T. Burnett, of Bowdoin College; Prof. Frederick J. E. Woodbridge, of Columbia University, and Martin Egan, an associate of J. P. Morgan & Co. Another $25,000, which was to have gone to Prof. George D. Olds, now dead, will be paid to his widow, Mrs. Marian Olds, under the terms of the will. Prof. Olds instructed the senator at Amherst.

Reduced Supply Of Milk Urged

Farm Board Seeks Means of Cutting Too Much Production.

(Associated Press.)

Dairy farmers are urged to destroy one-tenth of the country's milk cows to prevent overproduction in a report submitted to the Farm Board.

The report, prepared by the dairy advisory committee, an agency of dairy cooperatives, points out that herds have been increasing for four years which will eventually lead to large surpluses and low prices despite recent increases in prices.

In addition to asking each farmer to eliminate one cow out of each ten, the committee also suggested that all low-producing cows be culled and sold for slaughter and that additional heifer calves be vealed.

The committee adopted resolutions commending cooperative marketing of dairy products, and urging milk distributors to buy from cooperatives. Adoption by the Farm Board of this proposal would mark a new attempt by it to curtail overproduction.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

A NEW device which may improve the quality and practicability of international broadcasting is being tested by engineers of the National Broadcasting Co. who, according to C. W. Horn, general engineer, look to the day when foreign broadcasts will be as feasible and certain as domestic operations.

Horn revealed that the experimental equipment had been used for the first time in a short-wave test conversation between himself and O. B. Hanson, manager of plant operation and engineering. The latter is in Europe in the interest of research for Radio City.

Mr. Horn declined to divulge the nature of the experiments but said "the tests were conducted for the purpose of proving a fundamental theory by which we hope to build and improve exchanges of international broadcasts.

"We are slowly but surely working toward that time when the quality of broadcasts from foreign countries will compare with those originating locally," Mr. Horn added.

Big Ten sport followers will have an opportunity to listen in on the Ohio State-Northwestern football game this afternoon when a description will be broadcast over an extensive network of Middle Western and Middle Atlantic States. Station WTAM, Cleveland, is probably the best bet for Washingtonians.

THE political debate between Senator L. J. Dickinson (Republican), of Iowa, and Senator Pat Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, scheduled from Sioux City, Iowa, will be broadcast by WMAL at 9 o'clock tonight. The debate is the outgrowth of charges and counter-charges concerning tariff votes in the Senate during the writing of the present tariff act, then the Smoot-Hawley bill, by Democrats and Republicans. Each of the senators involved in the debate was very active in the writing of the bill.

Jane Addams, social and peace worker, and Dr. Walter Miles, psychologist, will be heard in a broadcast prepared by the National Advisory Council on Radio in Education over WRC tonight.

Miss Addams, for years the director of Hull House, Chicago, will discuss "Social Consequences of Business Depressions." She will talk from Chicago. Although reported to have contracted a severe cold on a visit to New York, the 71-year-old settlement director is expected to be able to face the microphone. Otherwise, an associate will read her address.

Dr. Miles, professor at Yale and temporarily teaching at Stanford University, will speak on "Psychology: A Modern Science of Human Management."

The National Symphony Orchestra, Erno Rapee conducting, will perform the second and fourth movements from Brahm's Second Symphony (WRC, 9 p. m. tonight).

ONE of the greatest exponents of the art of banjo strumming, Fred Bacon, will be the guest artist of the regular Nordica Mandolin and Guitar program, directed by Walter Holt, tonight (WOL, 6-6:45 o'clock). Mr. Bacon uses a five-stringed banjo.

Willard Robison, barytone singer of "Deep River" fame, will be guest artist on the program featuring William Wirges' Orchestra over WRC at 9:30 o'clock. Norman Sweetser will be master of ceremonies and Aileen Clark is the soprano.

Charles Premmac, new program director for the National Radio Home-Makers Club, brings to the hour a long experience both as concert artist and as radio entertainer.

After graduating from the School of Music at Fontainebleau, Premmac devoted himself to opera and concert work. He toured Europe and America from 1915 to 1927.

Premmac's first experience in radio was as featured soloist with the French Instrumental Trio. Since that time, four years ago, he has been broadcasting regularly, giving recitals of classical songs in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish. He is also master of ceremonies for the "Evening in Paris" program.

THE pipe organ, long considered an instrument suited primarily for church purposes and purchased privately only by the wealthy, may some day be as popular as the piano and radio, according to Jesse Crawford.

"Although the pipe organ is still a cumbersome instrument," Crawford said recently, "organ manufacturers are constantly working to make it smaller and more practical for home use. In fact, I am told that the sale of organs for private installation is mounting yearly."

With the development of a pipeless organ, millions of American homes will be equipped with this instrument, Crawford believes.

"When the pipes are finally eliminated, it will doubtless be possible to build a portable organ that can be offered at popular prices. Even today some manufacturers are offering a small pipe organ at a cost comparable with a medium-priced automobile."

Crawford attributes the present popularity of the organ to its widespread use in radio and theaters.

"I hear from thousands of 'organ struck' youngsters all over the country," he declared. "A score of more boys write me regularly from several States, telling me of their progress with the instrument and how they plan some day to reach Broadway fame. The instrument has a tremendous appeal for boys."

The Secretary of the Navy, Charles Francis Adams, will be the principal speaker at the formal dedicatory exercises at the George Washington Bridge, replacing the Secretary of State, Henry L. Stimson, who will be unable to be present.

Secretary Adams' address will be broadcast over the WJZ network, beginning about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

AMOS 'N' ANDY are now available in book form. Those who have followed the career of the black-face pair over the network can turn back the pages and recall the early days of the Fresh Air Taxicab Co. The book—"Here They Are—Amos 'n' Andy"—is made up of dialogue in old episodes, edited and arranged to form a runing narrative. The foreword is by Irvin S. Cobb.

YOUTH AND GIRL, 18, MURDERED AT TRYST

Boy Autoist Is Shot, While Sweetheart Is Beaten to Death.

Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—A youth, out for an evening ride with his sweetheart, was shot and killed and she was assaulted and then beaten to death in a lonely wood near here last night.

Two woodcutters went into the forest today and found the body of Arthur Hinote, 18, lying beside his automobile. Ten feet away in the underbrush lay the body of Miss Bernice Bryars, 16.

The woodsmen summoned officers, but no clews were found to aid in solving the mystery except one shotgun shell and tracks of another automobile that had been turned around nearby.

Hinote's head bore a shotgun wound that caused death. Miss Bryars' head had been brutally beaten and her clothing was torn.

Families of the pair said they had learned another man was seen with the couple when they stopped at a roadside inn, 2 miles from the wood, but his identity has not been disclosed.

Hinote and the girl left the home of his sister last night for a ride. When they did not return a search was started. Theories that they might have eloped to be married were discounted by the family whose members said no one objected to their marriage.

Hinote had been going with Miss Bryars for a long time.

Grandi Off for Berlin To Repay Bruening Visit

Rome, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—Foreign Minister Dino Grandi departed tonight for Berlin to return the recent visit of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening to Rome.

Grandi had a long conference with Premier Mussolini prior to departing at 10 p. m. Dr. Julius Curtius, former foreign minister of Germany, who visited Rome with Bruening, is no longer a member of the cabinet and Grandi will confer chiefly with the chancellor, who also holds the foreign portfolio.

Former Convicts Held Marked Men

Denied Chance to Work Out Undisturbed Life, Professor Claims.

Baltimore, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Judge Andrew Bruce, professor of law at Northwestern University, today declared that the modern day police do not give the former convict a chance to work out an undisturbed life after they have left prison.

Speaking at the closing session of the sixty-first congress of the American Prison Association, the Evanston teacher declared that when a crime is committed every one with a criminal record is "picked up" by the police and thrown into jail.

"No charge is placed against him," he declared. "He is not even accused of any crime, but is placed before the 'show-off,' before detectives and subjected to scrutiny and inspection."

Judge Bruce, who formerly was a member of the supreme bench of Illinois, added, "Reform schools do not reform and prisons do not correct."

Five Armed Bandits Rob Ohio Bank of $10,000

Marion, Ohio, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Five men, armed with pistols, obtained $10,000 today in a robbery of the Farmers' Deposit Bank, at Richwood, near here, and escaped in an automobile.

Entering the bank during the noon hour, three of the robbers held up S. C. Lytle, assistant cashier, I. G. Zustman, cashier, and B. F. Hodge, a customer. One of the robbers went behind the cashier's cage for the money. The trio then fled with their two accomplices, who had remained in the automobile.

is to stand steady and have this over with."

"Oh, doctor, I gave myself up because it began to hurt so much!" Mrs. Judd babbled under an anesthetic at the police receiving hospital as surgeons worked over her wounded hand. "I was afraid of lockjaw."

"Oh, don't hurt my hand! I've been asked all those questions, and I answered them. They're pinching my hand. It hurts! Oh, doctor, just hit them once for me."

Mrs. Judd moaned and screamed as the influence of the anesthetic lessened.

A bullet was removed from the base of her middle finger, close to the joining with the index finger. The index finger is fractured. She was given an injection of antitetanus serum.

Attorney Russill, quoting his client, gave the first story of what happened in the Phoenix home where the two women died:

"I had gone to the girls' home to remonstrate with Miss Samuelson for some nasty things she had said about Mrs. Le Roi.

"Miss Samuelson got hold of a gun and shot me in the left hand.

"I struggled with her and the gun fell. Mrs. Le Roi grabbed an ironing board and started to strike me over the head with it.

"In the struggle I got hold of the gun and Miss Samuelson got shot.

Ran After Shooting.

"Mrs. Le Roi was still coming at me with the ironing board and I had to shoot her.

"Then I ran from the place——"

Russill says that is as far as the woman could get with her story due to her critical condition. Further questioning will be made as soon as Mrs. Judd is able.

Mrs. Judd was attired in a green dress, a dark ragged coat with a well worn fur at the collar, no stockings, black shoes and bandages on both hands. She seemed weary and at the point of collapse.

Phoenix, Ariz., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Arizona authorities, informed tonight of Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd's surrender and of her confession to her attorney to the slaying last Friday in Phoenix of Mrs. Agnes Anne Le Roi and Miss Hedvig Samuelson, described her plea of self-defense as "inconceivable."

"If her story of being wounded in the hand on the night of the slayings should be true," said Deputy County Attorney G. A. Rodgers, "that fact absolutely would preclude her having disposed of the bodies without the aid of an accomplice.

"It is, however, inconceivable. Evidence tends to show that if she has a wound in her hand, it was self-inflicted, or is other than a gun-shot wound.

"We have witnesses who saw her, sometimes with one hand bandaged, sometimes the other, and some witnesses who saw her the morning after the slayings with neither hand bandaged."

LEAGUE EFFORTS AGAIN FAIL TO END MANCHURIA CRISIS

again that the excitement in Manchuria made it impossible to accept any definite time limit for completing the evacuation.

The Japanese spokesman said nothing about the privately expressed demand that China recognize the validity of existing treaties. In some quarters this omission was interpreted as "progress" in the Japanese attitude.

Dr. Sze deplored delay in the troop evacuation and warned against the danger of a disastrous incident so long as conditions remain unchanged in Manchuria.

China, he said, was willing to go even further than the provisions of the council's program by assuring the Japanese it would employ every means of restoring good feeling between the two nations. He declared his country was willing to forget the unhappy past if only the present strife could be justly and peacefully regulated.

One of the most dramatic episodes of the entire debate was the assertion of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood that the British government was greatly concerned over the bombing of Chinese towns by Japanese airplanes. He declared this was a procedure his government was unable to reconcile with any provision of international law.

M. Yoshizawa replied that these bombings were, indeed, "most unhappy events" and added, "They were done against the will of my government."

The Japanese spokesman's expression of regret was interpreted in Geneva as public testimony that the army of Japan has been out of control of the government.

Tokyo, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Japan agreed today in principle with the League of Nations plan for evacuation by Japan of occupied non-treaty zones in Manchuria.

High officials announced this important concession was conditioned upon Chinese recognition of Japan's treaty committments in Manchuria and agreement to give guarantees for protection of Japanese lives and property.

They made clear, however, that while withdrawals might be commenced within the three-week limit proposed by Aristide Briand, acting chairman of the council of the League of Nations, Japan can not promise definitely that all troops will be out of the nontreaty zones by November 16.

The league resolution, up for general discussion at Geneva, called for evacuation first and Sino-Japanese negotiations afterward. The southern third of Manchuria has been under virtual Japanese military rule since September 18, when a clash between railway guards and Chinese soldiers near Mukden resulted in Japanese occupation for the declared purpose of protecting Japanese lives and property.

The extent of the coming withdrawal from Manchuria, officials said, would depend entirely upon China's willingness and ability to maintain order after the Japanese soldiers returned to their regular stations.

(Associated Press.)

Words and not bullets are filling the air in Manchuria so far as Secretary Stimson knows.

Press dispatches have told of new outbreaks of fighting between Japanese and Chinese forces, but the Secretary told newspapermen yesterday that he had heard officially of verbal clashes in Manchuria, but no military ones.

ARRIVAL OF BRITISH NIPS CYPRUS REVOLT

Entire Island Calms Down After Clamor for Union With Greece.

Nicosia, Island of Cyprus, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The entire island was calm tonight and the revolt appeared to have been quelled as the result of the arrival of British troops from Egypt.

London, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The Island of Cyprus' revolutionary movement toward unification with Greece was understood tonight to have subsided in the face of the arrival of British troops by air and by sea.

Situation Better.

The colonial office announced that the situation was "smoothing over generally though still unsettled." This was on the basis of cablegrams from Gov. Ronald Storrs, who attributed the uprising to "certain political leaders who have been endeavoring to break down the government's efforts for understanding and cooperation among the people."

Seven airplanes of the Royal Air Force carrying 150 soldiers arrived at Nicosia, the capital, early in the day from Egypt and four British fighting vessels landed reinforcements at Larnarka, Limasol, Paphos and Famagusta.

Cooperating with Cyprian authorities, the troops were deployed in vigilant patrols through these principal cities, and the effect of their presence was to ease the tension and discourage rebellious elements from resuming rioting. It was decided that further reinforcements would be unnecessary for the present.

Mobs Subside.

Mobs which had burned the governor's home at Nicosia and held full sway in the streets for several days assembled again last night, but were dispersed when police threatened to fire on them from behind barbed-wire barricades. It was estimated that only one Cypriote had died from the disturbances and that hardly 15,000 of the 350,000 people on the island had participated.

Foreign Minister Michalacopoulous of Greece said in a dispatch from Athens that the movement in the British crown colony could not harm the relations between his country and Great Britain.

"The Hellenic government never has encouraged the manifestations of the islanders," he said, "and nothing can induce the Hellenic government to depart from the line of conduct to which it has always held."

COMMUNITY CHEST EXECUTIVES MEET

Tributes Are Paid to Work of Organization; Held to Fill Great Need.

Tribute was paid to the Community Chest as the greatest coordinator of community interests in the history of Washington at a meeting of the executives' council of the Chest in the Burlington Hotel yesterday. Members of the council, who are the active heads of the various organizations affiliated with the Chest, declared that the coming of the Chest has done more to awaken a sense of community responsibility than any factor since the war.

Morris Bisgyer, principal speaker at the meeting, spoke of the sense of security imparted to executives by the Chest. He said that the character-building organizations are busy meeting the needs of the situation in the democratization of culture, and that the Chest has turned these executives from executive collectors to executive directors, permitting them to turn their attention from raising money to better opportunities for social planning and other features of their work.

Dare INTERPRETS the MODE

The smart woman wears the same dress for daytime, afternoon and evening as her chic and economical gesture. (Whispers Dah-ray).

New York, Oct. 23.

THE combination gown is no new gesture on the part of the Paris Haute Couture—and much less of one on the part of L'Elegante. Care, great care, of course, must be exercised in this, else one and all the possible "combinations" look dowdy. But, like everything else, the result is well worth the care, and one has several completely chic and elegant outfits by the simple combining of several pieces.

For instance, the woman who has a beautiful fur collar which she has perhaps left on her evening wrap, will use it nowadays on her daytime ensemble as well—and have her maid or dressmaker pose it for her on her evening wrap if and when she needs it. Or, the woman who invests in a satin or velvet tailleur for fall will realize the advtantages when she sees how many blouses she can wear with it to carry its degree of formality—from the long-sleeved satin blouse to the sleeveless silver lame blouse, which makes of her tailored afternoon suit a Sunday night frock.

An original idea uses the skirt of a velvet afternoon frock, which, by the way, has both long and short sleeves with no one being the wiser! This dress, uses the same skirt for a formal and very elegant evening gown, showing a strass outlined decolletage—and that is what is meant by a combination outfit!

* * * *

I have just had made for my very own self a combination oufit, which gives me about eight separate and distinct outfits, not counting mere changes of blouses. It has long sleeves, which can be snapped on or left off—and one of the changes is the evening top, also illustrated. But there are other combinations, which make this—well, what is it?—suitable for me to wear from early afternoon straight through to formal or informal dinner wear, formal or informal evening wear, and with several changes in each which no one even suspects are built on the same skirt. Well, for the price of two really good cutfits, I have eight or ten—and you can learn how to make this startling and elegant and practical "combination" by just sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post, for the eight designs. If you don't sew, turn them over to your dressmaker—and be glad of my ingenuity and the depression, which brings to light such startling possibilities in chic economy!

* * * *

Goodness, Sister Dionne's turned poetess! She writes:

"Burned your saucepans? What a shame!
But you'll rescue them with zeal.
Water, soda, boil o'er flame
For five minutes, then burns peel!"

From which, I take it, you put baking soda and water into your burned saucepans and boil them up for five minutes, after which the burned parts peel off! Anyway, I'll stop the poetry!

* * * *

Last call! Halloween's just about here, you know, and our Halloween leaflets are just about all gone—so you'll have to do something radical about getting that stamped, self-addressed envelope of yours off to the Dare Department of The Washington Post if you're interested in the latest in witches and things—as who isn't right now?

Au revoir.

CHINA CONSIDERING HUGE 10-YEAR PLAN

Industrialization Program to Cost Billions Now Under Study by Leaders.

(Associated Press.)

A ten-year industrialization plan, calling for the expenditure of $11,000,000,000 for machinery construction alone, is being considered by the Chinese government.

A report to the Commerce Department yesterday said the plan called for the use of government and private credit instead of government ownership as in the case of Russia in her five-year plan.

Trade Commissioner Ehrhardt, at Shanghai, reported the plan now being considered by the Chinese ministry looks forward to a firmly entrenched central government which could exploit the great natural resources of the country.

The first step in the proposal would be establishment at Nanking of a school headed by expert foreigners to train an army of highly skilled Chinese mechanics to construct machinery and install it in government factories.

The plan embraces the development of harbors, canals, railways and roads, the opening of the vast undeveloped area of Northwest China and the setting up of agricultural and pastoral industries throughout the republic.

The development project would cover a wide range of industrial activities, designed to produce iron, steel, brick, cement, locomotives, ships, coal tar, chemicals and electricity.

The Commerce Department was told that the ministry of industries, which drew up the plan, submitted it with the statement that it realized "great obstacles have to be overcome," but that "a united people with a capable and centralized control will be successful in carrying out the plan."

Maryland Will Widen Rockville Pike Soon

Plans of the Maryland State Roads Commission for early widening of the Rockville Pike through the town of Rockville were announced yesterday by Maj. E. Brooke Lee, commission member. The project is expected to cost approximately $17,800 and is to be paid for out of State gasoline tax proceeds.

Included in the plans is provision for supplanting wooden trolley poles with modern iron supports at the curb.

The pike, which also is Rockville's main street, will be widened five feet from the Rockville Fairgrounds to the Courthouse square.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

LATH MARKS.

If the ceilings and inside of the walls of a house are unduly dirty, one can be certain that the insulation is poor. The house will be cold in winter and hot in summer. The winter coal bill of a person living in such a house will be high. These are the conclusions of Dr. W. J. Hopper, as given in the Aerologist.

His opinion is based on a study of the cause of lath marks on the ceiling. Who has not lain in bed and wondered why the streaks of light and dark on the ceiling above him? If his curiosity had led him to read up on the subject he has had his choice between several explanations. He has found authorities who have written that air passes freely through the ceiling and all other walls. When a ceiling is made up of plaster laid on laths the air passes more rapidly through the spaces between the laths. The plaster acts as a filter, and the dirt of the outflowing air is deposited on the wall in black bands over the space between the laths, and in lighter bands over the laths themselves.

Another theory that he might have read is that the deposit of dirt on the wall was preceded by a deposit of moisture. There was primarily a sweating and the bands between the laths, being the wetter zones, picked up more dirt.

A third theory was that the walls radiated electricity; that this was uneven, being much modified by the presence of the lath in the plaster.

Dr. Hopper conducted experiments which proved that none of these explanations were correct. He inserted a layer of nonporous material into a wall of plaster laid on laths. Air could not soak through the wall, but he got lath marks just the same. Experiments done with walls laid on plaster, in which electric radiation was under complete control, likewise gave lath marks. Experiments with walls in which there could be no sweating ruled out that as a possible explanation of lath marks.

Lastly, he took up experiments with wall insulation. These proved that if a wall was kept as warm as the surrounding air it did not become unduly covered with dirt. If the wall became cold, as compared with air, it accumulated dirt. Lath marks on a ceiling or wall prove that it is comparatively cold. The spaces between the laths, being the coldest zones, become dirtiest. If the walls were well insulated lath marks did not appear.

FATTENING FOODS.

Mrs. J. V. writes:

1. I have a girl who is a little over 11. She is about 15 pounds overweight and I am very careful with her diet. She likes cantaloupe, honeydew, watermelon, and strawberries with sour cream. Are these foods fattening?

2. Are they easily digested?

REPLY.

1. Melons and strawberries are not fattening. Cream and sugar are.

2. Few people have any trouble digesting melons and strawberries. The seeds of berries are said to harm those with the present day fad, colitis. Some become sensitized and get nettlerash when they eat them. Basically, all the foods mentioned are wholesome.

CAUSE OF RICKETS.

Mrs. A. L. DeW. writes:

1. What is the cause of rickets?

2. Would a child of one so afflicted at infancy inherit this disorder?

REPLY.

1. Rickets is a disease of bone making cartilage, and young bone, which results from a deficiency of vitamin D. Back of this deficiency is a lack of good quality sunlight.

2. No. Rickets is not inheritable. A few babies have congenital rickets, but that is not inherited.

Special Coffee Cake Recipe Wins Post Food Page Award

Mrs. H. Burdett, of 3306 Warder Street Northwest, Submits Baking Directions Worth a Trial by Any One Who Likes Delicious Things.

A recipe for spiced coffee cake wins the $5 prize awarded by The Post Food Page editor this week for the best recipe submitted in its weekly contest.

Mrs. H. Burdett, of 3306 Warder street northwest, submitted the recipe. And the cake is every bit as good as the ingredients promise. Cut yourself a piece of it and make yourself at home.

Note that 2 cupfuls of "strong coffee" are called for, which explains why they call it coffee cake. A lot depends on the preparation, so follow Mrs. Burdett's directions carefully.

The recipe follows:

Spiced Coffee Cake.
(Awarded $5 Prize.)

1½ cupfuls sugar
½ cupful Sanitary butter or Crisco.
3 eggs
2 cupfuls Swings Java and Mocha strong coffee
3½ cupfuls Washington self-ring flour
2 teaspoonfuls cinnamon
1 teaspoonful ginger
3½ taspoonfuls baking powder
1 cupful seeded raisins
1-3 cupful dried currants

Cream butter, add sugar slowly, and beat to a cream. Add the eggs well beaten, and beat until smooth. Then add the coffee, spices and fruit. Last add the flour, sifted with salt and baking powder. Bake in a moderate oven about 1 hour. This makes two medium-sized loaves.

MRS. H. BURDETT.

Mueller's Spaghetti.

½ package Mueller's spaghetti
4 slices bacon
½ onion (cut fine)
2 cups canned tomatoes
2 green peppers (chopped fine)
1 can mushrooms
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Parboil the spaghetti for seven minutes in 2 quarts rapidly boiling water to which one-half tablespoon salt has been added. Drain.

Broil the bacon, remove from the frying pan and add the onions. Cook until brown, then add tomatoes and cook five minutes longer. Add peppers, mushrooms, Worcestershire sauce, salt, pepper and mustard. Cook 20 minutes, until sauce is quite thick. Combine with the spaghetti and turn into a well buttered baking dish and bake 30 minutes in moderate oven.

The mushrooms may be omitted.

How to Make Veal Pie.

1½ pounds veal
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
Celery salt
Cayenne
Onions
Carrots
½ cup peas
1 cup cubed potatoes
Rich biscuit dough.

Veal from the smaller part of the leg may be used. Just cover it with boiling water, add salt, allowing 1¼ teaspoons, and simmer until very tender. Or leftover veal may be used. Cut the meat into small pieces, suitable for serving and lay in casserole, about half filling the dish. Remove fat from the broth, strain through cheesecloth, bring to boiling point, and to a pint add butter and flour melted together, stirring in celery salt and a bit of cayenne; add a teaspoon of curry. This latter condiment greatly improves the dish for some tastes. However, it may be omitted. Beat the sauce with an egg beater to insure smoothness. Add to the veal very small cooked onions and carrots in any amount desired and then add peas and potatoes. Mix vegetables lightly with the meat and pour the hot sauce over all. Place over the top, nearly touching, small rounds of rich baking powder biscuit dough, and set dish in a hot oven until biscuits are cooked and a rich brown. Brush the tops with buttter and serve. If desired, fresh pork may be substituted for veal, or leftover lamb or beef may be used.

Carrots.

1 quart diced carrots.
½ teaspoon sugar.
1 medium onion.
2 tablespoons butter.
¼ cup soft bread crumbs.
1 cup evaporated milk.
Salt and pepper.

Boil carrots with sugar in a small amount of water, until almost tender. Simmer chopped onion in butter 5 minutes. Add onion, crumbs and milk to carrots and continue cooking until carrots are tender. Season to taste. Turn into a hot vegetable dish and garnish with chopped parsley. Yield: 8 servings.

VARIETY IS URGED IN CHILDREN'S DIET

One Menu for Whole Family Can Easily Be Arranged, Government Shows.

A more varied diet for children, as contrasted with the prolonged use of baby food, and one which at the same time enables busy mothers to prepare a single menu for all the family are suggestions made in a new bulletin. "Food for Children," recently issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This bulletin was prepared by Mrs. Rowena Schmidt Carpenter and Mrs. Helen Nebeker Hann, of the Bureau of Home Economics, with the cooperation of the Washington Child Research Center.

One menu for the whole family is possible if the diet is well balanced and simply prepared, according to Mrs. Carpenter, who is the bureau's specialist in child nutrition. If adults insist on richer, more highly seasoned food than is wise for children, it is still not necessary to prepare two different sets of food, she points out. Portions for the children can be taken out before the extra fat, sugar, and high seasonings are added. Modifications of this kind can easily be made in many meat dishes and in vegetables and desserts.

No definite statement is made as to how long beyond the weaning period a child's food should be sieved, because children differ in their ability to digest coarser foods. But the bureau does not urge that children be taken off the entirely liquid or semi-solid diet as early as possible.

Nutrition in Variety.

"Mistaken ideas have kept many good foods out of the young child's menu," the specialists say, "and this is an unfortunate situation, since good nutrition is more easily achieved on a well-chosen variety, and better basic food habits are established.

"The food the child eats must furnish material for his growth and development and must meet the demands made by his ceaseless activity. This is accomplishd by building and repairing all parts of the body, by keeping it healthy and regulating its running order, and by furnishing the energy for work, play, and such internal functions as breathing and the beating of the heart. The foods which a child should eat every day for good nutrition are:

"Milk—at least a pint, preferably a quart.

"Butter—at every meal.

"Cereal, bread or potato—at every meal.

"Vegetables, other than potatoes—at least two daily; one raw or quickly cooked; leafy kinds often.

"Fruit—once or twice a day; citrus or other raw fruit or tomatoes daily.

"Egg or meat—the older child may have both.

"Sweets—in small quantities at end of meal."

Raw Vegetables Valuable.

Each of these foods is briefly discussed in the bulletin. Raw and quickly cooked vegetables are emphasized as valuable in the child's diet, because long cooking at high temperature partially destroys the vitamin content of most vegetables. Since canned tomatoes retain their vitamin content when heated, they are considered an important food for children, especially when fresh vegetables are scarce. Leafy green vegetables, the bulletin points out, should be served often when available. Finely chopped cabbage or celery, grated carrots, chopped lettuce or watercress, and peeled tomatoes are the raw vegetables which these authors say may be given to most young children.

Several menus and recipes are suggested for the preparation of meals that can be served to the children as well as to adults.

"Pointers for Parents," directing the way to happy, healthy and well nourished childhood, concludes the bulletin:

"Remember that the food the child eats makes a difference in his growth and development and his fitness for life.

"Be sure that his diet includes all the materials necessary for good bones, sound teeth, and other needs.

"Start when he is an infant to teach him to like a wide variety of wholesome foods.

"Stimulate his appetite by good health habits.

"Serve him carefully planned, well-prepared meals at regular hours.

"Watch his development closely and have periodic medical examinations so that if he is not growing normally or keeping healthy, medical attention may be given in time."

"Food for Children," is Farmers' Bulletin 1674-F, and may be obtained free from the Office of Information, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

AFTER a considerable amount of very deft juggling of the "Melos," "Vinegar Trees," "Unknown Warriors" and the like, the Shubert-Belasco Theater finally decided to call it a day and hang up the shutters for a week, offering nothing rather than it knew not what!

It is one of the pecularities of a profession that accedes to the wishes of any lay group in the matter of succor in times of stress, that when it itself is in difficulty everybody takes a kick at it while it is down.

The presentation on Sabbath evening of Maurice Browne's production of "The Unknown Warrior" was one of the most eagerly anticipated of the season's special attractions. It would have been a notable event. Yet, with no other week's booking a surety, to have been presented for the single performance it would have been confronted with the necessity of assuming the burden of a week's salary for a considerable group or artisans essential to its adequate staging. The resultant cancellation is a distinct loss to drama lovers of the Capital as well as to those who might have profited reasonably for work actually done had not their demands been so fantastically exorbitant.

There is something wrong with the show business somewhere when such things can happen.

In the meantime, light musical entertainment will have it all its own way for the week beginning tomorrow. The National will present "Three's a Crowd," heralded as one of the better revues, while down on Ninth street the Gayety will present an up-to-date burlesque show in "Frivolities of 1932."

By the end of next week appearances are that we will be torn to shreds by the strenuous demands of two world premieres, at both of which it is planned to entertain the creme de la creme of Washington's diplomatic and official society—with booming of flashlights, roaring of loud speakers, purring of microphones, blinding glare of spotlights and all of the other reputed trimmings of what that dear Hollywood is wont to designate "permeers."

The respective occasions deemed of sufficient importance to warrant all this slicking back of the hair and pinning down of the ears are John Barrymore's first local presentation in "The Mad Genuius" and Will Rogers' ditto in "Ambassador Bill."

It'll be more fun!

Speaking of gala goings-on, music for the second annual Navy Day ball, to be held in the grand ballroom of the New Willard on next Tuesday evening, October 27, as a climax to the Navy Day observance in the Capital will be furnished by Leon Brusiloff's Music Masters, under the personal conductorship of Mr. Brusiloff, for many years one of Washington's most popular motion picture theater orchestra leaders.

The Navy Day ball is being staged under the auspices of the Sixth Marine Reserve Brigade and promises to be a colorful event with a decided nautical atmosphere. The entire ballroom is being decorated with naval flags, pennants and burgees, international signal flags and the standards of various nations.

The first two Theater Guild productions of the third Washington subscription season have been definitely announced.

"Reunion in Vienna," a sprightly and audacious comedy by Robert E. Sherwood, author of "The Road to Rome," "The Queen's Husband" and "Waterloo Bridge," revolves about an impoverished Austrian archduke and his mistress of former days. The time of the play is 1930 and the nobles have been out of Vienna for ten years—all save the broken-down group which has desperately attempted to adjust itself to the new conditions.

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, last seen here in "Elizabeth, the Queen," since which they have produced "The Guardsman" in pictures, will have the costellar roles. "Reunion in Vienna" will be seen the week of November 9 at the National.

"As Husbands Go," the second of the Guild's subscription season, will follow "Reunion in Vienna," at the same theater, beginning Monday, November 16.

Amid the clatter of sixteen typewriters, the offstage roar of the presses and shouts of "copy boy," Tiffany's newspaper drama, "X Marks the Spot," got under way last week with Earl Kenton directing. Lew Cody is cast in the recently popularized role of the managing editor, and Wallace Ford, Sally Blane, Fred Kohler and Mary Nolan appear in the principal supporting parts.

To get the full import of the title, I imagine it is necessary to have some homicidal maniac blaze away with all five chambers of his Smith & Wesson almost directly under your desk at 2 o'clock in the morning.

As a bit of thrilling exhilaration, it is not so hot—take it from some of us who were still around here the other night when an arrant coward plugged a pretty game guy!

THE NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

FOX

"THE CISCO KID." Fox picturization of Al Cohn's screen play concerning O. Henry's famous character, featuring Warner Baxter and Edmund Lowe, supported by Conchita Montenegro and Nora Lane. Directed by Irving Cummings. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Man and boy! And oh, oh, ladies, particularly ladies, too! Join me in ordering one large blooming bouquet for Warner Baxter. He's here once more and the Cisco Kid is riding again. So with these two very good reasons in one, "the engagement pad, Clarice, and the flowing fountain pen!"

Yet, if you remember "In Old Arizona" and its thrills and delights, you'll probably be disappointed with the second adventure of the Kid. It moves slowly and is further hampered by very poor dialogue.

On our side of the Rio Grande, the Cisco Kid is tending to his "bizness"—sometimes the cattle bizness, sometimes the mining bizness, and often, oh often, the banking bizness—all with a trusty revolver in his hand. Likewise is Mickey Dunn, of the Rangers, busy at his business of tracking down the Kid and that $5,000 reward. And, as so often before in their criss-crossing paths, Mickey and Cisco—though the latter hates women—find the same woman, Carmencita, pleasant to make love to. Then there is a widow with a ranch and an attendant mortgage, a villainous sheriff, and all the trappings of mellerdrama.

Yet, even mellerdrama with Baxter and Lowe, that vital, vivid duo, is rather grand, and so the picture remains excellent entertainment.

As for Baxter, he simply is the Cisco Kid. Seldom is such pure charm of personality and characterization found as that with which he here presents us. The Kid is a little older this time, but none the less attractive; a little wiser, but no more cautious; a little subtler, but minus none of his rarely lovable braggadocio. Baxter's voice alone which twists poor lines into meaning and laughter, and sings so hauntingly, deserves a paragraph or so.

Eddie Lowe has a less attractive Mickey this time than in "In Old Arizona," and since he suffers from the poorest dialogue of the play, comes out a little further down the line of praise than was expected. Gone is his recent suavity and back comes Sergt. Quirt.

Conchita Montenegro is a darling little devil of a Carmencita, and Nora Lane is very attractive in a totally different feminine role. Indeed, this excellent quartet gives the picture most of the merit it possesses, except that inestimable amount given so long ago by O. Henry. Glorious scenic shots add tremendously.

"North, South, East and West," Fanchon and Marco hunted for trimmings and trappings for their stage show. They found them, and draped and dressed the production fit for a Lord-High-Something-or-Other, and then omitted the Lord-High-Something-or-Other. In short, the best thing on the bill, which boasts of five or six different sets and changes of costume and lots of people, is Togo, the Wonder Dog. As for the rest, there's singing and dancing with Jack Waldron and Miss Harriett, Elvira Tanzi, Glen Dale, Helen O'Shea, and the chorus participating.

Mickey Mouse capers on the screen, the newsreel is more interesting than usual, and Al Mitchell's conducting of the orchestral overture completes the bill. But if you're reading the show time-table, watch for the picture.

PALACE

"THE BELOVED BACHELOR." Paramount picturization of a play by Edward H. Peple, starring Paul Lukas, supported by Dorothy Jordan, Charles Ruggles and Vivienne Osborne. Directed by Lloyd Corrigan. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

Although Paul Lukas in this picture has been given a considerably more sympathetic role than those handed him in his last two releases, it requires the services of Charles Ruggles to save "The Beloved Bachelor" from being boresome. In the not-too-distant future, it is this reviewer's hope that Lukas will receive a part wherein he is not forced to suffer for even a moment, and he may then blossom into the star which Paramount is seeking to make of him.

"Beloved Bachelor," however, has its points and many of them are good. Its story, briefly told, is that of a sculptor, caring for the wife and child of an old friend by using the wife as a model. His sweetheart becomes jealous and when the model is accidentally killed, the sculptor claims to be the father of the child, to save it from an orphanage. Whereupon the sweetheart marries another. After the child grows to womanhood, the original sweetheart returns to battle with the "daughter" for the love of the sculptor. You may guess who wins.

Lukas is the sculptor. He is sincere and rather appealing as he tries to straighten out his tangled love affairs, but his suffering when his model is killed, when he has hurt the child he is raising and when he believes he has been finally defeated in love is almost too intense to ask the public to stand.

It is here that a kind fate has sent Charles Ruggles, a toperish pal who plays uncle to the girl. His sallies and quips are uproarious and he is more comical in appearance than ever. Dorothy Jordan, as the daughter, does a splendid piece of work, but is closely rivaled by Vivienne Osborne, who plays the part of the unfaithful sweetheart. Miss Osborne looks a little like Billie Dove and handles a difficult role smartly.

"Going, Going, Gone" is the title of the stage unit, and placed on the auction block with other recent Loew presentations, it would not bring much, by comparison. It is rescued from nearly complete lack of entertainment by a grand adagio team, which probably is Adler and Bradford, assisted by two unidentified huskies. The Trado Twins sing one number well, and then go into dance and comedy, neither of which scored, while the Roma Brothers, seen here before, have a balancing act lacking in punch. Lee Barton Evans is the auctioneer and Sylvia Miller sings during one rather colorful scene, draped by the Chester Hale Girls.

A really bright spot on the program was an overture by Harry Borjes and the Palace Orchestra, composed of a medley of river songs, well arranged and delightfully played. A short release of Hearst Metrotone News, featuring President Hoover at Yorktown, completes the bill.

RKO-KEITH'S

"A DANGEROUS AFFAIR." Columbia picturization of an original story by Howard J. Green, adapted to the screen by the author, featuring Jack Holt and Ralph Graves, supported by Sally Blane, DeWitt Jennings, Tyler Brooke, William V. Mong and Charles Middleton. Directed by Edward Sedgwick. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

Jack Holt and Ralph Graves are back in town again and still fighting; but this time there is more fun than seriousness to their belligerence. Billed as a detective-mystery drama, "A Dangerous Affair" turns out to be more a travesty than any serious effort to present the not uncommon story of a will read before the family at midnight on the anniversary of the death.

"Through the ministrations of Ralph Graves, a reporter, Jack Holt has become a lieutenant of police in charge of a suburban precinct where spectacular activities of the gendarmerie are unknown. Ralph, to "teach" Sally Blane that the police and journalistic professions are not to be considered lightly, steals her necklace. On the reading of the will, on the occasion of the gathering of the clan, the necklace is found to contain the key to the "buried treasure." In the efforts to get the piece of jewelry and the cache, two murders are committed. Through the combined resourcefulness of the featured players, everything is solved.

Although there are represented the elements found in most all detective and mystery dramas, they are not used in the customary manner. Instead of building up a serious drama, rather has the author fabricated a highly pleasing farce which on more than a couple of occasions takes opportunity to burlesque the type. Throughout the unreeling, Messrs. Holt and Graves have a grand time, even depicting a degree of fear that stalwart gentlemen of the press and minions of the law are not supposed to experience—in pictures.

In lieu of the traditional periodic extinguishing of lights, the current piece introduces a novelty by conducting the "Dangerous Affair" by the feeble gleam of candles and flashlights. The astute observer will probably spot the guilty party (or parties?) in about a half hour, but that need not lessen the anticipation of this well-played farce, or the enjoyment of a mystery drama which has novelty and zest.

Sally Blane, as the sole heiress of the gloomy estate, is charming and is uncontestedly wooed and won by the junior member of the corporation. The supporting cast is large and offers a wide variety of excellent character portrayals.

In the supporting bill, Benny Rubin, as a high-powered accident insurance salesman, heads the list with "Full Coverage," an amusing comedy. "Fly Hi" depicts amorous adventures among the Mr. Aesop's varied family. With examples from golf, tennis and other sports, Grantland Rice's sportlight, "Timing," shows the importance of this essential in athletic encounters. A release of the Pathe News completes the program.

COLUMBIA

"PALMY DAYS." A Samuel Goldwyn picturization of an original story by Eddie Cantor, Morrie Ryskind and Dave Freedman, with music by Harry Akst and Con Conrad, starring Eddie Cantor, supported by Charlotte Greenwood, Barbara Weeks, Spencer Charters, Paul Page and Charles B. Middleton. Directed by Edward Sutherland. Released by United Artists.

If you care for Eddie Cantor, you will care for him in this.

Here, it seems to me, is the sort of vehicle that is as expertly tailored to Mr. Cantor's capabilities as it would be possible to find. To be sure, he has introduced several of his old-time skits from early editions of the "Follies"—and one or two even are repeated from "Whoopee"—but since they are just as funny now as they were in their experimental youth, why not?

Eddie begins as helper in a fake fortune-telling parlor and then becomes efficiency expert in one of the most remarkable bakeries ever conceived by the mind of man. How his two employers become involved in a series of conflicting interests that lead to a thoroughly melodramatic and unbelievable climax furnishes the basis of a succession of hilarious scenes that are packed tight with laughs, and agreeably punctuated by snappy songs and tuneful orchestrations.

While Eddie Cantor comes dangerously near being the whole show, Charlotte Greenwood and Spencer Charters render yeoman's service in support, and Charles Middleton labors intelligently and in deadly seriousness in the role of the charlatan, bent on acquiring wealth by most devious methods.

There are enough beautiful girls in the ensemble to stock a dozen stage musicals and the settings and investitures are original and eye-filling.

The supplementary attractions, carried over from the first week, are in the main enjoyable. N. B. B.

METROPOLITAN

"TWENTY-FOUR HOURS." Paramount picturization of the novel by Louis Bromfield, adapted to the screen by Louis Weitzenkorn, featuring Clive Brook, Kay Francis and Miriam Hopkins, supported by Regis Toomey, Lucille La Verne and Wade Boteler. Directed by Marion Gering.

The maximum possibilities of this strange tale of the opposite extremes of the social scale are perhaps a bit vitiated by the author's attempt to crowd into the length of time represented by the title events that would have taken much longer in the actual performance. There is, despite this occasionally severe handicap upon convincing realism, a sufficiently tense knitting of scenes to rivet the interested attention of any lover of thrills—especially if he has no objection either to sordid backgrounds or morbid plot developments.

A diversity of mesalliances makes it not too fantastic for a wealthy young roue to become involved with a cabaret singer whose husband is a gangster, and for his wife to become at least mildly enamored of a young cad whose affections are cast about with an indiscriminate and profligate hand.

When murder stalks into the lives of this group, there is a not entirely realized opportunity for vivid and engrossing drama.

Clive Brook and Miriam Hopkins, as the rich young rounder and the speakeasy singer of torch songs, contribute excellent studies of a pair of baffled lovers, and Kay Francis is less effective only because her role is not so rich in believable characterization.

The production has been handsomely staged and skillfully directed. The film, in short, by its merit as slightly daring entertainment, justifies its second week on F street.

The surrounding program, held over intact, is highly diverting. N. B. B.

METHODISTS URGED TO RELAX FILM BARS

British Pastor Says Danger Lies in Rigid Censorship; Advises Tolerance.

Atlanta, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Representatives of the Methodist Church from all quarters of the world were told today that danger lies in extremely rigid censorship of the theater.

Addressing the denomination's ecumenical conference on the subject, "The Press and Motion Pictures as International Factors," the Rev. Thomas Tiplady, of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Great Britain, said that although a certain amount of censorship was necessary, the danger of too much should be recognized.

"Let us not make the mistake the Puritans made when they closed the theaters," he added. "Let us, rather, educate the people. Public opinion is the final censorship."

He predicted that all churches 25 years from now will have motion picture apparatus, and that noted pastors will address millions through talking pictures.

"The printing press and the motion picture are the two outstanding factors of history as far as moulding public opinion is concerned," he said. "The church has made a mistake not to adopt the cinema more fully." He also suggested the establishment of a national daily Methodist newspaper as a means of representing adequately church sentiment on current problems.

The conference was also told that unless the church refuses to support nations which want to go to war before seeking arbitration, "war will never be swept off the earth."

"This policy," said the Rev. E. C. Urwin, of the United Methodist Church of Great Britain, may result in conflicts between church and government, but in the end it will bring about world peace."

Chancellor C. W. Flint, of Syracuse University, discussed the prohibition question, saying the Christian view on national responsibility makes "patriotism and Christianity jointly demand that the issue be faced without flinching, without fanaticism and without hypocrisy."

U. S. Hard Bargainer Against Claimants

(Associated Press.)

Claimants for cash damages found Uncle Sam a hard-fisted bargainer last year.

The Court of Claims awarded only $5,828,000 in settling suits seeking over $1,000,000,000 during the fiscal year ended June 30.

The Justice Department said yesterday 1,863 claims, involving $1,930,000,000 were pending at the close of the year, which started with 1,928 claims, aggregating $2,900,000,000, and saw $69,000,000 in new claims filed. In addition, five Indian cases, involving $225,000,000, were filed.

KIN OF M'CORMICK WIN ESTATE FIGHT

Wife of Incompetent Millionaire Loses Effort to Control Fortune.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Mrs. Katherine Dexter McCormick today lost before the State Supreme Court her long fight to be appointed sole conservator of the person and multimillion dollar estate of her mentally incompetent husband, Stanley McCormick, son of Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the reaper.

The high tribunal ruled the Cook County Appellate Court erred in reversing a Circuit Court decision denying her the conservatorship for lack of jurisdiction. The decision held service of suit notice upon Stanley McCormick by publication and mail did not confer jurisdiction upon Illinois courts while he is confined to his estate in Santa Barbara, Calif.

The conservatorship fight was waged through Illinois and California courts, with Mrs. McCormick opposing her husband's brothers, Harold and Cyrus, jr., who were appointed coconservators with her by a California court.

She brought suit in Chicago in 1929 on grounds that she practically had been ousted from the management of her husband's affairs.

In filing the conservator petition, she alleged the brothers and their sister, Mrs. Anita McCormick Blaine, placed him under the care of psychiatrists, whose methods Mrs. McCormick did not approve.

In March, 1930, Mrs. McCormick filed a petition to have her income from his $47,000,000 estate increased from $162,000 annually to $420,000. At that time, she said, a total of $3,000,000 had been spent to cure her husband of his mental ailment.

Another Supreme Court decision today reversed the decision of lower courts in the suit brought by the Chicago Tribune against Michael F. Faherty, president of the Chicago board of local improvements under former Mayor William Hale Thompson; Percy B. Coffin, Thompson adherent, and Edward C. Waller, real estate expert. The suit, started in 1921, charged the defendants and others with conspiring to retain more than $2,250,000 in fees paid real estate experts. The lower court had ruled the defendants owed the City of Chicago $2,254,604, but the high received their fees they had legal court ruling held "when the experts right to spend it or give it away."

Mr. Nichols went to St. Louis to extend the invitation. Mrs. V. H. Stonesifer, of Washington, national secretary of the organization, cooperated.

On January 20 of next year the National Furniture Warehousemen's Association will convene here. C. A. Aspinwall and Arthur Clarendon Smith, of this city, cooperated in bringing the convention to Washington. Attendance was estimated at 800, while the postmasters will send 1,500.

STOCK PRICES RALLY IN SPIRITED TRADING

Pivotal Issues Record Gains From 1 to 4 Points; Late Activity Beneficial.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Stocks Rallied with spirit in today's late trading, and were closely followed by the speculative commodities.

The steel executives' willingness to be conservatively optimistic and the more cheerful tone of the commercial reviews, which felt that sentiment had moved up another notch, had little effect on stock exchange prices during the greater part of the session. In the last hour, however, the lethargic market sudenly came to life and all groups advanced, bringing net gains of 1 to nearly 4 points in pivotal stocks. Sales totaled 1,328,608 snares.

Early advances of a point or so disappeared toward noon, despite the wide circulation given to statements at the steel institute meeting. Nevertheless, the decline encountered very light selling and firmer tendencies developed by early afternoon, finally expanding into considerable strength. Rails assumed a prominent place in the upturn, although in the averages the industrials showed to best advantage.

Shares Showing Gains.

Shares up 3 points or more, net, included American Telephone, Coca Cola, Case, Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and American Can.

United States Steel, Allied Chemical, Atchison, Consolidated Gas, North American, Sears Roebuck, Lambert, Du Pont, National Biscuit, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Loew's, American Smelting, Anaconda, Kennecott, General Electric, General Motors and many others were up 1 to more than 2. U. S. Industrial Alcohol jumped 5, International Business Machine nearly 10 and Auburn 6½.

The mercantile surveys made note of firmer commodity trends and of the beneficial effect cooler weather and improved financial conditions had had on retail and wholesale trade, especially in dry goods. Dun's index of staples showed the largest number of advances for any week since July 4.

Foreign Exchanges Firmer.

Some foreign exchanges moved against the dollar. The French franc firmed, together with Dutch and German currencies, but sterling was off 1½ cents net, to $3.91½. There was no change in short-term money rates here.

The day's gold movement involved exports of some $18,000,000, mostly to France, although more than $5,000,000 went to Holland. Earmark withdrawals reached a total of $5,000,000. There were no imports.

Strength in wheat, which closed 1¾ to 2¼ cents higher, reflected large Farm Board export sales and bullish winter wheat acreage estimates. Foreign buying of futures was reported. Corn firmed ½ to 1½ cents on forecasts of rain and smaller shipments from Argentina. Cotton rose $1.45 to $1.70 a bale, helped by the late strength in stocks.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Big export sales of United States Government-sponsored wheat, together with curtailed estimates of domestic winter wheat seedings gave a hoist to all grains today. Broad general buying took wheat prices to about 2½ cents a bushel over recent bottom figures. As much as 4,000,000 bushels of Federal Farm Board wheat was estimated to have been disposed of to exporters, and the Farm Board was also credited with having sold wheat to Liverpool direct.

Wheat closed strong at virtually the day's top level, 1¾@2¾ cents above yesterday's finish. Corn ½@1½ up, oats ⅛@¼ advanced and provisions unchanged to 7 cents off.

Wheat displayed remarkable vigor in the late dealings after an early downward trend that appeared a result from sympathy with transient weakness of the corn market. During the rapid subsequent upturn of prices, recent speculative sellers of wheat found execution of stop-loss orders imperative. Not only was wheat export business the largest in some time, but cash demand for domestic account was good, despite augmented primary receipts, 1,422,000 bushels, compared with 927,000 a week ago and 670,000 at this time last year.

Liverpool private cables reported a much better demand for American hard winter than has been the case of late, and prices acted further improvement in prices. Current reports indicated also that Europe's import requirements as well as those of the Orient would be larger than last year, with less wheat outside of the United States to supply the demand. The new Australian crop was officially estimated at 39,000,000 bushels, less than last year. In addition, clearances from North America picked up and were 8,536,000 bushels of wheat and flour. An authoritative trade summary covering eleven Central and Southwestern States pointed to 16.4 per cent reduction of winter wheat acreage this season, an amount surpassing generally accepted estimates heretofore.

Corn and oats rallied with wheat, helped by chartering of vessel room for 250,000 bushels of corn to Buffalo. Early downturns of corn prices were associated with impending movement of the new corn crop and with assertions that no adequate outlet was in sight.

Provisions were steadied by rallies in grains.

FEDERAL BONDS TOP SPECIAL PRICE GAINS

Foreign Issues Also Record Rises; Other Obligations Lose at Close.

New York, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Strength in foreign and United States Government obligations featured the bond market today as activity slumped to recent low levels.

Sales on the stock exchange aggregated $11,026,000, the smallest total for a full session since September 9, when the gross turnover was $9,094,000. Railroad loans at times were inclined to rise, but the closing prices left them about where they were the previous day. They were more active, however, than the industrials or public utilities which held pretty close to Thursday's final levels.

The upturn in Treasury and Liberty Loans was ascribed in some quarters to the end of liquidation by holders who had been in need of cash. The upward trend was plain. Several issues advanced more than 1 point, and the Treasury 3¾s of 1943-47 jumped 1½ points, the largest gain of the group.

The upward movement in the foreign group was impressive because of its inclusive nature and the breadth of the individual gains, although trading in many of the issues was moderate and seven quiet. This advance was credited in some quarters to optimism over the Hoover-Laval conferences.

Many foreign issues closed from 1 to 3 points higher and a few of them scored greater advances. Among the bonds notable for their activity or strength were Belgian 7s of 1955 and of 1956, German Central Agricultural Bank Loans, German 5½s and 7s, Medellin 6½s, Japanese 5½s and 6½s, Paris Orleans 5½s, Saxon Public Works 6½s and 7s and United Steel Works series A 6½s.

Atchison general 4s featured the rail group by their heaviness and sold at another bottom level at 88¼.

The New York Stock Exchange announced counterfeit bonds of this issue have been discovered but they are described as "very poorly executed copies," capable of easy detection.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TECH HIGH forged into its fourth consecutive year of undefeated high school series football yesterday afternoon at Central Stadium, when it downed a pugnacious Western High team, 32-0, to lengthen its winning streak to fifteen games and preserve the old Techish custom of winning by runaway scores. There were 4,000 witnesses, and more open play than probably will be seen in the remainder of the schoolboy league.

The count, 32-0, went up on the scoreboard yesterday, but it was an unreasonable index to the real difference between the teams. Tech was not overimpressive. Its back field could nick the horny-handed Western line for but four first downs during the game. Western scored three firsts through the medium of rushing, and lost three more by the margin of two or three inches. Sachs, Tech's 1930 thunderbolt, was fat, slow and as easily spilled as a fifth highball.

Intercepted Passes
Net 3 Scores.

Tech scored three of its five touchdowns on interceptions, the first coming in the first minute of the game when Gramlich blocked Lynham's kick and Gormley, scooping the ball up on the 30-yard line, ran to the touchdown. Gormley and Wohlfarth snared two of the Western passes that darkened the skies in the last period, Gormley running 67 yards for his second tally and Wohlfarth 30.

Tech's offensive was ragged. Only twice during the game, both times in the second quarter, did the attack click. During that time Tech marched from the Western 45-yard line straight down the field to touchdown, mixing passes and end runs with consummate spinner plays. Hatos went through left tackle for 9 yards to score. The half nipped another drive on Western's 30-yard line after an advance of 23 yards.

Meikeljohn Grabs Ball.

Tech's last touchdown was off a pass from Carlton Edwards in midfield in the last quarter, to Al Meikeljohn, who ran 30 yards to score after grabbing the ball from the very hands of three weary Westerners. For all the world it looked like Tech scored but one legitimate touchdown during the day, even to the massive Tech Board of Strategy, which professed to be dismayed at the failure of the team to play in the manner of its predecessors.

The Tech line playing without Jack Rhodes, all-high guard, who went out with a broken nose in the first few minutes, stopped Buscher, Hilleary and Reynolds, but Jackie Lynham, Western's peanut weight half back, had to be brought down nearly every time by the short, beefy Tech secondaries. He ran back punts like a ghost, skirted end as shifty as the grass of a hula dancer and thrice carried Western deep into Tech territory. He hurled two passes, among others, which would have accounted for touchdowns had Hilleary held on to one and Dove to the other.

G. U.-MARYLAND CANCEL.

Georgetown University yesterday asked Maryland to relieve it of its scheduled football game, October 31, between the Maryland "B" squad and the Hilltop Freshmen. The game was to have been played at College Park, Maryland agreed.

The desire of many Georgetown students to follow the varsity team to Boston to view the Georgetown-Boston College game on the same day was given as the Hoya school's reason for seeking a cancellation.

Western Back Stopped by Tech Tackler

Jack Lynham, slightly built half back, but the most consistent ground gainer in the Western back field, is pictured being halted at the scrimmage line by Paul Oehmann, of the Tech secondary defense, in the third period yesterday at Central Stadium.

Special to The Washington Post.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 24.—Georgetown University and Michigan State College football teams were primed tonight for their second game in history, which has all the earmarks of a grudge battle so far as Coach Jimmy Crowley's Spartans are concerned and Coach Tommy Mills' Hoyas will be battling to get back into the winning column after losing to New York University two weeks ago and being held to a scoreless tie by Duquesne last week.

Georgetown will also be out to repeat the victory scored over Michigan State last year, which was the only setback suffered by the Spartans. Georgetown grabbed a 14-point lead in that game, only to see State stage a great comeback in the closing minutes and score 13 points.

The game here tomorrow looks like another thriller. The Georgetown squad arrived here Friday morning and worked out in the stadium in the afternoon. The Hoyas appeared to be in fine fettle and showed plenty of spirit after the long trip.

Michigan State Eleven Groomed.

The State regulars were put through two stiff scrimmage sessions this week to get them on edge for the game and polish off the rough spots which have appeared in early season tilts. Wednesday night the Spartans staged a long offensive drill against freshmen teams and kept up the touchdown parade until well after dark, as the floodlights on the practice field were brought into use. Thursday they drove through a smashing defensive scrimmage.

Coach Crowley has laid a careful defense for Georgetown's crack aerial attack, and during the drills this week has indicated that the Spartans will toss a few forward passes on their own account.

Bob Monnett, State's star half back and flashy open-field runner, will be a marked man for the Hoyas as they are intent upon stopping him to get to the core of the Spartan offense. Both teams are expected to have full strength available for the game, although State's lack of able reserve may prove some disadvantage.

The weather forecast predicted showers for Saturday, but the field, which is well drained, is not expected to be too slippery to permit both teams to use an open attack.

NEW WELTER CHAMPION CROWNED

Lou Brouillard Floors Thompson Twice in Boston Bout.

BOSTON GARDEN, Boston, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Lou Brouillard, 20-year-old southpaw battler from Worcester, tonight gained the welterweight championship by giving Champion Jack Thompson such a terrific battering that the officials turned in a unanimous decision.

Thompson, who gave a decidedly unimpressive performance, appeared burned out. Brouillard had a decisive edge in twelve of the fifteen rounds, and his heavy, but not always accurate, left hooks dropped the defending titlist twice in the tenth with a series of heavy lefts to the jaw and three rounds later with sizzling portside hooks to the Negro's thin body.

Brouillard, the aggressor in every round, piled up a wide lead early. His left was seldom idle and he caused his opponent such distress with this weapon that Thompson tried to convince Referee Johnny Brassil he was fouled when Lou banged over a terrific left that barely landed in fair territory late in the sixth session.

Champions' Protest Ignored.

The defeated champion and his handlers devoted most of the next rest period emphasizing their protests, but they were ignored by the official, who ordered the battlers to resume action when the bell sounded for the seventh.

Thompson was over-cautious during most of the battle. He allowed Brouillard to close in almost at will and pound his body or rip hard lefts to his head. The Negro generally escaped this punishment by turning savagely on his rival and driving his head back with a steaming right. His rushes, however, were never sustained.

Michigan State-G. U. Contest on Gridgraph

Followers of Georgetown's Football Team, which meets Michigan State today at East Lansing, may watch the progress of the game today through the medium of the university's gridgraph, rigged up in the gymnasium on the Hilltop.

A nominal fee of 25 cents is charged. The instrument commences operation at 2 o'clock.

Texas' Invasion of Harvard Shares Spotlight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Ancient football rivalries, cloaked in traditions which raise them to epic proportions in the eyes of partisans, share interest tomorrow along a Nation-wide front with newer relationships of more promising playing possibilities.

Up at Cambridge, a group of charging Texas Longhorns will help Harvard make history, not merely add to it, in a game that is as fresh as today's newspaper.

But it will lose little interest because it is new or because it is played on the same Saturday with such traditional games as Yale-Army, Navy-Princeton, Nebraska-Kansas, Michigan-Illinois, California-Southern California, Stanford-Washington, Baylor-Texas A. and M., and half a hundred others which probably were started before Boston ever heard of Texas University.

Harvard Seen As Favorite

Enthused by its victory over Army and led by the quick thinking Barry Wood, Harvard is considered something of an edge over the invaders from the Lone Star State, but the Longhorns are a hard-hitting bunch of range riders, born to the leather, and with the nation-wide spotlight turned on them may give Wood and his mates considerably more than they can handle.

In the East main interest will center in the Yale-Army conflict at New Haven, the thirty-first of a series which began in 1893. Both teams have been defeated this year, but that detracts little from a meeting of Bulldog and Army Mule, especially with Albie Booth, Yale's Little Boy Blue, attempting to make it two out of three for his meetings with the West Pointers.

Penn Is Host To Wisconsin.

Two other invaders come into the East, Wisconsin to meet the University of Pennsylvania at Franklin Field and Drake to New York City to play Fordham's unbeaten array. In a strictly intrastate engagement which promises some of the best football in the Eastern sector, Colgate meets New York University at New York.

WILBERT ROBINSON.

Carey Named Robins' New Manager

Former Pirate Star Replaces Robinson After 17 Years.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—The factional war that has been raging within the councils of the Brooklyn National League team for six years culminated today in the removal of Wilbert Robinson, one of baseball's colorful old guard, as manager, and the appointment of Max Carey as his successor.

Forecast all through the past season as the only solution of the bitter controversy between Steve McKeever and the heirs of Charley Ebbets, co-owners of the club, the removal of "Uncle Robbie" was by unanimous vote of the five directors. Carey was given a one-year contract.

The impasse was broken only through the efforts of Walter "Dutch" Carter, former Yale star pitcher who was accepted by both factions as a neutral and fifth member of the board two years ago when the league itself found it necessary to attempt unofficially to calm the troubled waters. Despite the hostility of McKeever, bitterly opposed to Robinson while the Ebbets heirs supported the 64-year-old warrior, it is understood that a cash gift of $10,000 was given "Uncle Robbie" along with his release.

Managed Robins For 17 Years.

Robinson, 64 years old and next to last of big league survivors of the famous old "Baltimore Orioles" of 1895-6-7 that numbered John McGraw, Willie Keeler and Hugie Jennings in its membership, became manager of the Robins seventeen years ago. Round and fat and jolly, he has been famous in baseball circles for his keen wit.

There was a possibility today that he might land the managerial post with the Pittsburgh Pirates left vacant by the release of Jewel Ens or that he might continue in baseball as a scout for the New York Yankees

St. John's and Hopkins Battle at Baltimore

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 23.—With the traditional ceremony held about a monster bonfire on the rear campus tonight, to fire their enthusiasm, the football players of St. John's are ready for the annual gridiron engagement with their most ancient rivals, to be staged on Homewood Field, Baltimore, tomorrow afternoon.

The student body and band will be on hand for the game, and, with Navy playing at Princeton, Annapolis will send a large delegation of fans to root for the Johnnies.

Whelan Leads C. U. to 12-7 Victory

Runs 69 Yards With Pass in Defeat of Carolina State.

Also Intercepts Toss for Touchdown on 75-Yard Romp.

Special to The Washington Post.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 23.—Led by Jack Whelan, as fast a stepping back as has been seen here this season, Catholic University's Cardinals gained a 12 to 7 victory over North Carolina State College's Wolf Pack here tonight.

All the scoring was limited to the first half, with Catholic University getting off to an early lead when Whelan took a pass from Oliver and galloped 69 yards for a touchdown. De Mello failed to convert the extra point.

The Cardinals put up a noble stand at the beginning of the second period, holding State's Wolf Pack for downs on the 6-inch line, Jeffrey failing to carry the ball over after Kneken, Cook and School, had worked the ball into scoring position.

Whelan Intercepts Ill-fated Pass.

Catholic's second touchdown came later in the period when Whelan intercepted a Wolf Pack pass, and raced 75 yards for the score. De Mello again failed at placement.

Two 15-yard penalties on the Cardinals for backfield motion, gave State its scoring opening near the end of the half. With the ball on his own 7-yard line, De Mello's attempted punt was smeared by half a dozen State linemen, and Greason recovered the ball over the goal line for the touchdown. McQuage converted with a place kick to end the scoring.

The Cardinals made only one first down to State's six, and the visitors

Liberty Cup Finalists Even After 18 Holes

In the final round of the Liberty Cup competition, on the course of the Chevy Chase Club yesterday, between Gen. C. B. Drake and Walter G. Peter, the eighteen-hole round ended all even. As the match is being played on a handicap basis, both contestants will resume the struggle in another eighteen-hole round at 11 o'clock this morning.

Detroit U. Defeats West Virginia, 9-7

Decisive Touchdown Follows Punt Recovered Behind Goal Line.

Detroit, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—University of West Virginia's gridiron power house generated its first touchdown in three years of competition against University of Detroit tonight, but it wasn't enough, and the Titans won, 9 to 7.

All of the scoring was concentrated in the second period, climaxed by a blocked punt which gave the Titans their winning margin.

Rocky Parsaca, Titan half back, swung his educated toe from the Mountaineers' 15-yard line early in the period, after the West Virginia line had proved impregnable, to make the score 3 to 0.

Then Capt. Doyle, of the Mountaineers, eluded the Titans on a fake double pass and skirted right end for a 45-yard sprint and a touchdown.

Then began a Detroit march down the field, Parsaca and Rajkovich reeling off 8, 9 and 23 yards at a time, which was stopped finally when the Mountaineers threw Bill O'Neill, last year's star, for a 12-yard loss. The Mountaineers took the ball on downs. Stone's punt was blocked by Hess, substitute for Coening, who fell on the ball over the goal for the last score of the game.

This Morning with Shirley L. Povich

JONATHAN K. ESPEY, the second best-dressed sports writer in our fair city, lifts his nose from the dopesheets and announces that he is challenging this column again to a football experting contest on the outcomes of today's games.

I will dismiss the result of last week's contest between Mr. Espey and myself with the notation that this column's entries were forced into the heavy going in the middle of the track, and were taken wide at all the turns, but were going fastest at the finish.

Flushed by his success, Mr. Espey takes this column to task for last week's debacle with a message that doesn't ruffle my confidence in my ability to outpick Mr. Espey in anything, even lavender shirts and tie ensembles. He may not know that I have picked Jim Londos as the winner in 745 consecutive wrestling matches with uninterrupted success. He writes:

"Dear Mr. Povich:

"It seems to me that you are a glutton for punishment, but as long as you wish to show that you are the second best picker of football winners, certainly I am not going to stand in the way of your achievement.

"As countless thousands already know, you were virtually extinguished from the field of experts last Saturday when, at your own insistence, I was forced to plaster an awful beating on your record. I do not suppose that you will soon forget that you failed to pick a winner in six attempts, while yours truly batted .500—three winners and three tie games. Well, here is your second beating:

"Marquette to beat Boston College.
"Purdue to beat Carnegie Tech.
"Columbia to beat Williams.
"Fordham to beat Drake.
"Texas to beat Harvard.
"Washington and Jefferson to beat Lafayette.
"New York U. to beat Colgate.
"Wisconsin to beat Pennsylvania.
"Navy to beat Princeton.
"Army to beat Yale.
"Maryland to beat V. M. I.
"Alabama to beat Sewanee.
"Auburn to beat Florida.
"Georgia to beat Vanderbilt.
"Kentucky to beat V. P.
"Tennessee to beat North Carolina.
"Tulane to beat Georgia Tech.
"Virginia to beat Washington and Lee.
"Michigan State to beat Georgetown.
"Indiana to tie Chicago.
"Michigan to beat Illinois.
"Missouri to beat Iowa State.
"Minnesota to beat Iowa.
"Notre Dame to beat Pittsburgh.
"Northwestern to beat Ohio State.
"Baylor to beat Texas Aggies.
"Southern California to beat California.
"Stanford to beat Washington.
"St. Mary's to beat Gonzaga."

Pitt-Notre Dame Battle Shares Midwest Interest

Ohio State-Northwestern Clash Holds Stage in Big Ten; Indiana Seeks to End Chicago's 21-Year Domain.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

CHICAGO, Oct. 23 (A.P.).—Ohio State battles Northwestern tomorrow before 75,000 in the huge stadium at Columbus, rushing to a climax the Western Conference championship situation.

The only other game in the Midwest to stand up with this conflict is the Pittsburgh-Notre Dame struggle at South Bend. However, another game of importance will be the Michigan-Illinois game at Champaign, a traditoinal affair, staged as the homecoming of the Illini.

Chicgo returns to the conference wars, meeting Indiana at Stagg Field, while Minnesota will engage in its first conference competition, playing Iowa at Minneapolis. Wisconsin and Purdue will go East in search of trouble, with the Badgers engagnig Pennsylvania at Philadelphia and Purdue invading Pittsburgh for a game with Carnegie Tech.

Northwestern, with victories over Nebraska, the Los Angeles University of California team and a scoreless tie with Notre Dame, has a chance tomorrow to virtually clinch the Western Conference title, if victorious over the Buckeyes. It will be Northwestern's opening venture into Big Ten competition, and if the Wildcats successfully handle the Buckeyes, there appears to be an excellent chance for them to tear along in the remainder of their schedule in stride, all other things being equal. After the Ohio game, the Wildcats face Illinois, Minnesota, Indiana and Iowa, all of which appear to be of doubtful strength at the present.

The Wildcat-Buckeye game promises to be close, with the result in doubt, but with Northwestern a slight favorite because of its strong first-line players. Ohio, by virtue of its victory, over Michigan, definitely stamped itself as championship contender, and threatens to be dangerous from the start, with a sparkling backfield and Carl Cramer, the sophomore, who conquered Michigan, looming up as a real star at quarter back.

Pittsburgh, with a veteran line rated as its best in ten years, will ehter the game with Notre Dame in high hopes of victory, but other Notre Dame opponents have entered other contests with the same spirit. Pittsburgh has an unblemished record in the East, but that lopsided 63-to-0 score which the Ramblers ran up on Drake a week ago is enough to give the Panthers the shakes. Pittsburgh will provide

"Dreadnaught" Ring Division For Giants Is Muldoon's Plan

NEW YORK, Oct. 23 (U.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission, which originally sponsored the "junior" lightweight and welterweight divisions and later repudiated them as "trick" divisions, moved today to add a new "dreadnaught" class to boxing.

The "dreadnaught" class, as proposed by Commissioner William Muldoon, would include such giants as Primo Carnera, Victorio Campolo, Walter Cobb, George Godfrey, Ray Impel and Jose Santos, who Muldoon contends, are too big to fight Sharkey, Loughran and other top-ranking heavyweights.

Commissioner Muldoon proposed a bout between Campolo and Carnera for the "world's championship" in the new division and the match was made a few hours later by Jimmy Johnston, of Madison Square Garden. Campolo and Carnera agreed to fight fifteen rounds at the Garden November 27, and contracts for the bout will be signed Monday.

Previous to suggesting the Campolo-Carnera match the commission disapproved a proposed match between Carnera and Tommy Loughran, the Philadelphia boxing master, who gave Campolo a sound thrashing last spring. Loughran, like Paulino Uzcudun, the commission contended, is "too small" to make a "worthy opponent" for Carnera.

Loughran countered the commission's action by filing an official challenge for Jack Sharkey's American heavyweight championship. The commission also intimated that it would not allow Mickey Walker, retired undefeated middleweight champion, to campaign as a heavyweight.

G. U.-Virginia Game Is Sought For Relief of Capital's Needy

RECONCILED that no power can bring Maryland and Georgetown Universities together in a charity football game, George J. Adams, executive secretary of the District of Columbia committee on employment, yesterday invited the University of Virginia to participate in a game with Georgetown December 12 at Griffith Stadium, with an equal division of the gate receipts to go to the needy of Virginia and the District.

In a telegram to James Driver, Virginia's director of athletics, Adams pointed out yesterday that if the game is arranged it should bring $50,000 to the rescue of this region's hungry and homeless. A copy of the telegram was sent to Hon. John Garland Pollard, Governor of Virginia, pointing out that both Virginia and the District would share alike in the returns from the game.

Virginia and Georgetown have not met since 1912, and innumerable times since then have the football-minded in the Middle Atlantic States looked upon a possible meeting as one of the juiciest plums of college grid fare. Adams pointed out that one of the

CREEK SCORES IN STEEPLECHASE FEATURE AT LAUREL

The Heathen Triumphs in Sprint

Portcodine Beaten 2 Lengths at Six Furlongs in 1:11 4-5.

Playaround Scores in Opener; Barcelona Pete Also Wins.

By J. R. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL RACE TRACK, Oct. 23.—Thomas Hitchcock's Creek won the Bucklands Steeplechase, feature here today, by a length, with A. Scott up. A. C. Bostwick's Pokey Joe, with G. H. (Pete) Bostwick in the saddle, beat Stephen Sanford's Dark Magne by a head for place, and Taos, twelve lengths back, was fourth. The winner paid $13.70.

Four horses fell. They were: Supremity, C. Jones, jockey; Harry Heilman, B. Howard, jockey; Brunette Preferred, N. Brooks, jockey; Arundel, J. Ball, jockey. Joe Engle lost his rider, J. Dawson, at the fourteenth fence.

Dark Magne set the pace most of the route, with Creek always in contention. Pokey Joe moved up resolutely, and the *three cleared the last fence in close formation, but Creek outran them to the wire, increasing his lead to a length.

The infield was sprinkled before the race, an innovation for bettering the course, which was very dry.

Howard, who fell with Harry Heilman, was found to have suffered concussion of the brain, and Jones, on Supremity, a fracture of the collarbone. Both were taken to a Baltimore hospital.

The Heathen Best In Sprint.

Harvey Pierce's veteran, The Heathen, won his third race at this meeting when he accounted for the fifth, a 6-furlong dash which attracted a good field, and the best race of the afternoon on the flat. He was ridden by the star jockey, W. Nertney. Portcodine was second, and Flag Time, closing fast, third. The time was fast, 1:11 4-5. Nertney took the horse out in front. Out Bound was the first to challenge The Heathen, and when he tired Portcodine took up the running and held on for the place, paying $16. Flag Time was away poorly.

John Goff's Mine Sweeper, Lauch Up, won the sixth race in a gallop and rewarded his backers to the extent of $27.50 for $2. Chatty was second and Fervid third. The money was mostly down on Dunlin's Lad, Nertney's mount and the best he could do was fourth. Dunlin's Lad was close to the pace on the backstretch but weakened badly. Fervid ran an even race, but Chatty nipped her for the place money.

Max Hirsch landed his colt, Barcelona Pete, at a good price, in a nose finish with High Devine. High Devine was coupled with Some Knight as the Trainer Trueman entry, and was favorite. A pocket handkerchief would have covered the noses of the first three horses for Mr. W. M. Jeffords' horse, Thursday, was third, a head behind the two in front. Barcelona Pete paid $22.20, and this was his second score at the meeting. Tempus set the pace until High Devine and Blaze White got close. Barcelona Pete came along in the stretch and upset a heavily backed play on the entry.

The Wisteria Stable's Fair Bill got up in time to win the third race and snatch victory from Fourth Ward, which, coming into the stretch, seemed to have disposed of his opposition. Nealon Kay, which was made too much of on the back stretch in running Underdone into defeat, came again and got third. Fair Bill paid $41.70, with V. Arthur in the saddle. Underdun, a field horse, got off in front, with Nealon Kay close after him. Fair Bill made his winning spurt in the stretch. The time was 1:53 4-5, a mile and a furlong.

Playaround Scores In Opener.

The Valley Lake Stable's Playaround won the first race for maiden 2-year-old fillies, with W. Garner up. The Foxcatcher Farm's Firade was second and Mrs. K. E. Hitt's Facchina third. Two of the field group, Donya and Diana D., went to the front from the starting gate and appeared to have the race one, two. Diana D. at the eighth pole was two lengths in front, but she quit faster than Donya which was fourth. The winner paid $9.80. The time was 1:08 1-5 for five and a half furlongs. Willie Garner, who had the mount on Playaround, made his move in the stretch and won by two lengths. The field was backed down from 30 to 1 to 8.

W. R. Kirkpatrick's veteran racer Ruane, with Jockey W. Nertney in the saddle, captured the seventh race with a fine display of courage and speed in the final sixteenth. The winner, heavily backed, paid $5.30 in the $2 mutuels.

Nertney restrained Ruane during the early stages and then allowed him to slip into full stride while racing on the outside. In the meantime, Trenchard was making a bid with Homelike, a fairly long shot, and this horse looked like the winner as the field rounded the far turn into the stretch. Here, however, the game Kirkpatrick entry responded to urging and wore Homelike down to gain a margin of one length as the wire was reached. Judge PLAYAROUND, kept under stout pressure from the start while within striking distance of the leaders, swung to the outside for the final drive, wore the leaders down and was going away under pressure. FIRADE, hard ridden the entire trip, faltered after displacing DANA D. FACCHINA, slow to get going, came with belated speed for the closing test. DONYA showed a good effort under strong handling. BOOST came determinedly after lacking early speed. MAZYNIATA raced well throughout.

Latter, reserved for the first turn of the field, saved ground in the late stages and fought it out gamely. DARK MAGNE, rated in front and jumping cleverly, disposed of BRUNETTE PREFERRED and held on resolutely. TAOS, well throughout, weakened in the final half mile. OUTLAW was unable to reach the leaders. ARGONAUT stumbled at the tenth fence and fell beak badly thereafter. JOE ENGEL unseated his rider at the final fence.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FAIR BILL, $41.70, $14.70, $7.10; FOURTH WARD, $3.70, $2.70; NEALON KAY, $3.80.

FAIR BILL, hurried into his best stride, secured racing room on the inside until reaching the home stretch, came around the Sacemaker entering the home stretch, finished stoutly and was up in the final sixteenth. FOURTH WARD, following close up, displaced UNDERDUN midway of the last turn, but could not meet the winner's effort. NEALON KAY worked his way up on the outside and closed gamely. UNDERDUN faltered and weakened in the last three furlongs.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 2-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:27½. Winner, M. Hirsch's ch. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BARCELONA PETE, $22.20, $6.60, $3.60; HIGH DEVINE, $2.80, $2.50; THURSDAY, $4.00.

BARCELONA PETE, away quickly, but outpaced for the first half mile, secured racing room between THURSDAY and HIGH DEVINE during the stretch run and, in a stout finish, was up in the concluding strides. HIGH DEVINE, a keen factor from the start, held on well for the final drive. THURSDAY, forced to be rushed hard from the beginning to secure racing room on the inside, raced BLAZE WHITE into submission, but tired in the stretch run. ALTMARK finished with good courage.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:01. Off at 4:02. Winner, C. H. Pierce's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—THE HEATHEN, $4.00, $3.20, $2.60; PORTCODINE, $16.00, $7.40; FLAG TIME, $4.30.

THE HEATHEN, assuming command shortly after the start, drew clear when approaching the home stretch, was kept under pressure and held PORTCODINE safe in front. Latter, going in his best form and a keen factor from the start, was unable to menace the winner in the final test. FLAGTIME improved his position on the outside and came stoutly in the concluding drive.

SIXTH RACE—Mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,500; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:35. Off at 4:36. Winner, J. Goff's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MINE SWEEPER, $27.50, $11.00, $6.90; CHATTY, $7.60, $4.60; FERVID, $6.30.

MINE SWEEPER, quick to begin and showing good speed, drew clear when moving into the back stretch, saved ground the entire trip and was never menaced. CHATTY worked his way up on the outside and came with a belated effort when straightened up, displaced UNDERDUN midway of the last turn, but could not meet the winner's effort. FERVID saved a lot of ground by slipping through on the inside the final furlong. DUNLIN'S LAD steadied, along in pursuit of the pacemakers, inside at the first turn, had a lot taken out of her being rushed, and faltered when weakened when put to a drive. SUNEROS was not good enough.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,300; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:10. Off at 5:15½. Winner, W. R. Two-dollar mutuels paid—RUANE, $5.30, $3.60, $3.20; HOMELIKE, $10.70, $7.30; JUDGE CAVERLY, $9.90.

RUANE, restrained off the early pace and allowed to reach full stride, went to the outside for racing room and, closing fast when reaching the home stretch, wore HOMELIKE down in the final sixteenth. HOMELIKE, rated along early, displaced FIRE BRIGADE when ready, saved ground, but could not withstand the winner

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)
—Laurel Selections—
By J. B. SNODGRASS.

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 23.—Laurel has offered a program of racing for tomorrow that marks the peak of racing here and will draw a crowd of 25,000, featuring the $25,000 Selima Stakes for 2-year-old fillies at a mile, with stars like TOP FLIGHT and KAKAPO among the entries. This is a championship battle surely between the East and the West. In addition there will be the Maryland Handicap of $15,000 added at a mile and a quarter, in which MATE stands out, Twenty Grand having been retired. The Maryland is for 3-year-olds.

C. V. Whitney's TOP FLIGHT is easily the champion 2-year-old of either sex, and she is not burdened with weight, Selima not being a handicap, and her penalties letting her by with only 122 pounds. She has won all of her starts, winning six stakes, including the rich Belmont Futurity, and will surpass the 2-year-old money winning record set by Domino if she wins the Selima. Up to the present TOP FLIGHT has amassed $165,890. Domino's mark at the end of his 2-year-old racing was $170,890.

There is no question about R. S. Clark's KAKAPO having unusual class, for when a filly can defeat colts in the mile-long Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes, as she did this fall, she is not to be considered lightly. This is the stake in which Twenty Grand defeated Equipoise last year. KAKAPO has won many races in the West besides the Jockey Club victory.

W. R. Coe's POLONAISE, coupled with LAUGHING QUEEN, seems next best of this flashing field of speedy fillies. She has been training well at this track, and may give KAKAPO a run for second money. DELICACY, RABBIT SKIN, SARIETTA and MODERN QUEEN are best of the others, apparently.

The Maryland Handicap paid its winner last year, Her Grace, $16,550, and the filly ran the mile and a quarter in 2:03 3-5. MATE, since the retirement of Twenty Grand, stands almost alone among the 3-year-olds, and probably will win the stake, but he lacks consistency. He was beaten at Havre de Grace by Tambourine, a filly. The field he beat in the rich Carter Produce Stakes in Canada was very ordinary, but the retirement of Twenty Grand from the 3-year-old colony and Sun Beau from the handicap division makes it possible if not probable that the Bostwick horse will be the money-winning horse of the year. Mrs. Whitney's ST. BRIDEAUX has been training well, better than any time this year, and should give MATE a run for the money. RISQUE, Mrs. Hertz's filly, which won the Alabama at Saratoga, should not be overlooked. She beat Tambour, and is better than she was then. She likes a route, and has beaten Tambour, which de feated MATE. BACKGAMMON, BLENHEIM and CLOCK TOWER are others having a chance to get in the money.

FIRST RACE—SUN TWEED is very fast in workouts and is selected for BLACK MAJESTY will give the old warrior a battle and should be secThursday entitles him to the third race. He is coupled with FOLLOW ON as the Sagamore entry, and can carry the weight, now 130 pounds. the first race for 2-year-olds, being also eligible for the Selima.

SECOND RACE—GLENNO should repeat in the second. He can beat this kind most any time. Jodphur is overdue and hunting the spot. Has worked fast. PRINCESS ISABEL always shows a burst of speed in a race, and is regarded a contender.

THIRD RACE—BALKO is back in good form, and his record race ond. MISSTEP may be dangerous. He was third to Balko the other day, showing he had his old speed again.

SIXTH RACE—THE GEN is selected to beat the consistent EAGER PLAY in the sixth. THE GEN closed fast in his last, and Garner will ride. ANGRY PLUME, with a good ride, would be dangerous.

SEVENTH RACE—MADCAP MARVIN has a chance in the seventh race, with BUTTER JOHN, a winner here, and PLAIN DEALER, the contenders. There is little difference among these.

ACES OF MAT ON CHARITY PROGRAM

Turner to Pit Steele Against Jones in Benefit Bout.

RAY STEELE, Paul Jones, Sandor Szabo, Rudy Dusek, and Carl Pojello, five of the biggest names in wrestling, will appear on next Thursday night's mat card at the Washington Auditorium, the proceeds from which will be turned over to the District of Columbia committee on unemployment. Matchmaker Joe Turner completed a program of five exhibitions yesterday.

Steele, rated one of the three best in the business, will take on Paul Jones, a great local favorite. Sandor Szabo, Hungarian strong boy, tackles a reformed big league baseball pitcher in Al Pierotti, formerly with the Boston Braves. Rudy Dusek, the mat's roughest member, meets Matros Kirilenko, Russian wrestler. Carl Pojello, best of the 190-pound wrestlers, meets Justo Geraldi, a recent importation, and Tiger Nelson matches eye-gouging with Bennie Ginsberg.

It looms as the greatest collection of first-rate wrestlers ever seen here encompassed within one show. The caliber of the card itself, coupled with the charity background, should fill the Auditorium to capacity. Several added inducements are in the process of being made. The Elks' Band, 50 strong, is listed among these.

HAWKS FIND NEW ACE IN DALGLISH

"Sandlot" Product to Play Against Celtic Club Tomorrow.

A YOUNG man who learned his football on the rough fields of "Foggy Bottom" and who rose to a star rank in the Capital City League is being counted upon by the Mohawks to hustle the ball goalward this season. Tomorrow, when the Hawks battle the Northern Celtics at Griffith Stadium, Capital fans will be given their first opportunity to see Tuck Dalglish perform in the "big time."

Dalglish made his debut with the Mohawks last Sunday against Irvington at Baltimore and, according to Manager Patsy Donovan, earned himself a job for the season with his fleet-footed ball-carrying and his rugged defensive work. Although it is unlikely that Coach Snitz Snyder will start him, the West End speedboy is sure to get a chance to show his wares.

Both the Hawks and the Celtics have been busy this week brushing up on their plays for tomorrow's South Atlantic League game. The Celtics will have a commanding lead of two victories in as many starts providing they can overcome the Indians.

MRS. HAYNES WINS MIDDLE ATLANTIC TITLE ON 22D HOLE

District Star Beats Mrs. Morrow

Rivals All Even With Cards of 88 After 18 Holes.

Long Drive on Final Hole Is Factor in Triumph.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

MRS. J. MARVIN HAYNES, former District amateur women's golf champion, yesterday won the Middle Atlantic women's golf championship, after a prolonged battle which carried her to the twenty-second hole. She defeated Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, of Baltimore, in the final round, played yesterday on the course of the Indian Spring Club. Mrs. Morrow has twice won the Middle Atlantic women's championship and was runner-up last year.

The final round bristled with all manner of plays, some good and some more or less indifferent, but at all times the contest was close enough to hold the interest of the large gallery which followed the match. With the first hole halved in 5s, Mrs. Haynes became 1 up when she won the second hole in 4 by virtue of a single putt and became 2 up when Mrs. Morrow took 3 putts for a 6 on the fifth green. She became 3 up with a 4 on the sixth, and although she lost the eighth she was 2 up at the turn. She was out in 42, as against Mrs. Morrow's 44, and might have been 40 if 2 putts had dropped. On the ninth green her ball stopped in the lip of the cup.

Dramatics Feature

Inward Nine.

The inward nine furnished the dramatic features of the match. Mrs. Haynes lost the twelfth hole when she played her third shot into a trap. Being still 1 up, she lost a chance to win the thirteenth when, after a fine approach shot, she missed a 4-footer for a win. Lady Luck smiled on her on the fourteenth hole, for, after driving into the trap short of the green, she reached the green in 2, halving the hole with Mrs. Morrow, who took 3 putts after driving the green.

On the fifteenth the match was squared, Mrs. Morrow running down a 35-foot putt from the edge of the green for a 4. On the sixteenth Mrs. Morrow's fourth shot was just off the edge of the green, but she expended 3 strokes for a half in 7 with her opponent, who also took 3 putts. Again on the seventeenth hole the door was wide open for Mrs. Morrow, for Mrs. Haynes, after playing her tee shot into a trap, was not out with her second shot. Reaching the green in 3, although Mrs. Morrow, who had sliced her drive into the rough, was on the green in 2, she holed out in 2 putts, Mrs. Morrow taking 3 from a distance of not more than 20 feet, so that the hole was halved in 5s.

With the eighteen halved, Mrs. Haynes missed a 4-foot putt on the nineteenth, which would have given her the match, while on the twentieth hole Mrs. Morrow missed an even shorter putt for a win. The twenty-first was halved.

On the twenty-second hole, the crucial hole of the match, Mrs. Morrow's drive was to the right and in the rough, while Mrs. Haynes, who had been driving an average of 190 to 200 yards throughout the round, was fully 225 yards straight down the fairway. Mrs. Morrow failed to reach the green on her second. In an endeavor to get home on her second shot Mrs. Haynes used wood and pulled her shot far over into the rough. However, with a fine mashie niblick approach, she reached the green in 3, her ball stopping about 15 feet below the cup. Then the unexpected happened. Mrs. Morrow missed her third shot, and on her fourth was about 6 feet above the cup. When she missed her putt, Mrs Haynes had no difficulty in holing out for a 5 and a win for the championship, gaining the title of Middle Atlantic champion for the first time. The cards:

Out—
Mrs. Haynes....	5	4	5	5—42
Mrs. Morrow....	5	5	6	5—44
In—
Mrs. Haynes....	5	4	5	5—46—88
Mrs. Morrow....	5	4	4	4—44—88

Extra holes—

Mrs. Haynes	5	5	5	5
Mrs. Morrow	5	5	5	5

All the final matches yesterday were interesting, not the least being the contest between Mrs. M. Louise Bell, the defending champion, and Mrs. H. R. Quinter, of the Columbia Club, in the consolation of the first flight. Mrs. Quinter, who was two up on the sixteenth tee, lost both the sixteenth and the seventeenth holes, taking four putts on the latter green, and then losing on the nineteenth hole when she missed two shots in succession. The summary:

FIRST FLIGHT—Final round, Mrs. J. M. Haynes (Col.) defeated Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow (Elkridge), 1 up, 22 holes. Consolation, Mrs. M. Louise Bell (Rodgers Forge) defeated Mrs. H. R. Quinter (Col.), 2 up, 19 holes.

SECOND FLIGHT—Mrs. T. M. Shock (Army-Navy) defeated Mrs. J. V. Brownell (Indian Spring), 3 and 2. Consolation, Mrs. R. Lester Rose (Cons.) defeated Miss Louise Claytor (Chevy Chase), 4 and 2.

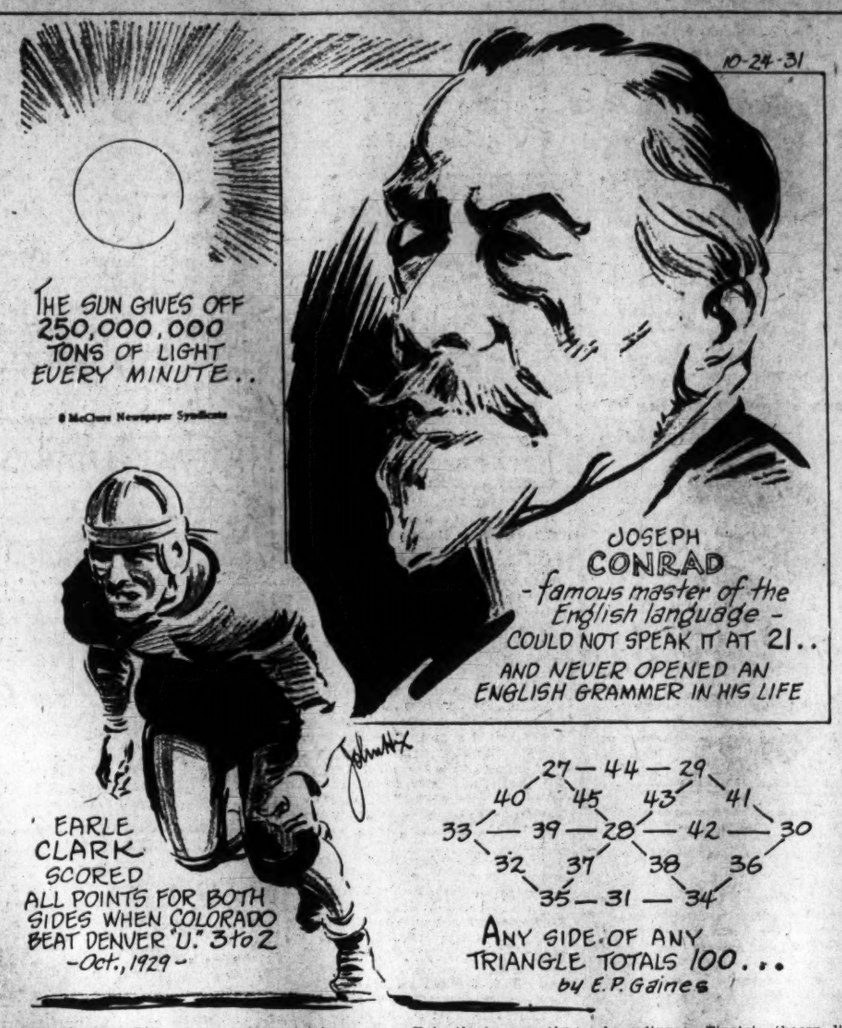
STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix



JOSEPH CONRAD'S real name was Theodor Josef Konrad Korzeniowski. He did not take to writing seriously until nearly 40 years old, and although he knew nothing of the English language at the age of 21, he became recognized as an English expert.

"My first English reading was the Standard newspaper," Conrad wrote to a friend as late as 1911, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica, "and my first acquaintance by the ear with it was in the speech of fishermen, shipwrights and sailors of the East Coast. But in 1880 I had mastered the language sufficiently to pass the first examination for officers in the merchant service, including a viva voce of more than two hours. But 'mastered' is not the right word; I should have said 'acquired.' I've never opened an English grammar in my life."

Earle Clark, captain and quarter back of Colorado, scored all points for both sides, when he grounded a pass back of his own goal, for a Denver safety and later kicked a field goal for Colorado.

According to Einstein theory, light really has weight. The sun gives off 250,000,000 tons of light every minute, so that it is growing smaller at the rate of 360,000,000,000 tons every day. An ordinary electric lamp could produce an ounce of light, but it would have to burn 2,000,000 years to do it.

Hitting —The— Head Pin

Lindsey Stott established some sort of a record Wednesday night when he clicked off thirteen consecutive marks in a special match with Bill Gartrell, rolled at the Arcadia alleys. Lindsey got marks in the last three boxes of his second game, and then added ten more in his final effort. Incidentally the score in his final game was 192, just 16 pins short of Al Work's 208 record. His set was a paltry 449. Tut, tut, Lindsey, you will have to do better than that.

Gartrell shot games of 127, 107 and 132, for a set of 366. Although he won the first game, Bill was just taking his turn in the last two, as the score indicates.

For those who like their sweepstakes the King Pin alleys will operate its popular Saturday night event starting tonight. This event enjoyed wide popularity among the bowlers last season and large entry lists are expected again this year.

With Bradley Mandley and Ray Von Dreel leading the way the Fountain Hams pounded out a 3-0 decision over King Pin in a District League match rolled at King Pin last night. Mandley had high game of 147 and a set of 398, while Von Dreel's best effort was a game of 129 and set of 368. The Hams won with ease in the first two games, but barely nosed out their rivals in the final.

Carroll Daly is back in the rut, which means that Lucky won another 2-1 victory in the National Capital League last night. Rolling on their home alleys, Bill Wood's crew stopped Takoma Park, but not until the second game did they get going. Daly registered a 98 score in his initial effort of the evening. But he was not alone as Weidman fell even lower in the final setto, ringing up a skimpy 89, which is bad in any league. Brill compensated for his teammates' weakness with three good games, two of which were above the 130 mark.

Standard Art Marble furnished the fireworks in the Building Contractors League last night, hanging up new marks for high game and high set with scores of 635 and 1,706. Louis Freschi rolled a 393 set, which tops the individual efforts for the season, to aid the team in its three-game triumph over Smoot's Sand.

In the other matches rolled the leading Minte Paint quint took three from Evans Plumbing, and Fuller Stone Plant did likewise to Moyer. Heffron won the odd game from D. C. Butcher, Massopomax Sand downed Southern Asbestos, 2-1, and Fuller Co. took a one-game win over A. W. Lee. Ray Raeder led Todd to its 2-1 win over Rosslyn Steel.

Tournament Tomorrow For Southpaw Golfers

Entries will be received today for the left-handers' championship golf tournament, to be played tomorrow on the course of the Indian Spring Club. Competition will be 36 holes medal play, and a large number of left-handed golfers have already registered. Sam Rice, who won the title last year, will defend his crown. The trophy which will be awarded the victor has been presented by Lester A. Reeves.

G. W. VARSITY ROUTS CUBS BY 33-0

Doyle Runs 93 Yards to Score Initial Touchdown.

SNOWING the ambitious freshmen underneath a rain of forward passes, and some not-too-impressive ball running, George Washington University's Varsity last night defeated its little brothers, 33-0, before 400 fans at Griffith Stadium.

The Varsity scored three of its five touchdowns as a result of overhead work, Wayne Chambers snagging two pigskins out of the air, into which they had been launched by Lee Carlin, sharpshooting quarter back for the first team.

Johnny Doyle dominated the early part of the game, in which Coach Pixlee sent his varsity reserves in against the plebes. Doyle put the scoring under way when he stepped through the left side of the line, eluded a set of secondaries and ran 93 yards to a touchdown.

The frosh held its own for the remainder of the quarter, and started a drive of its own which lasted 40 yards before Doyle broke it up by intercepting a forward pass.

The hard-running Varsity team came in at the start of the second period, scored quickly on a running attack down the field, with Krimmelmyer scoring and then went on to pile up 14 more points in the third period on some good passing from Carlin to Chambers. The Varsity scored a safety late in the third period when Stewart tackled Trilling, Freshman quarter back, behind the goal line.

The reserves came back in the last section, but could score only when Galloway was interfered with on a long pass over the goal line. Fouts place kicked the extra point, the first attempt out of five to be converted into a score.

GONZAGA THREE-A WINS.

Third Year "A" won a thrilling 20-to-19 victory over Third Year "B" yesterday in the Gonzaga High School Intramural Football League. The game was closely contested all the way, and the winners' touchdowns were scored by Mann and Merkle. The decisive point of the game was a forward pass for the extra point of the last touchdown, from Dawson to Fitzgerald.

Third Year "B" put up a battle all the way. Herlihy scored twice and Jarvis once.

THIS MORNING:

Chicago? Zounds! The man doesn't even know his own mind. Indiana hasn't beaten Chicago since 1910, doesn't he know it? Yea, Chicago.

Marquette to beat Boston College, he picks. That makes it easy for me. One large, luscious vote for Boston College.

Carnegie vs. Purdue. That looked to be a tough one until Espey picked Purdue. I'll take Carnegie.

Texas to beat Harvard, he says. Doesn't the man know Barry Wood will be there? Harvard to win easily.

Navy to beat Princeton, according to Espey. Navy is still fiddling around with the Notre Dame system. I'll take Princeton.

Army to beat Yale. I differ. Harvard's passes beat Army. Benny Friedman himself is tutoring the Yale passers. Give me Yale.

Michigan to win from Illinois, he says. That makes up my mind. For no other reason—Illinois.

Northwestern to beat Ohio State, according to Espey. If I remember rightly, Northwestern tied Notre Dame on a muddy field. But Army tied Notre Dame in touchdowns on a muddy field last year and could beat Navy by only one touchdown. Throw out that Northwestern-Notre Dame game in the mud, I pick Ohio State.

VIRGINIA-G. U. GAME FOR CHARITY SOUGHT

reasons Virginia was not asked forthright several weeks ago to play Georgetown December 12 was the fact that transportation of the team to this city would have involved additional expense which the committee sought to escape.

Obstacles which forbade Maryland joining hands with the other native colleges in the rally for charity may also interfere with Virginia's appearance, Adams said. Policy and tradition are strictly adhered to by the Cavaliers, but Adams stated that he would bend every effort to secure the services of the Charlottesville outfit.

MARYLAND U. MINUS TWO REGULARS

Woods and Keenan to Miss Battle With V.M.I. Today.

MINUS two of its star players, Maryland University's eleven goes to Richmond, Va., today to resume its quest of Southern Conference honors in a game with the "dark horse" team of Virginia Military Institute. Al Woods, clever quarter back, and Ted Keenan, sturdy tackle, will accompany their mates, but in all probability will not play due to injuries sustained last week in the Kentucky contest.

Without Woods and Keenan, Maryland may be thoroughly extended to win; indeed, the Old Line may encounter more opposition than it can safely combat. V. M. I. is known to have been preparing especially for this game in the hope of defeating what is conceded to be the best team of the Northern division of the conference.

May to Start

At Quarter.

Woods' place at quarter back will be taken by Charlie May, former Business High School athlete, while Keenan's tackle position will be filled by Charlie Cole, who gave an impressive performance last week after Keenan was removed with a broken nose. The substitutes, however, do not figure to completely counterbalance the loss of the regulars, and therein lies the possibility of an upset for Curley Byrd's machine.

Possessing an outstanding ball-carrier in "Stumpy" Travers, Alexandria youth, V. M. I. has improved its offense to a point that gives Maryland real concern. The Cadets, with Travers showing the way, registered three touchdowns against the University of Virginia, a team against which Maryland could score only one touchdown.

Nobody realizes the danger lurking in Richmond today better than Coach Byrd himself. He has been endeavoring this week to keep his players from becoming overconfident, a mental condition they might very likely be subject to following their success against Navy and a surprising tie game with the powerful Kentucky eleven.

Byrd also has been saving his men physically, mindful of the severity of the loss of Woods and Keenan, and in order to avert further loss of manpower he has eliminated scrimmage from the Old Liners' practices.

With the exception of the substitutions already mentioned, Maryland will line up against V. M. I. the same as it did against Kentucky. This array finds George Chalmers and Bozey Berger at the halfbacks; Ray Poppelman at full back; Al Pease and Jack Norris at ends; Ernie Carliss at tackle; Courtney Hayden and Jesse Krajcovic at guards, and John Mitchell at center.

Washington-Lee High Beats Fredericksburg

A touchdown by Half Back Allen, scored in the first five minutes of play, turned out to be the margin of Washington and Lee High's 6-0 victory over Fredericksburg High in a game played at Ballston yesterday. Aside from this opening thrust of the Generals the two elevens fought on even terms throughout the battle. It was sweet revenge for the victors, who suffered a 19-13 defeat at the hands of their rivals last year.

Via, shifty Washington and Lee linesman, saved the day for the home team in the final period when he tackled Al Heflin 15 yards from the goal line after the latter had reeled off 60 yards through a broken field. Bia was injured on the play and was removed from the game, but later returned to finish out the fray. Allen was the most consistent ground gainer for the winning team. The Heflin brothers stood out in the Fredericksburg attack.

MAX CAREY NAMED MANAGER OF ROBINS

or a pitching coach, the same job he left with John McGraw and the New York Giants, when he took over the reins at Brooklyn.

His successor, Max Carey, is 41 years old, schooled in the modern style of play that came into baseball after Robinson's spectacular days as a catcher for the old Orioles.

Carey Led League

In Base Stealing.

For ten years, with Pittsburgh, Max was one of the National League's outstanding outfielders and base stealers, reaching his peak in 1916 when he stole 63 bases. "He broke into baseball as a shortstop with the South Bend team in the Central League in 1909, came up with Pittsburgh in 1911, and quit the Pirates in the middle of the 1926 season after a row with Fred Clarke, then assistant manager of the club.

Carey came to Brooklyn and played through the last of the 1926 season and in 1927 and 1928 before retiring to the bench as a coach for Robbie in 1929. He returned to Pittsburgh to coach in 1930 but was idle last season. He is 41 years old, a smart, personable baseball man, fully qualified to meet the changing conditions that have come into the game through the use of the new ball.

Carey, now living in St. Louis, will move his home to Brooklyn within two weeks. Following the meeting today and the announcement of his appointment he could only forecast that there would be "several changes" in the Brooklyn line-up next season. He would not indicate where the changes would be made.

St. Alban's, After 25 Years, Defeats G. U. Prep, 19-13

Castle Leads Wisconsin Avenue Boys to Victory; Pass, Morton to Chesley, Brings Deciding Points.

TWENTY-FIVE years of patient waiting was rewarded yesterday when a well-drilled, hard-charging St. Alban's eleven that used an aerial attack to good advantage, scored over an equally scrappy Georgetown Prep team by a score of 19 to 13, at Garrett Park. It was the Cathedral team's first triumph in its long series of games with Georgetown, a series rich in history and tradition.

Castle, left half back, was the shining light in St. Alban's offensive. He sent his team ahead in the first quarter by skirting left end for a 30-yard run to a touchdown, after St. Alban's had previously worked the ball from midfield. Again in the third quarter, when Georgetown had assumed a 1-point lead over its rival, Castle put his eleven in front with a plunge off tackle that resulted in a 15-yard gain and another touchdown.

St. Alban's clinched the decision in the final quarter when, after a series of line plunges, McGee switched his tactics and called for a pass, Morton to Chesley, that netted a gain of 25 yards and touchdown.

Georgetown's first score was the result of a sustained march, from midfield that found Nee on the end of numerous forward passes thrown by McNamara. The latter plunged over from the 1-yard mark. In the final period the Garrett Parkers tallied again through a well-directed aerial attack. McNamara heaved a short one to Charley Graham, who speedily covered the 40-odd yards between him and the goal.

NOTRE DAME CHOICE OVER PITT TODAY

much more opposition than Drake, but just how much remains to be seen. Notre Dame may be extended to its utmost, but appears to be developing too fast to lose.

The Illinois-Michigan battle presents an old-time rivalry, with each team considering itself very much in the championship running, as there is no guarantee that any Big Ten team will keep its slate clean in this season of surprises. Both Illinois and Michigan have been defeated, but one defeat means nothing to them. Michigan probably has a slight edge because of the greater experience of the Wolverines; but Illinois' team of youngsters, mostly sophomores, has been swinging along nicely, with a victory just around the corner.

Hoosiers Hope to End Long Jinx.

Indiana has not defeated Chicago since 1910, and the Hoosiers hope to take advantage of "old man" Stagg's hapless warriors tomorrow, and go back to Bloomington with something to shout about. Indiana will be trying doubly hard to show something to Pat Page, who coached the Hoosiers last year, but who now is assisting Stagg.

Minnesota, which considers itself a threat in championship competition, figures to conquer Iowa, because of its larger line and plunging attack.

Purdue, in a tough frame of mind, because of the unexpected beating administered by Wisconsin last week, threatens to get even by upsetting Carnegie.

Wisconsin, riding high because of the victory over Purdue plays in the East for the first time in 30 years, meeting Pennsylvania. The Quakers have not been beaten or tied in the East this year, but the Badgers are determined to repeat their triumph of a year ago, when they conquered the Easterners at Madison.

Cunningham Winner In Assistant Pro Golf

Frank Cunningham, of the Burning Tree Club, yesterday won the assistant professionals' golf championship, staged on the course of the Columbia Club yesterday. Competition was 36 holes, medal play, and Cunningham's score for the two rounds was 72—76—148. Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase, with 75—81—156, and Andrew Gibson, Baltimore, 78—78—156, tied for second money. Larkin lost his opportunity to win second money outright when he took 6 on the final hole after playing his third shot into a trap.

The scores:

Frank Cunningham, Burning Tree, 72—76—148; Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase, 75—81—156; Andrew Gibson, Baltimore Country Club, 78—78—156; Archie Clark, Congressional, 77—80—157; John Bass, Woodholme, 76—86—162; Gilbert Cunningham, Burning Tree, 85—78—163; Charles Penna, Congressional, 79—85—164; James Norvell, Washington, 79—85—164; William Hardy, Chevy Chase, 83—83—166; Claude Orendorf, Woodmont, 81—85—166; Lawrence Wisner, Suburban, 86—81—167.

AFTER three unsuccessful attempts, American University is favored to break into the win column today when it engages Shenandoah College on the former's new gridiron, at Massachusetts and Nebraska avenues, at 2:30 o'clock. The Virginians appeared here early in the season against George Washington, but made a poor impression on local critics.

Despite the loss of Ed Parke, big full back and chief offensive threat, the Eagles are confident of sending the Virginians home on the short end of the score. They have improved their attack overhead and expect to gain the verdict thereby. The spearhead of the Eagles' aerial offense is Chester Bowers, hitherto a substitute half back, whose throwing prowess was discovered only this week.

Thus far American has lost to Lynchburg, Hampden-Sidney and High Point, having put up hard battles in all three games. It was overpowered by Hampden-Sidney and Coach Young withdrew the first team when all hope of overcoming the heavier, more experienced foe was gone during the second half. A weakness on pass defense was chiefly responsible for the losses to Lynchburg and High Point, and with a view to eradicating this vulnerability, Young has spent many hours drilling his players since last Saturday.

Shenandoah has played four games to date, having defeated Shepherd College by 3 to 0 for its lone triumph.

CHURCH GROUP SAYS DRY MODIFICATIONS MEAN OPEN SALOONS

Sunday School Session Here Backs Prohibition and Denounces Foes.

RESOLUTION ATTACKS RUM AS BUSINESS AID

Move Is Called Propaganda From Selfish Interests; Officers Reelected.

Charges that all persons who contend that prohibition in its present form is not an unqualified success must be actuated by "purely selfish" motives, and an assertion that no modification of the present liquor laws would be possible without "immediate return of the open saloon" are contained in a resolution adopted by the District Sunday School Association in convention last night at the National City Christian Church.

The resolution criticized "a fog of propaganda coming from selfish interests, rising all over our beloved land, asking in the sacred name of liberty for light wines, beer and other alcoholic drinks," and claimed that the argument that modification of the prohibition laws "on the theory of needed governmental revenue and for employment" is "wholly false, and the action desired would result in injury to honest trade and to those suffering most under present-day conditions."

Prohibition Is Backed.

The association stated further that "we believe whole-heartedly in prohibition of the liquor traffic, law observance on the part of all good citizens and law enforcement for all others," and commended the efforts of present officials toward enforcement of existing antiliquor laws.

Another resolution held that "the stress and strain of modern life requires an acceptance of spiritual ideals to prevent human beings from becoming essentially selfish and pagan, and no person can be considered well-educated without a knowledge of moral and spiritual values." Upon these premises the organization registered its conviction that "religious education for the youth of our Nation is the most important item in the program of the Christian church."

Officers Are Reelected.

E. H. DeGroot, jr., assistant service director of the Department of Commerce, was reelected president. Other officers reelected included Irving L. Koch, first vice president; Mrs. Gertrude M. Donovan, second vice president; Louis B. Nichols, third vice president; Mrs. E. A. Seltzer, fourth vice president; Page McK. Etchison, secretary, and A. M. Cooper, treasurer.

Dr. Robert M. Hopkins, of New York, general secretary of the World's Sunday School Association, was the speaker of the evening. He emphasized the "marvelous opportunities" now facing the church for Christianizing that vast percentage of the population of the world which still is carrying on under the delusion that it is possible for any people to live in peace and happiness under the religion of un-Christian ancestors.

E. C. MEREDITH, 57, FOUND SHOT DEAD

Grief Over Death of Friend in Auto Crash Is Blamed; Was Real Estate Man.

Friends last night laid the death of Edwin C. Meredith, 57 years old, Washington real estate man, to despondency over the death of his nearest friend, Harrison Nesbit, Pittsburgh banker, who was killed in an automobile accident near here Wednesday.

Mr. Meredith, a son of the late Representative Elisha E. Meredith, of Virginia, was found dead yesterday in the bathroom of his apartment at 2200 Nineteenth street northwest. There was a bullet wound in his temple and a .32-caliber automatic pistol was in his hand.

His wife, Mrs. Mary Meredith, found the body.

Friends said Mr. Meredith was despondent over financial troubles, but they believed Mr. Nesbit's death led him to take his own life. Mr. Nesbit was buried about time of the suicide at Warrentown, Va., where Mr. Meredith's mother now lives.

Insisted on Walk.

Mrs. Meredith told police her husband, on coming home from his work, insisted that she take a walk as a respite from household duties. Acceding to his request, she decided to go to a nearby store. When she returned she walked back into the bedroom, calling him.

A note pinned on the bedroom door was unnoticed. Opening the bathroom door, she caught a glimpse of blood on the floor and, sensing the tragedy, ran from the apartment.

Mrs. Lula M. Hasty and Mrs. Paul Grindle, who occupy apartments on the same floor, heard Mrs. Meredith's screams and came to her aid. The three entered the apartment and discovered Mr. Meredith crumpled on the floor. He was pronounced dead by Dr. B. F. Iden, jr., the family physician. Mrs. Meredith was unable to explain the motive.

Mr. Meredith, insurance and real estate dealer, with offices at 907 Fifteenth street northwest, had attempted to forestall the shock which his death would cause by leaving a note, addressed to his wife, pinned on the door of the bedroom that adjoins the bathroom. It read as follows: "Dear Little Mac: Get Bill (supposed to be the dead man's brother, William P. Meredith, of 2446 Kalorama road, here before entering bathroom."

Leaves Confidential Letters.

"Important letters for you and Bill," the note continued, "in dresser explaining everything. They are confidential, and the authorities do not have to see them. Other personal letters in top dresser drawer. Also leaving letter for Dr. Nevitt or assistant that will show this to be my own act, so that inquest will not be necesary and body will not have to be sent to morgue. Do not touch body or gun until viewed by Dr. Nevitt or his assistant. Sorry to cause any one trouble. God bless you. CONTEE."

Besides one son by his first wife, Elisha Meredith, graduate of the United States Naval Academy, and now connected with a Baltimore business firm, Mr. Meredith is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary Meredith; his mother, Mrs. Elisha C. Meredith, of Warrenton, Va., and the one brother mentioned in the note, William P. Meredith. His father was a member of the House of Representatives from 1891 to 1897.

Mr. and Mrs. Meredith came to Washington from Detroit, Mich., about ten years ago. They had occupied the Nineteenth street apartment for about one year.

Priest in Baltimore Given Capital Pulpit

The Rev. Andrew H. Mihm, assistant pastor of St. Catherine's Catholic Church of Baltimore, was yesterday appointed pastor of Our Lady of Victory Church. Father Mihm will succeed the Rev. M. F. Yingling, who recently died.

Man Mysteriously Cut By Footpad in Park

Police last night were investigating a mysterious attack upon John Barry, 21, of 1428 North Capitol street, who was treated at Emergency Hospital for a stab wound in the back. Barry told the police he had been walking through Lafayette Park early yesterday when he was attacked and stabbed without warning by an unidentified colored man.

Barry's wound was not serious, hospital authorities stated, and he was sent home after having the injury dressed. He was unable to offer any motive for the attack.

LEIVA SAYS BEDELL MAY BE ASSAILANT

Suspect in Cunningham Case Will Be Questioned in New York Today.

A description of William E. Bedell, who is held in New York City, was said by Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, Minister of El Salvador, to fit the description of one of the men who assaulted him in the legation, 2601 Connecticut avenue northwest, during an attempted liquor robbery on May 13.

Bedell, who also is a suspect in the killing of Jack Cunningham, police informer, which is believed to have been an aftermath of the legation case, will be questioned in New York today by Detective Sergt. Larry O'Dea. Dr. Leiva recently returned from a trip to Europe where he went to recuperate from a slight skull fracture received in a grapple with his assailants.

The taxicab driver, who is believed to have driven one of Dr. Leiva's assailants from the vicinity of the legation, is Grayson McDaniels, of 702 E street northeast. He is regarded as an important witness in the case.

Sentence Given Laundry Robber

Pittsburgher Receives Ten Years Concurrently for Holdups.

Justice James M. Proctor yesterday issued an ultimatum to out-of-towners who come here to commit crimes when he sentenced Robert Gray, colored, of Pittsburgh, to ten years in the penitentiary for robbing Chinese laundrymen here.

Gray, with a confederate now serving a long sentence, robbed two Chinese laundries here in 1928, and then fled from the city. He was captured in Pittsburgh and returned here last summer, and he pleaded guilty to two charges of robbery and to a third charge of attempted robbery.

On each of the robbery charges he was given ten years, concurrently, and on the attempted robbery charge he got three years, also to run concurrently. Gray robbed Lee Poy, 1607 Twelfth street northwest; Sam Lee, 1621 Seventeenth street northwest, and attempted to rob Lee Brockwing, 2900 Georgia avenue northwest.

Grocer Is Ambushed And Beaten in Store

Samuel Arkin, 50 years old, proprietor of a grocery store at 4410 Georgia avenue northwest, was severely beaten last night by two colored men he found hiding behind barrels in the rear of his establishment.

Arkin, who lives at 4423 Georgia avenue, was preparing to close his store for the night. As he went to the rear to lock a door, the two men leaped from their hiding place. One of them struck him several times about the head and body with a large club. Arkin's cries for aid apparently frightened his assailants and they fled, leaving him lying semiconscious on the floor.

UTILITY BOARD FILES SCHOOL FARE PLEA

Gives Court 22 Reasons Why Company Protest Should Be Denied.

Twenty-two reasons why the appeal of the street railways and the Washington Rapid Transit Co. from the 3-cent school fare order should be dismissed are cited by the Public Utilities Commission in a brief filed yesterday in District Supreme Court.

The motion, signed by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride; his assistant, William A. Roberts, and People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech, declares that the transportation companies have failed to exhaust their legal protests to the commission and that they have failed to show actual loss in revenue as a result of the order.

The passage of the 3-cent fare bill by Congress left the utilities body no choice but to issue an order making the reduced rate effective, the brief declares. Neither the commission nor the District Supreme Court, it is contended, have the authority to declare the act unconstitutional.

As the street car and bus companies presented no evidence of increased expenses incurred by complying with the order, the brief points out, it must be assumed that they suffered none. There is nothing to show, it adds, that the number of school children using street cars or buses did not increase sufficiently after the order was adopted to offset the difference in the 3-cent fare and the adult charge.

The logical recourse of the transportation utilities, the motion states, was a petition to the commission for "such increased fare as would have compensated the companies for the alleged loss sustained by the entry of the commission's order."

The three companies have five days in which to file an answer to the motion to dismiss.

Police Telephone Clerk Named.

Marian V. Cowin was appointed telephone clerk at police headquarters yesterday by the District Commissioners to fill the vacancy caused by the discharge of Mrs. Anna E. Jett, who was arrested on a liquor charge recently.

MYSTERY SHROUDS SHOOTING ON BOAT; 2 MEN ARE JAILED

Party Held at River Ends in Death of Richard Collins, 47.

TWO MORE ARE HUNTED AFTER BODY IS FOUND

Police Hold Theory That Scuffle for Gun Preceded Fatal Firing.

Mystery last night surrounded a party held on a house boat near Ft. Washington, which ended in the fatal shooting early yesterday morning of Richard Collins, 47 years old, of 4 S street southwest.

Prince Georges County police are holding two men, one of them colored, and are searching for two more colored men who joined in what officials term "a drunken brawl." Alexander Shorter, colored, who lived on the house boat, was arrested yesterday. He could not explain an injury to his right index finger, the tip of which had been blown off.

Denies Knowledge of Affair.

Arthur Crouch, of 6 S street, is also being held, although he told police he knew nothing of the shooting until he awoke yesterday morning. Crouch said that he and Collins went to Fort Washington Thursday night in a motorboat, and joined Shorter and his brother Lee. Crouch added that he went to bed early, as the others were about to start on a coon hunt.

Alexander Shorter was arrested on the boat, as was Crouch, but Lee Shorter and another colored boy who lived on the boat have disappeared. The prisoners are being held in the Marlboro Jail on charges of investigation. Authorities said they would be held until they sobered up enough to talk.

Found Sitting in Chair.

The dead man was found sitting in a chair, a double-barreled shotgun with the breech opened on the floor in front of him. One shell in the gun had been fired, and it was apparently this charge which tore into Collins' mouth, killing him instantly. Three other loaded shotguns on the houseboat were taken to Marlboro as possible clews.

Police were notified of the shooting by David L. Tate, who owns the land to which the boat is moored. Judge G. Cox responded with policemen and ordered the body removed to an undertaking establishment at Ritchie, Md. It was said that Crouch was still asleep when police arrived, being awakened by Judge Cox. That Alexander Shorter and some one else were wrestling for possession of the gun when Collins was shot is the theory now held by Sergt. A. W. Hepburn, investigating the case. Sergt. Hepburn points out that the tip of Shorter's finger might have been blown off during such a struggle.

Wife of Train Victim Begins Suit for $10,000

Mrs. Stella Schinetti, widow of Alex Schinetti, who was killed February 10, when a car of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Railway Co. hit him near Eleventh street and New York avenue northwest, yesterday sued the company for $10,000.

The suit was directed against George Weems Williams, acillary trustee for the company in the District. Mrs. Schinetti said, through Attorney Anthony Benevento and Alvin L. Newmyer that her husband was about to board a car when it was suddenly set in motion.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

ADMISSION TO THE HOSPITAL.

(Being a recital of what practically happens when a man takes any of his loved ones to the modern hospital.)

* * * *

THE scene is a hospital. A woman has been suddenly stricken and rushed to the institution. Reservation of a room has been made. Her husband, a responsible business man, makes the trip to the hospital with her. All human kindness, to say nothing of common decency, requires that there be no delay giving the stricken woman immediate relief from her agony. There is the usual and perhaps necessary delay in recording the case in the admissions office, but this is only the half of it.

Husband (assisting the patient toward the elevator): This way, dear. You'll be all right very soon now.

Voice: Just a minute! She'll have to sit here a few minutes.

Husband (quite puzzled): Sit here?

Voice: Yes, you'll have to see the cashier first.

Husband (incrediulously): See the cashier, did you say?

Voice: Yes, down the hall, third door to the left.

Husband (still finding it difficult to believe that at a time like that there should be major concern for the cashier): You mean it is necessary for me to see the cashier before this lady is made comfortable?

Voice: Yes. You'll have to pay a week in advance before she can be taken to her room.

Husband—Are you really serious?

Voice—Yes, the lady can sit here while you see the cashier. Third door down the aisle.

(The husband, amazed and outraged by a code which makes the payment of money the first consideration in a matter of life or death, places his wife in a chair, urges her to be patient and goes to the cashier's office.)

HUSBAND (impatiently) — What am I supposed to do, please?

Cashier (languidly) — About what?

Husband—My wife is very ill. I have engaged a room here. They won't give her attention until I see the cashier.

Cashier—Got the slips?

Husband—What slips?

Cashier—The entrance slips.

Husband (realizing for the first time that he has been handed some papers)—Oh, you mean these?

Cashier (looking them over very leisurely)—Them's them. It'll be $248.32.

Husband—There's no time to discuss it, but I thought the room was $15 a day.

Cashier (bluntly)—We charge operating room, laboratory use, nurses 'n' everything, and then if there's anything coming back you get it on the second week. You see it's like this * * *

Husband (at his wits' end)—They know me here. There has never been any question anywhere about my credit. It will be a matter of human kindness to get my wife under treatment at once and then come down and do whatever is necessary.

Cashier—It's against the rules.

Husband (quite indignant)—Suppose a patient is dying?

Cashier—We can't admit anybody without a week in advance. A lotta people would never pay us. It's a rule and * * * Husband (realizing that there is nothing any colder than the atmosphere of a hospital office)—Oh, very well.

(He makes out a check, waits several moments for the proper papers, rushes out to his wife, gets her ultimately to her room and is pacing the corridor when an attendant comes out of the elevator, rather concernedly.)

Attendant—Mister, didja see the cashier?

Husband (going suddenly quite berserk).—No, I've changed my mind. This is a hospital, isn't it?

Attendant—Yes, sir.

Husband—Well I've decided to take the patient to a convention of coin collectors instead. They'll react more swiftly to human suffering there.

Alexandria Will Retain Gen. Washington Painting

The oil painting depicting Gen. George Washington standing beside his horse at Yorktown, which has been hanging in the Alexandria City Hall for many years, and about the ownership of which there has been considerable discussion, will be retained by the City of Alexandria, according to a decision reached by the city council.

The question of ownership of this portrait, which is believed to have been the work of George Washington Parke Custis, came up when the city council was requested by Army officers in charge of the work of restoring Arlington Mansion, either to return it to its original location or permit a copy to be made for that purpose.

There are no records available indicating how the picture came into the possession of the city, and the council took the matter under consideration.

According to the opinion of the War Department, the picture has little artistic value, but its sentimental value, having been painted by Washington's adopted son, is great.

Bridge-End Arrests Banned by District

Somewhat belatedly, the District Commissioners yesterday instructed Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, not to make any arrests on the 5.24-acre strip of Federal property at the Virginia end of the Key Bridge, popularly known as "No Man's Land." Supervision consequently is left entirely in the hands of the War Department.

The order was based upon an opinion by Corporation Counsel William W. Bride, who in turn quoted as his authority the action a year ago of Justice Wendell P. Stafford, of the District Supreme Court, in dismissing a case involving E. C. Shockey, operator of a lunchroom in the Arlington & Fairfax Railway station, on a charge of setting up a gambling table.

The immediate cause of the order was a letter forwarded by Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, in which a resident of Ballston complained that a slot machine in the Rosslyn station is "robbing the public."

"I am of the opinion," Mr. Bride stated, "that not only do the local courts have no jurisdiction over offenses committed in so much of the area in question as lies beyond the high-water mark on the Virginia shore, but that * * * the effect of Justice Stafford's ruling in the Shockey case is to deny to the Police Department any right to function in any particular in the area constituting the bridge approach which lies south of the high-water mark of the Potomac River on the Virginia side."

Daniel E. Garges, secretary of the board, yesterday suggested that a conference between Mr. Bride and Assistant Attorney General Richardson "might be helpful in solving the matter of police jurisdiction."

DEBUTANTES SHOW SWEETHEART ERAS

St. Margaret's Rector's Aid Presents Charming Tableaux.

"Sweethearts of the Ages," one of the most elaborate tableaux ever presented here was given last night at the Willard Hotel by the Rector's Aid of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church. Sixty girls, many of them debutantes of the coming season took part in the affair. Each of them represented a "sweetheart" of bygone or present days and walked in turn into a large frame where they were pictured for the audience, and for the young man of the play who was to pick out the one he preferred.

Miss Janet Richards, well-known in Washington as a lecturer on current events, took the part of the sorceress whose magic brought back the girls of yesterday. She presented first such well-known characters as the Merry Widow, the Gibson Girl, and the Debutante of the "Gay Nineties."

Following this opening group Mrs. C. C. McDonnell sang "The Sweetest Story Ever Told."

Two grandmothers of 1860 opened the second group which included the Crinoline Girls, Marie Antoinette, Colonial, Indian, Quaker, Dutch and Puritan Maidens, Queen Elizabeth, Turkish, Brittany, Spanish and Scotch girls; Pharoah's daughter and a Titian maiden.

The remainder of the program was made up of characterizations of the Modern Girl. This included A Vamp, The Rich Girl, The Prom Trotter, The Actress, The Widow, The Football Fan, Our Housekeeper, The Movie Star and The Bride.

Flora McGill Keefer took the part of the Goddess of Liberty and sang "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Music for the pageant was supplied by Mrs. Carolina Randell, violinist, and Miss Vera McKechnie, accompanist.

Among those taking part were Margaret Gibbons, Louise Hoehling, Katharine Fuqua, Louise Harrison Gwynn, Ann Wyant, Gene Woodson, Atlee Wirgman, Evelyn Walker, Dorothy Nicholson, Lucille Elliott, Ruth Molyneaux and Sue Pollard Boatwright.

Following the tableaux a dance was held in the ballroom.

19-Year-Old Yegg Gets 6-Year Term

Court Tells G. N. Walls He Hopes Sentences Will Be Lesson to Youth.

After telling George Neldon Walls, 19 years old, that he hoped a light sentence would place him on the right path, Justice James M. Proctor yesterday ordered that Walls serve two three-year sentences concurrently.

The youth pleaded guilty to entering the stores of George F. Muth and E. J. Murphy. In both places safes had been broken open and a sum estimated to be $271.12 was stolen.

Walls said that he entered the stores to get money to open up a sign business. He said that he regretted his act, but that he "guessed it was too late."

24 Pairs of Hose Are Stolen.

Two dozen pairs of ladies' silk hose, valued at $20.40, were stolen from a showcase in front of Hahn Shoe Store, at 930 Seventh street northwest, Thursday night.

FINANCE MEN URGED BY DOAK TO PUT END TO LOAN-SHARK EVIL

Tells Convening Association $750,000,000 Lent Annually at Usurious Rates.

SECRETARY STRESSES BODY'S RESPONSIBILITY

Connecticut Official Asks Campaign to Advertise Firm's Service.

Responsibility for aiding the law in eliminating loan sharks was placed up to the small-loan finance companies of the nation yesterday by Secretary of Labor William N. Doak, in an address to the American Association of Personal Finance Companies, in convention at the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Secretary Doak pointed out that the aggregate of normal family income in the United States from wages and salaries was estimated in 1928 to be about $50,000,000,000, and in contrast cited estimates which place the annual sum borrowed from loan sharks at usurious rates at $750,000,000.

"The personal-finance business," he emphasized, "was created as a practical device to combat the loan shark. As it proceeds to more substantial business stature, it must not forget its origin. It must deport itself by policy and method in a fashion to discharge the obligations conceived by its founders and sponsors.

Function of Companies.

"The personal-finance business should regard the high-rate lender not only as a public enemy, but as its own natural enemy. It should provide credit facilities for the wage-earner and for those to whom less costly credit is unavailable, in a manner which will constantly exert greater pressure toward the extinction of loan-shark operations in the United States. This is your social responsibility; it is also your business opportunity.

"The personal finance business should realize the public obligation imposed upon it to earn socially clean dollars. In no other business with which I am familiar are business morality and good business more conspicuously one and the same thing.

"I am not trying to cramp your style; rather I am trying to point your opportunities. They are unlimited if you grasp them firmly. There are certain fundamentals which are firmer than the solid rock. Plant your feet upon them."

Advertising Is Stressed.

Emphasis was placed by other speakers upon the assertion that the public is not familiar with the aims, purposes and functions of personal finance service, and that "much lack of real public understanding of the nature and function of the service exists, even in communities and States where it is extensively in operation."

To overcome this condition, William A. Hendrick, executive vice president of the Connecticut Association of Personal Finance Companies, urged an extensive advertising campaign by the member companies.

He stressed the importance of using ample advertising space in newspapers as being the most important media existent for telling the story of the small loan business to the public.

4 Years and 6 Months Given Man in Drug Case

Elliott Shreves, convicted last week of charges of violation of the narcotic laws, was sentenced to serve 4 years and 6 months when he was brought before Justice Proctor yesterday.

Shreves set up an alibi in his defense, one witness testifying that he was in New York City when narcotic agents testified they bought narcotics from him here. There were seven counts in the indictment, and Shreves was found guilty of three of them.

Song Sheet Merchant Held in $1,000 Bond

Judge Gus A. Schuldt, in Police Court yesterday, ordered Bernard Simpson, alleged song sheet merchant, held in a $1,000 bond for the grand jury on a charge of violation of the copyright laws.

Simpson was arrested by police after agents of a copyright association saw him selling printed sheets containing the words of songs that had been copyrighted.

Wounded Foreman Has Chance to Live

None of Five Bullets Believed to Have Touched Vital Spot.

George Brandt, 48 years old, foreman of The Post's composing room, who was shot by a discharged employe yesterday morning while seated at his desk, has a fighting chance for life, according to Emergency Hospital attaches.

None of the five bullets which struck Mr. Brandt is believed to have touched a vital spot. Two of the slugs, fired at close range by John A. Kennedy, of 3217 Connecticut avenue, struck him in the chest, two in the side and another flecked his chin.

Kennedy had been discharged by Mr. Brandt after a disagreemene and subsequent altercation between the two men about two weeks ago. The former employe entered The Post Building about 1:25 o'clock yesterday morning and, walking close to Mr. Brandt, fired at his back as the composing room foreman was seated at his desk. Kennedy was disarmed by two Post employes and held until arrival of police.

Sprasser, 18, of 23 S street northwest.
